Security, Three Kinds.
Rum for the Quintuplets.
Apprentice Reporters?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S important message to Congress, outlining his plan for a bigger and better "New Deal," mentions three great objectives as "the minimum promise that we can offer the American people." This "minimum" comes near to an Utopian ideal compared with usual conditions.

The President says every American is entitled:

First, to "security of home," which presumably means a home that will not be taken away by mortgage holders, tax collectors, etc.

Second, "security of livelihood," which would mean a guarantee of desirable jobs for those willing to work.

And, third, "the security of social insurance," which would mean an insurance system, making good with cash any failure of jobs and incomes.

THE PRESIDENT says:

"We are working toward ultimate object of making it possible for American families to live as Americans should."

Hitherto, Americans themselves have been expected to make it possible to live as Americans should, by working and saving. If it can be done without that, by government, so much the better and easier.

It is an important Presidential message. You will read it today.

THE CANADIAN quintuplets, five little girls in a row, are still alive, doing better than might be expected. One has gained three and a half ounces, another has recovered from a cold.

Some will be shocked, all interested, to learn that with each feeding the doctor gives the five little girls "rum in minute amounts. Brandy is the usual thing, but I didn't have any, and so I use rum. They seem to enjoy it, and stick out their tongues when the rum appears at feeding time."

For feeble little babies and feeble old people doctors say "minute doses" of alcohol are beneficial, a few drops for the baby, a few teaspoons full for the old.

THE RUSSIAN newspaper Pravda warns Japan not to start a war, "because Japan could not afford it."

Pravda tells Japan she would have to spend at least eleven thousand five hundred million yen the first year and need 1,500,000 regular soldiers in the field and a reserve of 1,500,000.

Such expenditures, says Pravda, would cause frightful inflation of Japanese money, great suffering and rebellion among the people. The Japanese might reply that money is not the only important thing in war.

The total fortune that Alexander the Great inherited from his father amounted to a little less, it is said, than the sum that Alexander gave to his teacher, Aristotle, or spent making scientific collections for that philosopher. This did not keep Alexander from becoming master of Persia, conqueror of a ruler who could have bought Alexander and all Macedonia with part of a year's income.

NOT EVEN the able Pravda can safely predict anything about the next war. Flying machines and poison gas will make soldiers on the ground unimportant, whether they number a million and a half or ten millions and a half.

Airplanes, properly utilized, or rather murderously utilized, might end a war before any nation would have the time or the need to spend much money.

Airpanes and poison gas are cheap.

YOUNG MEN constructing a trade union for newspaper workers suggest that before becoming a reporter, or a "newspaper craftsman," every young man should work three years as an apprentice.

That would not have suited Charles A. Dana or some others. The late Albert Brisbane persuaded Greely to give Charles A. Dana a job on the New York Tribune, although Greely said he did not want Dana "because all those Brook Farm people are lazy."

Dana had been briefly interested in Brook Farm. Greely hired Dana to read exchanges at five dollars a week and at the end of six months Dana was the managing editor.

W. R. HEARST would not have profited by a three-year apprenticeship. When very young he took the San Francisco Examiner and in less than three years the Examiner had more circulation, more influence, and

Fighting Johnson

Labor Leaders Corn, Portsmouth, O., and Spang, Duquesne, Pa., at the U. S. Labor Department at the head of a delegation of steel union men conferring on a peace plan. Later they became embroiled in a dispute with Gen. Johnson, NRA head engaged in arbitration. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

STEEL PEACE PROPOSALS ATTACKED

Union Faction Revolts Against Offer of Employers, NRA

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—Amid a roar of bitterness, steel union insurgents revolted today against a peace plan approved by Hugh S. Johnson and the employers.

They swore to see President Roosevelt today, present him a plan of their own and then hurry home "prepared to fight."

The threat of a steel strike, which many officials fear would hog-tie the recovery drive, seemed still ominous.

About the plan for a peace board to settle capital-labor fights—a plan which Johnson said he "practically prescribed" and which the steelmasters accepted last night—the international president of the steel union, Michael F. Tighe, remained firmly silent.

Johnson and the insurgents whaled away at each other—using such phrases as "hell and bluff" and "damnable."

UNION SCORES JOHNSON

A score of union leaders issued a statement last night which said:

"We are done with you and your Iron and Steel Institute Board.

"Tomorrow we go to the President to place before him an honest, straightforward plan for a settlement.

"Having seen the President, who saw the steel magnates earlier this week, we shall go home to our lodges prepared to fight for that 'pure recognition' of the right of collective bargaining that you scorned."

The list of names attached was headed by Earl J. Forbeck and William J. Spang, called "rank and file" leaders.

Johnson called Tighe and the other leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to NRA today to explain the plan for a neutral board of

Air Pageant Here Postponed Week Due to Showers

Showers, and their predicted continuance all day, threatened to drench the thousands of youngsters expected at the field, many of whom were on their way when the meet was canceled, and airport officials felt it necessary to postpone the event.

There was consolation in the fact that the showers constituted the first rain in the district for many days and that crops will benefit even though a carefully-planned air meet had to be temporarily abandoned.

Street car tickets to the field will be honored next Saturday, it was announced.

With a week's additional time it is felt that the air pageant to be held by the Sun-Telegraph Wing, Junior Birdmen of America, will be an even better feature. A number of other fliers will be available, in addition to the roster of noted men and women pilots who were ready for today's meet.

Concern for the health of the youngsters attending the pageant governed airport officials in calling off the event. They declared it was possible to fly in spite of the showers, but that the crowd would suffer extreme discomfort.

Charles Syre, airport weatherman, reported a ceiling of only 1,000 feet, inadequate for the stunts planned. The wind velocity of 19 miles was not considered good for the meet. The air over the field was reported chilly. Showers were expected through the day.

Full details as to plans for the meet next Saturday will be contained in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

Radio stations of the city carried brief announcements notifying parents and youngsters that the pageant had been postponed.

STATE POLICE AID CLYMER GIRL HUNT

Sharon Child Search Reunites Estranged Parents

State police joined the search for one of two missing Western Pennsylvania girls today as the mystery surrounding the disappearance of each grew deeper.

Meanwhile, volunteer searchers and local police at Sharon and at Clymer redoubled their efforts to find some clues to the missing girls, feared kidnaped or dead.

Both children disappeared early this week—four-year-old Leah Minerva Dilley, of Sharon, on Sunday, and 14-year-old Lucille Harper, of Clymer, near Indiana, on Monday.

VIOLENCE FEARED

At the request of Clymer officials, state police from Greensburg and Punxsutawney joined in the search for the Harper girl today.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harper, the girl's foster parents, expressed fears that she had met with foul play after leaving her home Monday with $5 to purchase a bathing suit. Mrs. Zada Powers, of Derry, the girl's mother, joined the Harpers at their home today to await word of the search.

FAIR RECONCILED

The father, released yesterday from the Allegheny County Workhouse, where he had been serving 90 days on an assault and battery charge brought by his wife, returned home and greeted his wife with a kiss. He immediately joined the search for his daughter.

Dilley said:

"I am convinced, although I have no facts to go on, that her body is in the river."

JEAN DELANEY CROMPTON

DILLINGER PAL ON LAST RIDE

WATERLOO, Ia., June 9.—(AP.)—Tommy Carroll's body jolted homeward in a baggage car today while federal officers hunted tourist camps and highways for other members of John Dillinger's gang.

Carroll's body, drilled by five police bullets, was on the way to St. Paul. There his widow, Mrs. Viola Carroll, planned funeral services, tearfully avowing:

"Tommy was a good boy."

Left behind in the Waterloo jail was the girl arrested when the gangster was shot by detectives Thursday. Asserting when detained that she was Carroll's wife, she later was identified as Jean Delaney Crompton. Yesterday she said her true name was Jean Ann Bothern.

Whatever her name, she is going to a federal reformatory for a year and a day. She received that sentence on a charge of harboring Dillinger at the little Bohemia resort, near Mercer, Wis., but sentence was suspended and she was placed on probation. This was vacated after she was arrested with Carroll.

U. S. DICKERS FOR OUTLAW WITH KIN

Federal Overtures Made to Father And Sister

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9.—(AP.)—Proposals represented as coming from the Department of Justice for the surrender of John Dillinger, Indiana desperado, are being made to relatives, it was reported here today.

The report says John W. Dillinger, father of the outlaw, who lives at Mooresville, Ind., and Mrs. Emmett Hancock, a sister, have recently been asked to cooperate in a plan by which the fugitive may voluntarily surrender and his father obtain the various rewards which have been offered for Dillinger's capture. The elder Dillinger said:

"A man representing himself as a federal agent came here to talk to me about it recently, but I couldn't do anything like that without having a chance to talk to John and I don't know how to reach him.

"It is up to John as to what he wants to do and I don't think anyone would expect me to turn against him. Life is just as precious to John as to anyone else and he is not likely to come out of hiding and take the chances of beig shot down at sight or of being railroaded to the chair."

The father, who is 69 years old, added "sometimes all this worry gets the best of me and I just have to quit work and go lie down." He said:

"If I could influence John to surrender I'd do it, because I think that the best thing for him. I think he might have been a good man today if he had been treated right when he first got into trouble and I think he is entitled to just treatment now."

The elderly farmer does not appear to place any credence in theories that the outlaw is either dead or severely wounded. No one in the family, according to its members, has heard anything definite concerning Dillinger since he joined them in a reunion last April 8.

GOLF CHAMPS ON LAST LAP

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—Down the homestretch will come the pack of 64 in the last two rounds of this very dramatic National Open Golf Championship today, with game, little, sawed-off Bob Cruickshank three strokes in the lead at 142.

Back in second place is Gene Sarazen, the toughest, roughest competitor any leader ever encountered. He is the greatest man in golf today on the last-minute rush, a man who apparently can call upon hidden reserves at a time when most competitors are wondering whether they can possibly last to the wire.

There are the pair of them, a little guy by the name of Cruickshank, who is so small that he looks like somebody playing out of a hole in the ground, and a black-eyed desperado who does not know the meaning of quit. There are others in the field. There are, as a matter of fact, Wiffy Cox, in third place at 146, and a four-way tie between Horton Smith, Leo Diegel, Billy Burke and Rodney Bliss, at 147.

At 148, and therefore still having a fighting chance, were such as Henri Ciuci, MacDonald Smith and Joe Kirkwood. Really, they had no actual chance.

BALL PARK BEER BRIBE SPURNED

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—Shibe Park, home-grounds of the Philadelphia American League baseball club, could have obtained a license to sell beer a month ago for $10,000 and a promise to use a certain brand of beer, counsel for the Athletics charged today.

Less than half an hour after the club's counsel, Charles C. Gartling, turned down the asserted bribe offer, City Treasurer WillB Hadley refused to issue the baseball park a license. Hadley ruled that an old state law does not permit a beer license to be issued to a place of amusement.

Last Monday Judge Harry S. McDevitt in Common Pleas Court decided the club was entitled to a license and ordered Hadley to supply one immediately.

Gartling declared:

"Unless the city treasurer grants us a license before the end of today or files an appeal with the superior court, I am going to file a petition with Judge McDevitt asking that the city treasurer be held in contempt of court."

Replying to the treasurer's demand for the name of the man who offered the bribe, Gartling said Judge McDevitt had all the facts.

Wine Hurled to Road To Save Truck Afire

LANCASTER, Pa., June 9.—(AP.)—Manheim firemen had $1,000 worth of wine in their hands, to do with what they would, but they didn't have time to drink a drop of it.

They hurled the bottled liquid cargo to the highway yesterday to save a $1,500 truck of the Spring Hill Bottling Company, Newark, O., from flames.

Mile-Long Petition Asks 2-Cent Postage

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—William J. Miskella, president of the Paper Foundation, yesterday presented to a group of House and Senate members a petition one mile in length and containing the signatures of 119,186 persons, asking for return of two-cent postage.

PRESIDENT ASKS DROUGHT FUND

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt planned to ask Congress today for an estimated $525,000,000 to salve a drought disaster that has smashed 40-year-old records.

To the picture of widespread desolation, government experts added a forecast of the smallest wheat crop since 1893. Nineteen states suffered the worst spring blight in history. Any skepticism about the seriousness of the drought yielded to a crop report showing June 1 conditions. It disclosed:

Total wheat production estimated at not more than 500,000,000 bushels, lowest since 1893.

Winter wheat reduced 61,000,000 bushels during May.

Oats set at 700,000,000 bushels, lowest since 1893.

Barley and rye damaged about equally.

An "acute shortage" of hay in prospect with production set at 50,000,000 tons compared to the normal of 84,000,000.

Earl of Lonsdale Bares Cowboy Plot

LONDON, June 9.—(AP.)—The Earl of Lonsdale, titled British sportsman, was reported to have revealed yesterday that in his youth he joined a party of cowboys which set out to hold up a Denver stage coach.

He was regaling a crowd of American cowboys and cowgirls in the London rodeo show with stories of the days he spent in the Colorado cattle country in the late '70s.

Marriage 'Expert' Faces Divorce Suit

ASHLAND, O., June 9.—(AP.)—Dr. M. O. Caldwell, head of the sociology department of Ashland College, who said in a recent address that "divorce is not an evil, but a symptom of poor marriage," is being sued for divorce.

The professor, also an advocate of a course of study in preparation for marriage, is accused of neglect and cruelty in his wife's petition.

Freighters Collide In Erie Harbor

ERIE, Pa., June 9.—(AP.)—Two large freight vessels were damaged in an early-morning collision in the harbor here today. Coast Guard officials reported the steamer E. C. Crowley, entering the harbor, crashed into the stern of the steamer Arcturus, anchored at a buoy. Damage to both ships was above the water line.

China's 'Strong Man' In War on Slit Gowns

SHANGHAI, China, June 9.—(AP.)—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, China's "strong man," has started a drive against the "up to the thigh" movement in women's fashions, but to date has not made much progress. The new style calls for one-piece silk gowns, slit up to the thigh.

Wounded Freeport Chief Gravely Ill

Police Chief J. M. Cunningham, of Freeport, who is reported by police to have shot himself after his arrest yesterday on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, continued in a serious condition today. He is in a Tarentum hospital with a bullet wound near the heart.

Cunningham was recently acquitted of being the driver of a machine which killed a boy and failed to stop.

Former Opera Star Adopts Infant Waif

CHICAGO, June 9.—(AP.)—Once Mme. Irene Pavloska, as a soprano with a brilliant operatic career and world renown, sang before footlights to dazzling audiences. Last night 2-year-old Patricia Bernice Mesirow was the sole member of her audience as Pavloska sang perhaps more sweetly than ever before. Mme. Pavloska and her husband formally adopted the infant yesterday from an Evanston foundling home.

W. S. Armstrong's Wife Raps Family in Court

The young wife of William S. Armstrong, son of the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, charged today in Common Pleas Court that members of the Armstrong family had a guardian appointed for William to prevent him from enjoying his share of the father's estate.

The wife, Ann Ackerman Armstrong, is seeking an allowance of $75 a month from William's estate. A guardian was appointed for him after he was declared mentally defective on March 28, 1933.

Mrs. Armstrong charged that Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., another son of the late Commissioner, "tried all sorts of deceptive and fraudulent means" to obtain stock certificates from her husband.

The allegations were contained in Mrs. Armstrong's answer to a petition asking her to account for 2,250 shares of stock of the Fort Pitt Brewing Company. She said Joseph G., Jr., once offered her husband $100 for the stock, but William refused.

Mrs. Armstrong said her husband turned the stock over to her after he was declared mentally defective, that she sold it for $5,500 and gave the money to him in installments.

The wife set forth that she married William when she was 17 years old, June, 1931. She denied his mental development had not progressed beyond that of a child of 6 or 7, and said Commissioner Armstrong approved William's courtship.

Farmer and Wife Murder Victims

LOWELL, Mass., June 9.—(AP.)—Paul Caouette, 28, and his wife, Alice, 30, were found slain at their farm home last night. The man's body was found in a chicken coop to which, police said, it apparently had been dragged from his automobile in which they believe he was shot. His wife's body was near the car with a towel wrapped about the head.

Morgenthau Niece Weds in New York

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP.)—Josephine Alma Wertheim, niece of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the Treasury, was married yesterday to Ralph Pomerance, of New York.

The ceremony was performed by Justice Irving Lehman, of the Court of Appeals, a brother of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Girl Saves Man, 91, From Drowning

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 9.—(AP.)—Anthony Diprimio, 91, of South Greensburg, recovering from drowning, owes his life to Miss Agnes Bompel, of Sells lane, Greensburg.

Police reported Diprimio, walking in high grass along the border of a small stream, slipped into the water. Miss Bompel, passing by, heard his faint cries for assistance and pulled him to safety.

Son of Gen. Grant Dies in California

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 9.—(INS.)—Jesse R. Grant, 79, retired mining engineer and the last surviving son of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, is dead at his home in Los Altos, in the Santa Clara Valley, where he resided since 1924. He is survived by two children and his wife.

Babies 'Prohibitionists,' Oxygen New Stimulant

CORBEIL, Ont., June 9.—(AP.)—The Dionne quintuplets, in the words of their doctor, are "total prohibitionists" today, for scientific devices have eliminated the rum that was used to stimulate them.

Instead of alcoholic spirits the infants now get their stimulation from an oxygen tank, which has been most successful in restoring vitality, Dr. A. R. Dafoe explained:

"The rum is not required now that we have the oxygen."

He added:

"The quintuplets are holding their own and doing as well as can be expected. Their bodies are filling out, the wrinkles in their skin are disappearing and their features are forming nicely."

Soon, if all goes well, the little sisters will be pink, normal babies, with wrinkles and their bluish tinge gone.

Available data on the families of Ovila Dionne and his wife show six sets of twins, but no triplets or quadruplets. On the mother's side there were four sets of twins.

Mrs. Dionne, 24, was allowed to leave her bed yesterday for the first time since the children were born 12 days ago. She spent most of the afternoon sitting beside the kitchen fire. Relatives are caring for the five older Dionne children.

STATE G.O.P., DEMOCRATS AGREE ON TAYLOR, LAWRENCE

MARTIN DECLINE MARKS FALL OF VARE

New Leaders of Both Parties Supported By Nominees

Associated Press

Shifts in leadership of both major political parties in Pennsylvania were effected today as the Republicans meet in Philadelphia and the Democrats in Harrisburg.

At the Philadelphia meeting M. Harvey Taylor, was elected G. O. P. chairman by acclamation.

Of the shifts, the supplanting of Gen. Edward Martin, of Washington, Pa., by Taylor was the more significant. It reflects the Philadelphia downfall of William S. Vare, coupled with dissatisfaction of the present leadership throughout the commonwealth.

SUPPORTED BY NOMINEES

Taylor's choice by the Republicans and the impending Democratic change from Warren van Dyke, of Harrisburg, to David L. Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, have one thing in common, however. Both new leaders are supported by their party nominees for the November elections.

The Democratic slate, headed by Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, announced its approval of Lawrence at a meeting in Harrisburg last night. Van Dyke at that time announced he would not be a candidate to succeed himself, declaring "active direction of the party should go to a younger man."

Van Dyke's withdrawal in some sources was credited to President Roosevelt's insistence that federal employes be removed from politics. Van Dyke is collector for the Port of Philadelphia. But Lawrence is also a federal employe, collector of internal revenue for Western Pennsylvania.

HAMILTON WITHDRAWS

Martin announced his withdrawal from the Republican chairmanship after a series of conferences at Philadelphia with United States Senator David A. Reed, Attorney General William A. Schnader, nominee for Governor; former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, State Senator Harry B. Scott, nominee for Lieutenant Governor, Taylor and A. Boyd Hamilton, Martin's assistant.

With Martin's withdrawal was coupled that of Hamilton, secretary to the State Senate. This announcement came from Hamilton himself, high in Pennsylvania Republican councils for years.

With Martin eliminated, the Republican conferees agreed on re-election of all other state committee officers with the exception of Mrs. Charles F. Etter, Dauphin County, who was not a candidate for re-election as vice chairman. Charles Johnson, Montgomery County, was slated for secretary; Blakely D. McCaughn, Philadelphia, for treasurer and Miss [illegible] Highley, Norristown, for assistant secretary.

TEACHER TO ATTEND

Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, of Wilkes-Barre, a deputy attorney general, was chosen to succeed Mrs. Etter.

On the Democratic side, only the new chairman was given the sanction of the nominees. It was indicated, however, that Ralph M. Bashore, of Pottsville, would be vice chairman.

Henry P. Fletcher, new Republican national chairman, was to attend the Republican committee reorganization and see Dauphin County Commissioner Taylor, nominee for Secretary of Internal Affairs, elevated to the Pennsylvania chairmanship.

From Vare, stripped of his power in the city and threatened with loss of domination of the County Commissioners' board, came information that he would neither attend the state committee meeting nor resign as national committeeman.

McNair Quits City For Democratic Meet

Finding all quiet on the Pittsburgh front, Mayor McNair slipped out of the city today and went to Harrisburg to attend the meeting of state Democratic leaders. The party's state committee is meeting to elect officers and speed the campaign for the forthcoming general elections.

JURIST SWORN FOR NEW POST

Judge Joseph A. Richardson today was sworn in as a member of the Common Pleas court bench, to which he was appointed to succeed the late Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

Albert B. Graver, former law partner of Judge Richardson, presented the commission to Judge Ambrose B. Reid, who administered the oath. A short recess was declared while Judge Richardson was congratulated by friends.

Mrs. Lois Downs McBride, appointed to succeed Judge Richardson in the County Court, was present. She will take the oath from Judge Richard A. Kennedy in County Court Monday.

BANK ROBBERS CLUB CASHIER

GOLDSBORO, N. C., June 9.—(AP.)—Two bandits held up the Bank of Magnolia, near here, at opening time today, clubbed the cashier, shot his assistant and escaped in two cars after shooting their way through a cordon of citizens outside the bank.

L. D. Dale, cashier of the bank, which has been visited by bandits three times in a comparatively short period, was reported injured when struck on the head with the butt of a shotgun.

His assistant was reported shot as the bandits blazed their way from the bank with an undetermined amount of loot.

Bell No Collector, Plans to Punish Debt Dodgers

Safety Director A. Marshall Bell has announced that his office will not attempt to force policemen or firemen to pay private debts and that it will not in any way act as a collecting agency. At the same time Bell said that any debt-dodging will be held against an employe's record.

Bell said that his office would investigate unpaid accounts, and if it is found that unfair advantage has been taken of trades people punishment will follow.

AUTO GAS MEN DEBATE STRIKE

Representatives of eight of the 16 major distributing companies and officers of the Gasoline Station Employes' Local Union No. 19204 were to meet in the Fort Pitt Hotel today in an effort to stave off a threatened strike of gasoline station employes.

A report that Secretary Harold D. Ickes, of the Interior Department, and Dr. W. M. Lierson, chairman of the Petroleum Labor Policy Board under the National Recovery Act, would attend the conference could not be confirmed by Robert W. Zollinger, president of the station workers.

Representatives of the men last night announced that they had given the employers until midnight tomorrow to reach an agreement with the workers. The union is demanding a 40-hour week, a closed shop and a minimum of 60 cents an hour.

HITLER TO MEET MUSSOLINI

GENEVA, June 9.—(AP.)—Harmony succeeded dissension in Geneva today as cheered supporters of disarmament looked to the expected meeting between Europe's most powerful dictators, Mussolini of Italy and Hitler of Germany.

After a general exchange of compliments, several leading figures in the arms conference left. Work on actual disarmament is not anticipated until Germany accepts or rejects the latch-string held out for her re-entry into the conference.

Italian delegates made known that Mussolini would confer personally with Hitler. Official confirmation was lacking from Rome.

Il Duce plans to go to the Adriatic coast soon, ostensibly on a vacation, but Rome dispatches said it was likely he would meet Hitler in Venice and urge that Berlin come back to Geneva.

MAYOR OPPOSES HOUSE RAZING IN SLUMS

Development Group Labeled Useless in Dispute at Club

Mayor McNair has announced that he is against razing of many houses, opposed to the government building homes for people and unwilling to appoint a City Development Commission.

CONTRADICTS EVANS

He contradicted Evans when the latter said a first mortgage has prior rights to a tax lien, and when Teller suggested the appointment of the development commission, the Mayor launched into a tirade. He said:

"I get tired of these Socialists coming around here and telling us the government should build houses. I am against this slum razing campaign. Where do people go when you tear down these houses?"

As to the appointment of the development commission, urged as a way to improve chances of obtaining Federal aid, the Mayor said:

"I will not appoint this commission. All it is for is to get some executive secretary a job. The best way to kill a movement is to appoint a commission."

TASK FOR CITY OFFICERS

Later he added that the regular city officials could handle the improvement of the slums, and that a commission could not do more than Supt. Evans has already done. Evans has directed the razing of about 200 houses since the first of the year.

Attorney Homer S. Brown, Negro, nominee for Legislature on both tickets in the First Legislative District, told the club he favored the use of government funds to improve housing conditions.

M'NAIR HINTS SMITH OUSTER

Mayor McNair has again threatened to fire Ralph E. Smith as a member of the Traction Conference Board just to show the Kane Police Research Commission what he can do.

He was to receive soon a formal request from the commission asking immunity from dismissal for persons on the city payroll who testify before the commission.

Smith, former safety director, recently told the commission that he fired Supt. Ben R. Marshall for "lying" about a list of dismissals and that Captain of Detectives Frank R. Boyd is "unfit for a police job."

Mills Says U. S. Can Speed Recovery

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP.)—Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, said last night that currency stabilization offered the most effective point of attack on obstacles which are holding back world trade. In a radio talk he said the United States, as one of the world's principal monetary centers, has a great opportunity to render world service.

JOHNSON RULES PRICE CONTROL TO STAY

New Policy Won't Tear Up Existing Codes, NRA Chief Says

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—Price control provisions now in NRA codes are to stay there until specific changes are negotiated.

Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, made that plain last night following a deluge of protests against the new policy aimed at eliminating certain phases of price fixing.

Johnson said the new policy was not going to tear up a lot of existing codes or expose them to reckless price slashing.

Though not overturning the original announcement that negotiations will be started to bring all codes into line eventually with the new policy, the Administrator, in an address by radio to the International Ladies' Garment Workers in Chicago, stressed that the new policy was definitely opposed to "wilfully destructive price cutting." It provided for its prevention, he said.

Darrow Review Board Issues New NRA Report

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—The Darrow Recovery Review Board today sent its second report criticizing the NRA to President Roosevelt.

The report was signed by four of the five members, failing of unanimity as William O. Thompson, Chicago lawyer and former Darrow partner, declined to concur.

Thompson's disagreement, it was said authoritatively, was founded on grounds entirely different from the refusal of John F. Sinclair to sign the first report. Sinclair balked at the first because he believed it unfair. To Thompson, the second report did not go far enough in recommending changes.

At the same time the board, in the words of one member, issued a statement which was "a hoot of jubilation" over NRA's "conversion" as evidenced by its newly announced anti-price fixing policy.

While complaints from business against the new price policy poured in on NRA, the Trade Commission acted on its first NRA case, obtaining an agreement from an alleged violator to cease alleged price violations.

AUTO MEN SOLID BEHIND CODE

The motor vehicle retail trade code marketing provisions are affected in no way by the National Recovery Administration plan to abandon price fixing, the code authority here had been advised today.

A. C. Bennett, code supervisor for Allegheny County, said provisions governing sale of automobiles and re-sale of used cars will remain unchanged.

Predicting that the fundamental principles of the NRA will remain a part of the American government, J. Reed Lane, executive secretary of the National Control Committee, motor vehicles retail code, declared automobile dealers are 100 per cent behind the code and declared they had voluntarily offered the government $2,135,000 to enforce its provisions during the coming year.

Lane was addressing a meeting of 200 auto dealers last night in Memorial Hall. Claude Klugh, of Harrisburg, manager of the Pennsylvania Automotive Association, and Bennett also spoke. G. A. Hoeveler, of Hoeveler Motors, Inc., presided at the meeting.

Bennett said only 20 to 25 members in this county are not obeying the provisions of the code, about 5 per cent of the total dealers under his supervision.

Bomb Miner's Home As He Guards Second

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 9.—Nick Lowry's family was safely londged in another home today after dynamite had wrecked their home in Merritstown, in another of the terror bombings that have stirred the local coal field. The explosion hurled Mrs. Lowry and three children from bed. Lowry was away guarding the home of another miner.

Woman's Throat Cut, Dies From Shock

Found in her room early Wednesday with her throat and wrist slashed, Sarah Chambers, 60, of 512 Cedar avenue, died in Allegheny General Hospital last night of shock and hemorrhage. Relatives said she had been despondent, police reported.

Man Carries Coat, Stranger Knocks Him Down

Two men stopped Joseph Marks, of 1802 East Ohio street, as he walked in Oliver avenue early today, carrying his coat over his arm. They asked:

"Why are you carrying your coat?"

Marks replied:

"Because it's hot."

One commanded:

"Well, why don't you put it on?"

He punctuated his command by knocking Marks to the street. Marks was treated at Allegheny General Hospital for lacerations to his hand.

Weather Conditions

Low pressure is centered over the upper Ohio Valley this morning, and a trough of low pressure extends southward and westward to New Mexico. The disturbance is causing thunderstorms with light to moderate rainfall over the Ohio Valley states and southward to Virginia, and over the lake region. The weather is cloudy this morning over the eastern states and it is raining in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia. It is warmer than yesterday morning over the Ohio Valley and the lower part of the remainder of the country, the change since yesterday is towards more. Frost occurred this morning at Sheridan, Wyo., and at Tullahoma the temperature was 32 degrees. A shower continued will continue over this section this afternoon and tonight.

OPPOSE STRIKE IN M'KEESPORT

At McKeesport last night 300 citizens gathered in the Elks Club to hear Mayor George H. Lysle and others speak against the steel holiday movement. Among the speakers were Dr. J. B. Richey, superintendent of McKeesport schools; County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield, Herbert Rankin, chairman of a collective bargaining committee of employe representatives of the Woods mill; Dr. G. P. Gamble, and Watson McKee, secretary of the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Lysle declared he would use "all the power of my office" to preserve peace and order in the event of a strike. He said:

"I think no strike will be permitted now, for it seems likely that President Roosevelt will intervene if necessary. I have every confidence in the workmen of McKeesport, and I feel sure they will not vote to strike."

County Commissioner Mansfield declared a strike at this time "would be futile" and "would hold back President Roosevelt's recovery program."

Rankin and McKee reported on their trip to Washington. Rankin said more than 80 per cent of the Woods' mill employes had signed a referendum against the proposed holiday.

New Court Parley Set in Weirton Suit

WILMINGTON, Del., June 9.—(INS.)—Judge John P. Nields today had set next Wednesday for consideration of a date for hearing testimony on the federal government's suit for a permanent injunction to restrain the Weirton Steel Company from taking any part in the election of collective bargaining representatives by its employes.

Three weeks ago Judge Nields dismissed a government motion for a preliminary injunction on the grounds the court did not have jurisdiction and there was a material conflict of facts cited in affidavits submitted by both sides.

Monessen Union Head Opposes Steel Strike

MONESSEN, Pa., June 9.—(AP.)—George A. Maley, president of the All Nations Lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, has announced opposition to a threatened strike of steel workers.

He favored the proposed board of President Roosevelt to arbitrate the issues between steel employes and plant owners. Maley issued his statement last night as part of a denial that he had resigned the presidency and his membership in the union.

Roving Band Kills Family of 4, Servant

MEXICO, D. F., June 9.—(AP.)—Delayed dispatches from Zomajapa, Vera Cruz, reported the killing Sunday of five persons by a band of 25 Agrarians who attacked a ranch. The dead were Leon Ladron Guevara, his son and two daughters and an old servant. Federal troops were sent to capture the band.

STEEL PEACE FOUGHT BY INSURGENTS

Employers' Approval Of Johnson Plan Snagged by Union

three to supervise labor disputes. Forbeck said the "rank and file" men would go through with an agreement to see the NRA head, but others rebelled, crying:

"To hell with Johnson!"

The proposed labor board would consist of three men to be named by President Roosevelt: One representing "employe interest," another the "employer interest" and the third the "public interest." Steel employers and labor leaders would be barred from serving on it.

APPROVED BY INSTITUTE

Approval of the American Iron and Steel Institute, the organization of steelmasters, was announced in a letter to Johnson. It was signed by Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem; William A. Irvin, president of United States Steel, and L. E. Block, president of Inland.

All questions of employe representation for collective bargaining—core of the dispute—and all complaints of discrimination against unions—would be adjudicated by the board.

Specifically, industry leaders agreed the companies would:

Abide by the board's findings on any charge of discrimination.

Let the board supervise company union elections or elections to amend the union's structure on demand of a substantial number of workers.

Accept as final its findings as to who are the chosen representatives of the employes.

Accept its arbitration in any jointly submitted case.

Give it all payrolls or other needed records.

Allow it freedom to order new elections if any held since the first of the year are found to have been under employer restraint.

AMALGAMATED STAND

The Amalgamated officials from Tighe down, frankly looked askance at the steel companies' insistence on perpetuation of "employe representation plans"—which the Amalgamated calls company unions.

So contrary does this run to all American Federation of Labor principles that Johnson had no idea whether he could persuade the men to agree. He said flatly last night that he would not ask the workers to call off the strike, tentatively set for June 16. He said:

"I don't believe I have the right to ask anyone who has the inviolate right to strike, not to strike."

Asked what would happen if the union turned down the plan, he said:

"I don't know."

He himself had urged it on the steel companies and was said to be satisfied that it represented a tremendous concession on their part. It has yet to receive the formal approval of President Roosevelt.

GOING TO ROOSEVELT

Johnson said the plan would be presented to President Roosevelt. If he approves of it, an executive order will be issued appointing the three board members and delegating them the powers outlined in the steel offer. It will not constitute an amendment to the code.

Johnson said of the plan:

"It implements the code and clears up the hiatuses in the Recovery Act on the vexing question of representation.

"I think it is stronger than the cotton textile or the automotive boards and the strength of it is that the industry has agreed to it."

He stated one of the troubles with the Recovery Act had been it did not make clear what constitutes representation and fixed no method of determining representation.

What would happen if the union delegation persists in its disapproval of the plan Johnson would not say. He declared:

"Frankly, I don't know. I have been through five of these strike things now and this one is the toughest I've had to handle yet. For one thing, no one of these union men has shown that he speaks for anybody at all."

Johnson Raps G.O.P.'s 'Kippered Herring'

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—Bolts of oratory flashing from both camps set campaign for seats in Congress in motion today.

The adoption of a national policy by the Republican National Committee in Chicago heralded a burst of speeches.

"A kippered herring," Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, called the Republican social program, in a radio speech last night. He went on:

From the other side came an assertion by Senator McNary, of Oregon, Republican floor leader, [illegible] he new deal and those of its policies which are fallacious are on the ebb-tide."

The Republicans, he said in another radio speech, while steadfastly adhering to sound principles and sane fundamentals "Must, nevertheless, in my opinion, not completely subvert the liberalization called for by present-day developments."

President Roosevelt's message to Congress yesterday, too, was generally regarded as a pledge to the people of what they could expect from his party in the way of future social legislation.

Third party talk has started, much of it from Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, son of a famed third-party man. He said he was sure the depression eventually would create a new political group.

Roosevelt Has New Plan To Replace Wagner Bill

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Roosevelt has decided to abandon the present highly controversial Wagner labor dispute bill in favor of a simple measure, authorizing him to create federal industrial conciliation commissions to settle labor troubles, International News Service learned today on high authority.

The new measure will be sent to Congress by the first of next week. Its prompt enactment was predicted, since it would terminate the long controversy over the original Wagner bill.

The proposed new commissions would be modeled after the industrial relations boards, created under NRA codes for the cotton textile, automobile and soft coal industries. The existing boards, however, have only a sort of voluntary status, whereas the President's proposed legislation would give the commissions a legal status.

The President's "change of heart" probably will hasten adjournment of Congress. There will be little or no opposition to the suggested legislation, Republican leaders said, while the original Wagner bill was certain to provoke prolonged debate.

The President was reported anxious to have this legislation enacted promptly, so he could create such a commission for settling the labor dispute in the steel industry.

THREE MORE RAIDS TIGHTEN LID ON DOWNTOWN RACKETS

IGGY SCHWARTZ HELD FOR COURT

Arrested as Gambling House Owner in Police Swoop

The lid on Pittsburgh rackets was clamped down tighter today following three more police raids on alleged gambling establishments, two in the downtown and one in the Hill district, last night.

The raids came several hours after Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell denounced the lenient treatment that allowed one man, arrested in an alleged numbers "pick-up" station, off with a $50 Police Court fine.

The first place invaded by a police squad headed by Inspector John H. Schnurr and Lieuts. Dennis Hennessy and George Schmotzer, was an alleged race horse bookmaking shop on the second floor at 931 Liberty avenue, where "Iggy" Schwartz, recently acquitted of the murder of Andy Garavini, the hacker, was arrested.

RACING SLIPS SEIZED

Two wires to race tracks as well as direct phones, an adding machine and racing slips were reported seized. Schwartz, charged with keeping a gambling house, was held for court under $2,500 bond at a hearing in Central Police Court today.

The raiding squad crashed through the doors of another alleged "bookie" shop in the rear of the first floor at 434 Fourth avenue. Four men were arrested and racing sheets were confiscated in the place, according to police. Charles A. Worner, 26, charged with keeping a gambling house, was fined $10. The others were discharged.

Two alleged operators of what detectives described as a suit club were arrested in their offices on the ninth floor of the Benedum-Trees Building last night. They were Jacob T. Gregory, 75, and his son, Ollie H. Gregory, 50, the detectives said. They were charged with operating a lottery.

SUITS AND NUMBERS

The raid was made at the instigation of the Better Business Bureau. The club was said to have collected $1 weekly from "members," to be applied toward the purchase of suits. On each weekly card, the detectives said, was a series of numbers which, if they tallied to the clearing house totals for the date of issue, entitled the holder to a free suit.

At 10 Overhill street, police reported seizing numbers slips and books and arresting Harry Pittler, 29, on a charge of operating a lottery. Pittler was fined $50.

Director Bell, in denouncing the lenient treatment, said the police activity would be a waste of time if the police magistrates won't cooperate. His criticism was apparently aimed at Magistrate J. W. McGowan, though he did not mention him by name.

The man released by McGowan with the light fine was James Daurora, of Reed street.

North Side police raided the Neptune Hunting and Fishing Club at 922 Western avenue, formerly known as the Canary Kitchen, arrested Mrs. Myrtle Kenny on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and seized a quart of legal liquor. Seven male visitors also were arrested.

MOB HANGS PAIR TO RAILROAD TRESTLE

Mississippi Lynchers Disarm Sheriff, Seize Suspects

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., June 9.—Two Negroes, accused of an attempted attack on a white woman, lay dead today, the victims of a determined mob of lynchers, who seized the pair from officers and hanged them from a railroad trestle.

The pair, Isaac Thomas and Joe Lowe, both 25 years old, were said by officers to have confessed an attempted attack on the 18-year-old wife of a Delta plantation manager at Sledge, Miss.

Twice the mob attempted to take the two prisoners from Sheriff W. T. Haynes, of Quitman County, and two deputies. On the second occasion they were successful.

Near Cleveland, Miss., the mob last night descended on the three officers as they were escorting the pair to Clarkdale for safe keeping. Disarming the Sheriff and his deputies, the crowd forced the officers to leave the scene.

Ropes were quickly swung from an overhead railroad trestle and the two Negroes were strung up within a few minutes after their seizure.

Starting out for Jackson, Miss., with the prisoners, they were accosted by a group of would-be lynchers at Moorhead, but Sheriff Hynes "outtalked that mob."

The officers then changed their route and started for Clarksdale instead, but were overtaken by another and larger group of lynchers near Cleveland.

MILLEN BOYS, ABE FABER GET CHAIR

Crowds Cheer Verdict, Mob Threatens Cowering Trio

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., June 9.—The scales of justice were balanced today.

A vengeful community began cooling off.

But—

"It doesn't alter anything. My son is dead and nothing will bring him back."

That's what Mrs. Isabelle McLeod, the mother, said, as she heard the verdict shortly after midnight. Heard the cheers from the crowd outside the courthouse, heard the judge commend the jury, heard the moans of the families of the defendants.

WIFE TO FACE JURY

On June 20 the state plans to bring to trial Norma, pretty young wife of Marton Millen, who is charged with having had guilty knowledge of the crime. Asleep in jail, she was awakened to hear the verdict, she said:

"Poor Marton."

She wept bitterly.

The swashbuckling Millen brothers and the college-bred Faber were dragged on their shackles through the mob surrounding the courthouse.

The cheers turned to howls, the howls turned to booing.

Somebody shouted from the outskirts:

MOB CLOSES IN

The mob began closing in. Deputy sheriffs and state patrolmen fought the crowd back. A thrown bottle struck Deputy Sheriff Howard Capen. Used flashlight bulbs, discarded by photographers, hurtled through the air and burst with loud reports in the night.

The condemned ones, who killed two policemen during the Needham Trust Company robbery, looked frightened.

The law saved them for itself. They were bundled safely into the van for a return trip to jail. Faber, the learned one, collapsed in his cell.

GIRL STAR GOES HOME IN DEATH

PASADENA, Cal., June 9.—(AP.)—Back to the little Mississippi town she left only a few years ago to begin her climb to New York stage and Hollywood screen fame will go the body of 19-year-old Dorothy Dell.

Killed with her companion, Dr. Carl Wagner, prominent Pasadena physician, in an automobile wreck here yesterday, Miss Dell will be buried at Hattiesburg, the town of her birth.

Funeral services will be held at a Los Angeles mortuary late today. The actress' body will be sent to Hattiesburg tomorrow.

Katz Meow Wins Gasoline Tax Refund

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 9.—(AP.)—State Auditor Cliff Yelle thought someone was fooling him today as a state warrant, made out to a Katz Meow, was presented to him for approval.

Yelle checked the records and found Katz Meow, of Hoquiam, was entitled to a warrant for $3.25 in payment of a gasoline tax refund.

HUNDREDS SELL RED SHIELDS

Hundreds of workers in all sections of Pittsburgh and its suburbs today were selling Red Shields to aid the Salvation Army, the event marking the close of the drive for $108,500 to further the activities of the Army in Allegheny County. Officers of the organization asked Pittsburghers to be liberal, as the drive, in progress several weeks, has fallen far short of the goal.

Before starting out to their posts workers this morning were given final instructions by Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger, general chairman of Red Shield Day.

GIRL CLEARED IN $1,500 THEFT

DETROIT, June 9.—(AP.)—Stella Gasinski, of New Alexandria, Pa., has been freed of a former suitor's charges that she robbed him of $1,500.

Attorney Philip K. Shaner, of New Alexandria, retained by Andrew Maletz, 23, another suitor, obtained an acquittal for the girl yesterday from Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein.

Now, Maletz said, only payment of the attorney's fee stands between his marriage as soon as possible with Miss Gasinski.

Steve Palate, 36, the former suitor, whose home is in Detroit, alleged his $1,500 accompanied Miss Gasinski on her return to Pennsylvania some time ago.

But the girl's acceptance of a $5-per-week job upon her return was, in the eyes of the court, sufficient proof that she did not have the missing money.

MULLEN DENIED CHAIRMAN JOB

Martin Mullen, acquitted yesterday in the Coyne vote fraud trial in Federal Court, today had by a narrow margin, missed another cause for celebration. He lost out by two votes to William B. Scott, for chairman of the Tenth Ward Republican Committee. The vote was 29 to 27. Scott, former alderman, is secretary of the Allegheny County Planning Commission. He succeeds Charles Martin.

Mrs. Catherine Maiz was elected vice chairman, James A. Collins, secretary, and William Spence, treasurer.

Regular Republicans were reported to have won the leadership in the Mt. Lebabnon Republican Committee. Norman Ville was named chairman, displacing Thomas Knowlson, a reputed independent. Mrs. Gertrude Easterbrook was elected vice chairman, Milton A. Howard, secretary, and Mrs. Hazel Zima, treasurer.

Attorney James Grove Fulton, of Dormont, has been elected chairman of the Dormont County Republican Committee, succeeding L. P. Kane. Mrs. Elizabeth P. Ewens was elected vice chairman, succeeding Mrs. Geraldine Urban.

Coyne Trial Attorneys Resting

Counsel and defendants in the federal government's conspiracy case against State Senator James J. Coyne and five other Republicans over whom the jury disagreed were taking a much needed rest today.

The prosecutors, James J. Marsh and Louis E. Graham, did not come into their offices today. Marsh took a week-end vacation. Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for Coyne, was planning a week-end on his river yacht anchored in the Allegheny at Oakmont and Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, counsel for Assemblyman P. J. Maloney and Frank J. O'Halloran of the Ninth Ward, was leaving the city for a week-end in his home town, Punxsutawney.

In addition to the three defendants mentioned, those over whom the jury disagreed included Tom Coyne, Pat O'Malley and Walter Buller. They were represented by Attorneys John Duggan, Jr., and Edward O. Call.

NEW STORMS LASH TROPICS

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, June 9.—(By Pan-American Airways Wireless.)—(AP.)—A new tropical disturbance roared today toward the coast of Central America, battered for the last two days by a destructive hurricane.

A wireless dispatch from the weather station at Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, said a storm center had formed in the Gulf of Mexico and was moving toward the Central American east coast.

Communication service was badly crippled by strong winds and heavy rains which accompanied the hurricane. Preliminary reports indicated eight were killed in Salvador and property damage might reach as high as $2,000,000.

A dispatch from Mexico said six persons were killed in the crash of an airplane, possibly caught by heavy winds on the edge of the hurricane, in Chiapas state.

Two Missing Men Sought By Police

The Missing Persons Bureau of Pittsburgh has been asked to search for Joseph Lunther, 32, of 342 Fifth street, Rankin, who disappeared from his home Thursday. Lunther said goodby to his wife and two children and left for his work at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Search also is being made for Joseph Kryocic, of McIntyre, Pa., missing two weeks. Kryocic's mother is ill in her home from worry.

Blame Boys for Theft of Explosives

The theft of 500 percussion caps, used in discharging dynamite, from two tool sheds at the McCartney Run sewer job, West End, was reported to police yesterday. Boys, planning a premature Fourth of July celebration, were suspected by police.

Eina Man Beaten By Three Holdups

Three men attacked Louis Bujar, 36, of 64 Hickory street, Etna, in Berlin alley, Lawrenceville, early today and robbed him of $16. He was treated for a fractured jaw and eye laceration at St. Francis Hospital.

Milk Board Orders Dealesr File Reports

HARRISBURG, June 9.—(AP.)—The Milk Control Board yesterday directed that all licensed dealers file monthly reports of the Milk and milk products handled during the preceding month.

The order is retroactive to April and the April report must be in the board's hands not later than June 21.

Ex-McCormick Aide In Bankruptcy Case

Auto Driver Held On Drunk Charge

Mike Zawoyosky, of near Sewickley, faced charges of operating an auto under the influence of intoxicating liquor before Justice of the Peace Curtis H. Paschold, of Edgeworth, today. Police said they found a pint of gin in Zawoyosky's auto.

Denied New Trial In Pianist Slaying

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 9.—(AP.)—John Mosesz, 28, of Pittsburg, Cal., who lost a motion for a new trial, today faced life imprisonment for the slaying of Rose Balogh, 19. Judge R. L. Hildebrand denied the motion yesterday.

The girl, a pianist in a New Castle church was alleged to have been shot by Mosesz last January after she spurned his marriage proposal.

Neighbors Injured When Auto Hits Pole

Frank Desky, 26, of 77 Bates street, and Paul Juba, 32, of 57 Bates street, were treated at Mercy Hospital for lacerations early today after their automobile skidded in Second avenue and hit a pole.

Vienna Vice Mayor To Speak On Sunday

Dr. Max Winter, former vice mayor of Vienna, will speak in the International Socialist Lyceum, James and Foreland street, North Side, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. He is president of the Socialist Educational International and founder of the Free Schools-Friends of Children Union of Austria.

36 Below Chases 'Heat' in Antarctic

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, June 9.—(Via Mackay Radio.)—(AP.)—A 15-day respite for the Byrd expedition from the rigors of the Antarctic winter was over today. The temperatures have begun falling rapidly after climbing above the zero mark at least once every day in the past two weeks. The mercury yesterday touched 36 degrees below zero.

Husband Finds Wife Dead By Hanging

The body of Mrs. Karolina Fodor, 58, of 1008 Zewe street, Duquesne, was found hanging in the bedroom of her home late yesterday by her husband when he returned from work, according to the coroner's report. Mrs. Fodor was said to have been in ill health.

Mother Braves Death by Giving Flesh to Child

READING, June 9.—(AP.)—A mother who gave strips of her flesh to save the life of her 12-year-old daughter lies in a hospital facing a threat of the same death she tried to avoid for the girl.

The success of a 35-minute skin grafting operation, in which Dr. Oscar Fox yesterday transferred strips of flesh from the mother's thighs to the back of the daughter, Grace McCartney, of Frederick, Pa., will not be known for many days.

Meanwhile, both patients are carefully guarded against the same threat, septic poisoning.

Body Found Under Bridge Identified

Reuben Rye came to Pittsburgh from his home in Sharpsville today and identified the mangled body of a man found under the Superior Avenue Bridge as that of his nephew Clarence Clark, an employe of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus. Rye said he had not seen Clark since he left home more than a year ago to seek work. Coroner's officials believe Clark fell or was knocked off the circus train as it passed under the bridge.

Bayard Re-Elected Penn State Trustee

STATE COLLEGE, June 9.—(AP.)—Four trustees of Pennsylvania State College had been re-elected today for terms of four years each by delegates from county agricultural and industrial societies.

CHASES HIT-RUN DRIVER; HURT

Michael Cimbora, 36, a county motorcycle policeman, was in Mercy Hospital today with a compound fracture of the right leg and a possible skull fracture suffered when his motorcycle collided with a truck while he was pursuing an alleged hit-and-run motorist in the south portal of the Liberty Tubes during last night's rush hour.

Cimbora, who lives at 1138 Franklin street, North Braddock, was chasing a machine which police said, failed to stop after bumping into a bus. During the chase the motorcycle crashed into the truck. The motorist escaped.

Pine Tree Blocks Death In Mountain Plane Dive

SEATTLE, June 9.—(AP.)—How an airliner slid down a giant fir tree into which it had crashed, bringing serious injury to three of its nine occupants, was described today by survivors.

The resiliency of the fir which withstood the terrific impact and eased the plane tail first to the ground, they said, probably prevented a terrible tragedy in the western Cascades, 100 miles east of here, when the United Air Lines ship fell Thursday.

Brought here from the forest wilderness yesterday afternoon, nearly 24 hours after the crash, all were in a hospital today for treatment or observation.

Pilot Ben Redfield had a compound fracture of the arm and was suffering from exposure; Co-Pilot Dwight Hansen had a broken nose and severe bruises, and Miss Helen Curran, of Seattle, a passenger, had a possible fractured hip.

P. C. Beezley, Seattle businessman, who was sitting in the last seat of the plane, graphically described the crash:

"We had been flying above the clouds and fog that clung around the peaks. We slowed down to land, we thought. We bumped, like a hard bounce on the ground. Then we hit again, harder.

"Then I looked outside the window and saw trees. Then I knew . . . The plane cut off the tops of six or eight trees. We hit hard. Then the plane settled back and slid down on her tail, her nose and engine high in the air."

Know Your Neighbor-- And Win Cash Awards

How well do you know your neighbors? Does it occur to you that some of us live in the same block for years or in the same apartment building and you don't know their names?

Well, the Sun-Telegraph has found a way for all of us to get better acquainted. The Sun-Telegraph is going to start a new and fascinating contest tomorrow—open to everyone—men, women and children—under the title, "Know Your Neighbor," and will award more than $2,000 in cash prizes.

The attractive feature about this contest is the fact that readers of the Sun-Telegraph will have an opportunity to win a cash prize every day. The grand prize list will amount to $1,500 in cash, with a total of $600 added for daily prizes.

Don't miss this opportunity for big rewards. It begins in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. Everyone can enter—old and young. It may start you on the road to fortune.

W. & J. CONFERS DEGREE ON WALLACE

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 9.—Washington and Jefferson College graduated 98 students at its one hundred and thirty-third annual commencement here this morning.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, was the speaker and was presented an honorary degree of doctor of laws. In addition to Wallace, five other prominent men received honorary degrees. A doctor of science degree was conferred upon Dr. A. H. Logan, dean of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn.; doctor of divinity degrees to the Rev. Harry Bell King, of the Paxtang Presbyterian Church at Harrisburg, and the Rev. Harry B. Strock, of the First Presbyterian Church at Greensburg, Pa.; doctor of laws to Col. Charles A. Brooks, of Pittsburgh, president of the central division of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, and doctor of literature to Thomas L. Sweeney, of Washington, D. C., author.

High scholastic honors in the graduating class were won by Marcus D. McDivitt, Pittsburgh, and Jack White, of New Castle, who graduated with magna cum laude ranking. Cum laude honors were won by Myroslaw Korol, Manchester, N. H.; Charles E. Matheny, Pittsburgh; William F. McCrady, Jr., Pittsburgh; James B. W. Murphy, Washington, Pa.; William B. Pringle, Chicago, and Edward C. Rogers, Washington, Pa.

Graduates from Allegheny County included:

Bachelor of Arts—V. R. Massock, Duquesne; Paul D. Remington, Jr., Edgewood; John G. Wayman, Mt. Lebanon; George L. Gallatin, Duquesne; Frank F. Hickey, Swissvale; Herman H. Recht, Clairton, and Campbell R. King, Edward S. Rankin, Charles E. Snee, Jr., and Robert J. Wood, Pittsburgh.

Bachelor of Science—W. F. Sayenga, Carl E. Bubenheim, Nils W. Elers, Harold H. Meanor, Jr., Willis A. Siegfried, William H. Snee, Kenneth G. Wood and John M. Gibson, Pittsburgh, and Henry L. Heck, Natrona.

KIDNAP VICTIM ASKS U. S. AID

HANKOW, China, June 9.—(AP.)—A cry for help came today from the Rev. Howard Smith, Washington, Pa., missionary held by bandits in the mountain fastnesses of Kweichow Province.

In a letter to his wife, he asked her to have the United States government try again for his release.

In the meantime she should maintain his insurance "without fail," the letter warned.

The missionary, who was kidnaped by the bandits a month ago, wrote that he was well treated.

The letter bore the mark "somewhere in Kweichow," indicating the outlaws have been traveling widely to elude possible followers. The kidnaping took place in Szechwan Province, across the Yangstes River.

He is in the hands of the notorious renegade, Gen. Ho Lung, who demands $35,000 cash and $3,500 in medical supplies.

Some men could not be made into good reporters by a thousand years' apprenticeship, some, like Boswell, are born good reporters.

LUDICROUS MISTAKES amuse us when others make them. For instance, in Milton's "L Allegro," which all should read, the following lines occur:

Come, thou goddess, fair and free,
In heav'n Ycleпt euphrosyne.

An Englishman quoted the lines in a public speech and, apparently, the word "ycleпt," which means simply "called" or "named," puzzled the reporter. His account of the speech made Milton say:

Then came the goddess, fair and free,
In heaven she crept and froze her knee.

THIS IS mentioned by way of introduction to the fact that in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph, this writer will publish an article on Milton's work with quotations that might cause your older boys and girls to take an interest in the second greatest poet in the English language.

IN WASHINGTON, representatives of strikers and mill owners in the steel industry are discussing their troubles, demands and plans with the United States government. That is better than throwing bombs and shooting each other and Washington has hope of a friendly settlement.

BAPTISTS ELECT OFFICERS HERE

The ninety-fifth meeting of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association came to a close in the East End Baptist Church, Negley and Stanton avenues, last night. The principal speaker was Dr. James H. Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., who declared that if church officials will let the youth of today "carry the ball" churches will soon match Communism in sacrificial devotion to world problems.

Officers elected were:

Moderator, Dr. Judson A. Crane, of Pittsburgh; vice moderator, the Rev. Roger Williams, Greensburg; clerk, the Rev. W. R. Pankey, Pittsburgh; assistant clerk, the Rev. L. S. Erb, Canonsburg, and treasurer, F. H. Robinson, of Bellevue.

It was announced that the Rev. R. G. Pierson, pastor of the East End Baptist Church, will be the only Pittsburgher to attend the World Baptist Allinance in Berlin August 4 to 10.

Speakers included the Rev. George Brock, Baptist missionary to Telugu, and the Rev. B. C. Barrett, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Baptist convention.

Scientist Churches Announce Theme

"God Is the Only Cause and Creator" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text will be: "Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things."

CHURCHES MAP ANNIVERSARY PROGRAMS

New and old members will gather in three Pittsburgh district churches tomorrow to take part in anniversary programs. At Christ's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Margaretta street, the Rev. A. W. Stremel, guest preacher, will speak at the sixty-fifth anniversary of the formation of the congregation tomorrow at 11 a. m. He will stress the fact that the day is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the breaking of the ground and laying of the cornerstone of the present church buildings.

A communion service, in charge of Pastor Oscar Woods, will open the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of St. John's Lutheran Church, Dravosburg. The Rev. Dr. Henry H. Bagger, president of the Pittsburgh Synod, will speak at the special afternoon service. Monday's main event will be a charter dinner, with featured events also arranged for Tuesday and Wednesday.

At Grace Evangelical Church, Wilkinsburg, Dr. F. E. Hetrick, of Dale Boro, will commemorate the congregation's twentieth anniversary of its present location.

Anthony to Speak At Unity Center

E. B. Anthony will speak at both the 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. services of the Unity Center, the Century Building, tomorrow. In the morning his subject will be "Oneness with God." His evening topic is "Healing."

LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION TOMORROW

Delegates from 100 churches of the Pittsburgh area will meet tomorrow afternoon and evening in the First Lutheran Church at Washington for the eighty-third convention of the Pittsburgh District Luther League.

Charles W. Fuhr, of Pittsburgh, a member of the executive committee for the Pittsburgh District and an officer of the Luther League of America, is in charge of the program. Alfred Keehner, of Pittsburgh, district president, will preside at all sessions.

Speakers for this convention include Mrs. H. C. Michael, Johnstown; Mr. F. J. Mellinger, Leetonia, O.; and the Rev. William E. Eisenberg, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Greenville. The Rev. Meade A. Rugh, Tarentum, will act as chaplain, and Darwin A. Kommel, Rochester, will be chorister. The Rev. R. E. Lesher, Pittsburgh, is to speak upon the subject of Thiel College at Greenville.

Dravosburg Church Has Anniversary

A charter dinner will be held by the St. John's Lutheran Church of Dravosburg, Monday night, in observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization. The Rev. L. W. Rupp, pastor of Messiah Lutheran Church, will speak. The Rev. John J. Myers, missionary superintendent of the Pittsburgh Synod, will be a guest of honor. The celebration will open tomorrow afternoon, when the principal speaker will be the Rev. H. H. Bagger, president of the Pittsburgh Synod.

The Story of Salome — CHAPTER II — Told in Pictures By DAN SMITH

And it came to pass while John the Baptist lay in prison, where King Herod had bound him to please his wife, Herodias, that Herod upon his birthday gave a great banquet, and to this supper he invited his lords and the high captains of his army and all the chief men of Galilee. And they all came to the feast.

Then, while King Herod's guests were all assembled, Salome, daughter of Herodias and step-daughter of the king, came in and danced before them. And so greatly did Salome please Herod and all those who sat with him that he called the damsel to him and said unto her, "Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt and I will give it thee."

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES PLANNED

Tomorrow will again be Children's Day in the district. Last Sunday many churches observed the day with special services, but a number of the congregations held their observances on the second, rather than the first Sunday of June.

So as to accommodate both the youngsters and their parents, many of the services are being held at a special hour, either 10 or 10:30 p. m. The First Baptist Church, for one, will hold its united program of exercises and departmental promotions at 9:30 a. m.

In the First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue, the program will be at 11. The children will conduct it in the form of a radio broadcast, under the direction of Miss A. Viola Pritchard and Miss Mary Aiken. At Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue, the primary department has arranged an entertainment of music, songs and dialogues, to be followed by baptism at 11 o'clock.

Marshall Bidwell to Give Recital Tonight

Prelude in E Flat ..... Bach
Fugue in C Minor ..... Bach
Andante, from the Fifth Symphony ..... Beethoven
Sonata No. 8 in A Minor ..... Schubert
No. 1. Andante ..... Borowski
No. 2. Allegro con fuoco ..... Borowski
In Summer ..... Stebbins
Nocturne, "Evening on the Downs" ..... Wood
Finale from the Second Symphony ..... Barnes
a. Cradle Song ..... Grieg
b. Ride of the Valkyries from "Die Walkure" ..... Wagner

MEET TO HEAR AUTHOR

Maurice Samuel, author of "You Gentiles," "I, the Jew," and "Jews on Approval," will speak at a public meeting of the Tri-State Zionist Conference in the Y. M. and W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow. During the day Zionists from Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, and West Virginia will meet for a pre-convention conference.

Mr. Samuel

At the 2 p. m. meeting, current Zionist problems will be discussed, and regional officers and delegates to the annual convention, to be held in Atlantic City, will be elected. Memorial services will, also, be held for late leaders of the district, Adolph Edlis and Isaac Kahnowitz, with Rabbis B. A. Lichter and Henry R. Goldberger officiating.

Evangelist Giving Farewell Address

The Rev. R. F. C. Schwedler will close his seven years of ministry at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Gospel Tabernacle, Arch street, with special services tomorrow. In the morning he will give his farewell address, while in the evening he will make his closing evangelistic appeal.

Mr. Schwedler

Mr. Schwedler has accepted a call to the Alliance Gospel Tabernacle in Philadelphia and will begin his ministry there Sunday, June 18.

MARK FLAG DAY, PINCHOT URGES

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, June 9.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today urged all Pennsylvanians to co-operate in the celebration of Flag Day, June 14. The governor said:

"June 14 is the anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the emblem of the United States by the Continental Congress in 1777. It is, therefore, most appropriate that Pennsylvania, which had the honor of giving birth on its soil to our national emblem, should be a leader in the observance of Flag Day."

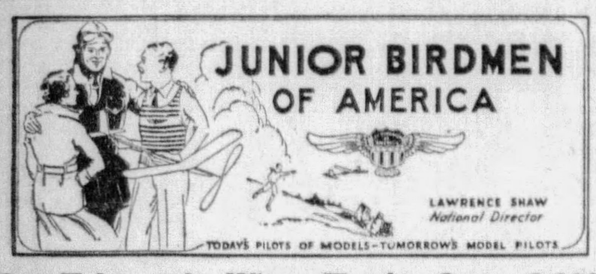
SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH



Sun-Telegraph Wing Totals Over 2,000 Members; Score Mail Request Rules for Plane Meet in July!

By J. JAMES MOORE

Hello, young air aces! How those memberships keep rolling in! Haven't had a chance in the last week to total up the members in our Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Wing, but I am sure that it is over the 2,000 mark. And don't forget our organization is only two months old.

I have received also scores of requests for the book of rules for our Model Plane Derby to be held at Schenley Oval, Schenley Park, Saturday, July 7. It will be the greatest model plane contest ever held in the Pittsburgh district. If you are not a participant be sure you see the other members fly their models.

There will be but three types of planes eligible. First the all-balsa plane, second the single propelled stick model, and third the double propelled stick model. I expect to have the three types of models on exhibit shortly in the downtown district where you can see them.

Also next week I am going to tell you where you can buy balso wood. Quite a number of members have sent me letters asking where they could by the wood. Watch this column and I'll have that information for you.

Our flight squadrons are going along in great style. Here is a paragraph from a letter I received from Russell Douglass, of 911 Wool street, Duquesne, who is commander of Flight Squadron No. 1.

"My flight squadron is coming along fine. Some of the members have gone as far as flying their first model, while the others are almost finished building theirs."

That's great, Russell. I hope to hear about your squadron meeting also.

Tomorrow I will have two air dictionaries for you—No. 17 and 18.

Monday we will have another lesson in our model building course written by Lawrence Shaw, your national director.

Tuesday we will announce the lowering of the membership qualifications of flight squadrons.

Wednesday? I'll have an important announcement for you that day.

ACE RADIO BILLS LISTED TONIGHT

Gobs Star In Ship Show

An all-gob show, originating aboard the fleet flagship Pennsylvania, will be transmitted over NBC-KDKA at 7:30. . . .

University of Chicago's annual interfraternity sing goes on WCAE at 10:30 with Gov. Henry Horner scheduled to speak briefly. . . .

George Givot returns to air waves via WJAS at 10, this time as proprietor of the eating emporium, "Acropolis No. 7." . . .

Three thousand singers from Princeton broadcast over WCAE at 6:40.

In addition, Ben Ames Williams' story of New England folk, "One Crowded Hour," is dramatized at 9:30 over WJAS; CBS airs the Belmont Stakes at 4, and the Philadelphia City Symphony Orchestra, CWA-formed organization, does a one-time broadcast via WCAE at 9.

* * *

Pittsburgh keeps stepping up as a focal network point, with special chain features originating here distinctly on the increase. Making its network bow, the Peabody High School A Capella Choir presented a 15-minute program for CBS this morning, and at the request of Columbia officials, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra does a recall presentation from the WJAS studios tomorrow night.

Latest development is NBC slating of Howard Price, WCAE tenor, for a 15-minute solo program from here next Thursday. A possible network series is indicated for Price, it is said.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello Lades and Gentlemen:

Let me tell you about next Saturday. It's going to be another aviation day for Pittsburgh. Lieut. Felix Vaitkus, of the United States Army will be here with his Lockheed plane in which he will fly across the ocean to Lithuania later in the summer.

A week from tomorrow at Bettis Field, Lithuanian Aviation Day will be celebrated, but the day before, on Saturday, at 12:15, the lieutenant will speak over the radio about his proposed trans-oceanic flight, and will greet friends in English and Lithuanian. Junior Birdmen, please take note.

* * *

I am going to attempt a gag. A swarm of bees are barking up the wrong tree and Mrs. Barker, of 1323 Lettie street, Beechview, wants them removed immediately. Will the Globe Trotter's official bee catchers get over there as soon as possible?

* * *

Now that school is nearing its close is the time to mention some outstanding records made by the younger "Globe Trotters" in their scholastic activities.

Anthony Kozel, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kozel, Georges Township, near Uniontown, is 16 years of age, has completed his second year of high school, and for the last 11 years has never missed a day.

New Type Funster Sought

By AIRCASTER

Oracles of the network production departments are saying so, hence it must be true that, before the summer is over, a new type of radio comedian—one who works at a slower pace—will have been established to set a vogue in the autumn.

While it isn't the production department, usually, which selects comedians, but sponsors, the chain officials believe the time has come for more experimentation and sampling. They plan to put the funny men in sustaining spots with plenty of leverage for developing the new technique.

Next year's successful jester, it is promised, won't be a performer who indulges in crossfire with a subdued straight man, overwhelming him with puns and thrusts, as in the cases of Ed Wynn, Burns and Allen, Joe Penner, Jack Pearl and Stoopnagle and Budd. Nor will he be the fellow who, within the limits of a broadcast, gets into and out of "situations," as happens with Jack Benny, Easy Aces, Fred Allen and others.

The new comic will be a hard-working master of ceremonies, who will knit a variety show together, performing in the intervals and introducing blackouts, occasional dialect and perhaps burlesque drama.

Columbia is thus experimenting with George Jessel, and they say the public response has been mighty. George Givot will have a similar fling beginning, as predicted here tonight. East and Dumke are revising their scripts along this line, and the idea likewise appeals to Joe Penner, who is just beginning to realize how the strain of radio can burn up a funster.

* * *

Fannie May Baldridge is the girl who plays the southern lass in "Conflict," the radio serial. In the most recent episode she functioned as a resident of territory in Southern Tennessee, at the time a railroad was being cut through.

When that very railroad actually was cut through, T. S. Stribling, who authored the radio story, was aboard the trailblazing train. As it stopped in the little hamlet, a little girl from the village skipped in and passed out fried chicken sandwiches. She was Fannie May Baldridge.

Mail Delivery Force To Be Augmented

The postoffice delivery force in the Pittsburgh district will be increased July 1 when two mail deliveries daily will be inaugurated, according to Postmaster William M. Turner. Substitute employes will be given regular positions, he said. The increased service is the result of a survey recently ordered by Postmaster General James A. Farley in 25 large centers of the country.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

Tugwell Value Put At Two Marshals, One Collector

WASHINGTON, June 8.—This is a correction. A few days ago the inside news was carried in this space that the White House would not deal with Senator Smith to get the Tugwell nomination through the Senate. An apology is due all readers.

All parties to the deal still deny that one was made. The public record contains only circumstantial evidence. The apology stands anyway. Here is the evidence:

For weeks Senator Smith bottled up the Tugwell nomination in his Senate Agricultural Committee. He was adamant. Recently, he and his South Carolina colleague, Senator Byrnes, were invited to the White House together. Shortly thereafter President Roosevelt named three Smith men to federal positions in South Carolina. Twenty-four hours later the administration started to extract the Tugwell nomination from Smith's committee and, while Smith protested, he did not protest too much.

You cannot keep skeptics from believing that Smith eased his punch against Prof. Tugwell for two United States marshals and a collector of customs.

PRICE

The only question among the politicians is whether the White House overpaid Senator Smith. Some think Prof. Tugwell's value as assistant secretary of agriculture could be traded in open patronage market today for no more than a second-class postmastership.

Good friends of the administration know that such suggestions are merely sour grapes in the mouths of Prof. Tugwell's critics. Mr. Roosevelt would gladly have given a federal judgeship or even two judgships, if necessary, to get Tugwell confirmed by the Senate. At least, that is the view of the Tugwell defenders.

However, for two marshals and a collector, Smith could hardly be expected to back down completely in his opposition to Prof. Tugwell. Matters had to be arranged so that he could maintain his opposition with reasonable vigor.

That angle has to be considered when you are talking about the price.

LIENS

Other extenuating circumstances also will have to be considered. There were four South Carolina jobs open when Senators Smith and Byrnes were beckoned by the White House.

The best job was a federal judgeship. Byrnes had a man for that one, Frank K. Meyers, who was ardently opposed by Smith. Mr. Roosevelt gave that job to the Byrnes man.

The three jobs which you can fairly say Smith won were: William Burgeson, United States marshal, whom Byrnes also liked; Reuben Gosnell, United States marshal, whom Smith demanded and Byrnes did not oppose, and Charles J. Baker, collector of customs, a Smith man opposed by Byrnes, who had another candidate for the job.

Deducting the federal judgeship from the purchasing price, you can easily see it was really not so high after all.

SALVE

The inside on this mutual arrangement is offered in detail because it is the best example of quite a few less obvious ones which are being made in these closing days of Congress.

The truth of the matter is that the opposing factions are swapping favors right and left to gain their points. It is nothing unusual. In politics, if you want to take, you also have to give. Especially when Congress is closing and time is valuable.

There is, for another instance, the delicate matter of the administration housing bill. It would be an insult to the political intelligence of Chairman Steagall of the banking committee to say he is going to uncork his stopper on that bill unless he gets something on the side.

Mr. Steagall has feelings. Strong feelings as far as the housing bill is concerned. He failed even to hold hearings on it for a long time. His feelings must be salved. Patronage is the strongest salve ever invented in politics. It heals all wounds.

¶ GIVEN AN ELEPHANT IN RUN DOWN CONDITION, A DEFICIT OF $203,000., A NEW CREED, AND WHEAT AT $1.00 A BUSHEL, HOW IS THE QUICKEST WAY TO RAISE ONE MILLION DOLLARS AND FIVE MILLION VOTES—NOT COUNTING "JIM" WATSON'S OR MR HOOVER'S?

THAT PROBLEM IS NOT UNLIKE THE ONE THE DEMOCRATS HAD A FEW YEARS AGO.

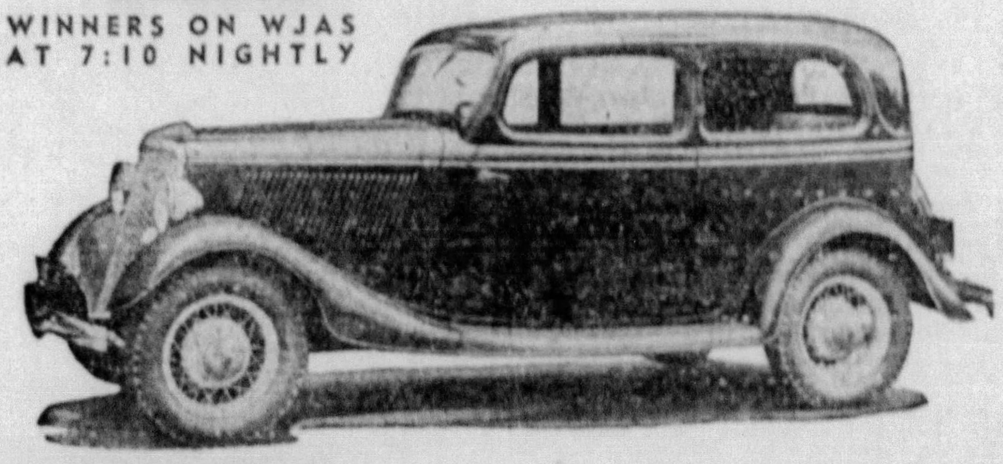
A MESSAGE ADDRESSED TO ALL THOSE INTERESTED IN THE BOGGS AND BUHL ANNIVERSARY FORD CONTEST

FINAL WEEK MONDAY

12 FORD V-8s TO BE GIVEN AWAY 2 EACH DAY

UNTIL JUNE 16th

WINNERS ON WJAS AT 7:10 NIGHTLY



STORE OPEN TONIGHT (Saturday) UNTIL 9

Entries Will be Accepted Up Until the Closing Bell at Nine O'Clock Tonight.

SPECIAL FULL COURSE DINNER 5 to 8:30—65c

(PLEASE READ CAREFULLY)

Our contest has run seven days. Fourteen (14) cars have been awarded. There are 14 cars yet to be awarded. The names of successful contestants are posted each day on a bulletin board in our Ford salon. They have been announced over Station WJAS each evening at 7:10 P. M.

Our experiences in the contest to date disclose facts that we believe should be brought to the public's attention. We list below "DON'TS" for those who have, and are still continuing to enter blanks that do not comply with the rules. We also list "Questions Answered" about points that we are constantly asked to answer.

Your QUESTIONS Answered!

1. YES, EVERY BLANK IS CAREFULLY READ. (We have hired one of the outstanding organizations of the country to handle this work for us—the International Business Machine Corporation).
2. Every contestant has an equal opportunity.
3. Entry blanks need not be deposited the day you make a purchase. You can take them home and bring them back any day you desire to enter the contest.
4. They can be typed, or filled in with ink, crayon or pencil.
5. THIS IS NOT A LOTTERY. The numbers on entry blanks have nothing to do with awards.
6. Each dollar of purchase entitles you to one entry blank. Individual purchases may be accumulated and entry blanks will be given you for your total purchases in dollars.
7. Positively no information on the contest will be given out over the telephone.
8. Your entry blank must be DATED the day you deposit it to compete for that day's awards. It is not considered after that day.
9. Large Bulletin boards are in the Ford Salon—Basement. They give you all facts necessary for a thorough understanding of this contest. Please read them.

DON'TS

1. Don't drop entry blanks in the ballot boxes without answering Question 1—"Why is the Ford V-8 the most economical car to operate?" Answers to this question are the basis of awards each day.
2. DON'T answer Question 1 and then FORGET TO SIGN YOUR NAME. We have no way of knowing entrants other than by their names.
3. DON'T enter fifty blanks (one individual did) all with the same answer to Question 1. You have passed up forty-nine opportunities if you do. Get in as many different specific answers as you can.
4. Don't forget Question 1 asks a specific question. Answer that question specifically. Poetry, cartoons, slogans, trick arrangements, etc., are not considered.
5. DON'T forget to answer questions on the back of entry blank. While your answers to these questions have no bearing on awards, they must be answered for your entry to qualify.
6. Don't think your answers to Question 1 are not read carefully. THEY ARE. If you cannot write plainly and legibly help us by Printing your answer.
7. Don't think it is impossible to answer in fifty words. It is quite simple and quite easy to do.

Today will be the biggest and the last day of the Allegheny Country Club show, being held in the show ring, atop Sewickley Heights.

Hunt teams, championships, children and parent and polo classes will be featured; yesterday there were many popular children's classes.

There will be children's classes today, of course, too, and there were more children at the show this morning than during the preceding two days, the tiniest ones with their nursemaids. And everyone had a rain cape or trench coat as protection from the rain in the morning, and those who braved the elements to leave the grandstand and stand around the ring carried umbrellas.

Mrs. David Mead Gilmore Present in Riding Clothes

Mrs. David Mead Gilmore was in riding clothes as were Alice Walton, Miss Margaret Coulter, Stella Coulter and Mrs. Morgan B. Schiller, who wore a white raincape over her riding togs.

In the Robinson box were Mrs. W. C. Robinson, in a navy blue suit with white accessories; Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, in a white raincoat with a white hat, and W. C. Robinson, Jr.

Mrs. Ledlie Young wore a yellow cotton frock barred in brown. The David I. McCahills were in a box, with Mrs. McCahill in peach crepe with a brown coat and brown straw hat.

Martha Mitchell Yost, who arrived late yesterday afternoon, looked cool in a white crepe dress having a blue belt and pleated, short sleeves. Mary Elizabeth Floyd wore white boucle and Margaret Holdship was in a green knitted frock with a checked coat of beige and brown.

Mrs. Herbert A. May Wears Red Dress With Touches of White

I noticed Mrs. Herbert A. May chatting with Louise Reed. Mrs. May wore a red dress with touches of white and a white hat with red band. Mrs. B. F. Jones, III, chose a white silk jersey frock with the blue belt appliqued with three amusing white and red elephants.

Peach crepe was the choice of Mrs. David Mead Gilmore; daffodil yellow crepe that of Virginia Frew Wright, who was there with her cousin, Emily Frew, in white crepe. They both wore wide brimmed panama hats. Mrs. Thomas C. Wurts was in an orange colored knitted linen string two-piece dress with which she wore a smart coarse brown straw hat.

Chatting with some of the riders waiting to enter the ring were Virginia Drake and Ruth Willock, with Virginia in sunny yellow crepe with a brown and white checkered jacket and Ruth in a swagger ensemble of honey-beige wool with a dark red and black striped blouse. I saw young Anne and Augusta Jones in a box with Alice Painter.

Striped Pink and White Jersey Worn By Mrs. William A. Gordon III

Mrs. William A. Gordon, III, wore a cool pink and white striped silk jersey sports dress, and Mrs. Putnam Goldsbury was in flax blue boucle.

White crepe with a blue hat formed the costume of attractive Georgiana Collin, and pale blue ribbed silk that of blonde Laura Childs. Martha Jane Oliver and Althea Robinson were in riding clothes as were Miss Margaret Coulter and Stella Coulter.

Ribbed cotton knit in hydrangea pink with a pink hat was the choice of Mrs. William D. George, Jr., seated in a box with her mother, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., who wore a white linen suit with a Corsair blue scarf and white hat.

In a white linen suit with a blue and white scarf and white hat was Mrs. Wiliam Penn Snyder, Jr., and Mrs. Maitland Alexander was in pale blue crepe with a blue and white checked jacket and white hat.

With Rosamound Fitch was her fiance, F. E. Richardson, Jr. Rosamound was in yellow crepe with a brown velvet coat. A boucle dress, the skirt of which was turquoise blue and the bodice mellon pink, was worn by Marie McCahill.

In a box was Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson in a dark blue knitted cotton dress with a white linen jacket, with her two little boys, who matched her costume with their sweaters of blue and white horizontal stripes. I saw Mrs. George Phelps Rose, too.

Mrs. A. Rex Flinn's dress was of white knitted string. And I noticed young Jane Stevenson, in riding clothes, who rode in the show and ever and ever so many more who augmented the crowd of spectators before the afternoon was over.

* * *

The horse-show will not be a magnet today for Marion Kathryn Becker, daughter of the Fred K. Beckers, of Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, and Drew Johnston, of Pittsburgh and Palm Beach, son of the Drew Johnstons, of Palm Beach and Oskosh, Wis., formerly of Pittsburgh, or for their friends and families.

Will Be Married Today at One Of Season's Most Attractive Weddings

For they will be married this afternoon at one of the season's most attractive weddings, to take place in Trinity Cathedral at 5:30 o'clock with Dean N. R. High Moor officiating.

The charming bride will wear a picturesque gown of mousseline de soie, fashioned with a square neck-line and having a deep ruffle around the bottom of the skirt and around the train, too. The long sleeves will be cut into points over the wrists, and will be puffed quaintly at the shoulder.

Buttons of the same material will decorate the back of the bodice. And the gown will have a sash, tying in back. Her veil will cascade from a crown of stiffened real lace, and she will carry white orchids and lilies of the valley.

All her attendants will wear white organdie gowns having velvet sashes tied at the left in back, and having ruffles at the bottom of the skirts. And tucked organdie of the same color will form a high-neckline in front, and cross in back. They will all wear white organdie hats with velvet bows tieing at the left.

Maid of Honor Will Carry Boquet Of Larkspur and Delphinium

The maid of honor, whose sash will be white, will carry an all-blue bouquet of larkspur and delphinium and blue lace flowers. The bridesmaids, whose gowns will have blue velvet sashes and hats with blue velvet trimming, will carry the same flowers with sprays of white spring flowers.

Jane Golden, of Cumberland, Md., will be maid of honor; Mrs. Phil Sawyer, Jr., of Oskosh, Wis.; Mary Boucherle, Youngstown; Maryjane Morley, Philadelphia, and Helen Louise Garman, Pittsburgh, will be the bridesmaids.

Phil Sawyer, Jr., will be the best man, and Fred Becker, Jr., brother of the bride; Cooper Lightman, Washington; Bud Hoffman and George Bond, of Pittsburgh, ushers. The reception will be at the Becker home.

The mother of the bride will wear rose beige chiffon and chantilly lace with a matching straw hat, and the mother of the bridegroom, yellow crepe with brown accessories.

Fred K. Becker, Jr., gave the rehearsal dinner last night in the St. Clair Country Club.

Kappa Alpha Theta Closes Season

Pittsburgh alumnae of Kappa Alpha Theta are closing the year with a luncheon and bridge at the Edgewood Country Club today. Miss Evangeline Koenig, chairman of the meeting, is assisted by Mrs. C. E. Skinner, Mrs. L. A. Rust, Mrs. H. L. Lessig, Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Jr., Mrs. Harold Kennedy, Miss Helen McLeod, Miss Marion Lindsay, Miss Mary Porter Boss, Miss Florence Dutney, Mrs. R. N. Weibel and Mrs. James C. Murray.

Jenny A. Bobby Is Married in Her Home

At a pretty home ceremony at 9 o'clock yesterday, the marriage of Miss Jenny Agnes Bobby and Gabriel O. Wessenauer was solemnized by the Rev. Clair O. Dufford, of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Sewickley, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bobby, of Sewickley, before the fireplace of the living room, which was embanked with cibotium ferns with candelabra on either side.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Wessenauer, of Sewickley. He is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin dress, trimmed in alencon lace, and a veil of tulle cascading from a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

College Club Programs Listed

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A program of summer events, full of all sorts of delightful possibilities, has been planned by the College Club. The Sunday night buffet suppers will be continued, the second Sunday evening of each month being set aside for this. Supper is served from 6 until 7 o'clock but there will be no program as was customary during the winter.

Membership luncheons are to continue also, these being held on the second and fourth Tuesdays. For program next week Mrs. Edith B. Maine will contrast Thomas Hardy's, "The Return of the Native" with "The Native's Return," Louis Adamic's recent publication.

On the first and third Tuesday of each month the social committee, under Mrs. George S. Rine's chairmanship, will have informal bridge teas. An event of special interest for the entire membership will be the garden party on June 22 which Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, the new president, will give at "Stone Gables," her home in Churchill road. Mrs. George M. Swan, whom Mrs. Rohrer succeeded in office, is to be the guest of honor.

The club will sponsor the pop concert at the Hotel Schenley on June 29 and that evening Carolyn Hunt Mahaffey, a member of the club, will be soloist with the orchestra. Mrs. Joseph Hunt Bowman is heading the committee for this activity.

July 11 has been selected as the date for another club picnic at "The Log Cabin," Mrs. Kenneth R. Cunningham's summer home on Dorseyville road.

Hannah Winter, Dr. Kooser Married

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the rose room of the Penn Albert Hotel, Greensburg, Miss Hannah Winter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winter, Pine street, Irwin, became the bride of Dr. John H. Kooser, of Hyden, Ky., son of Mrs. Sue Kooser, of Manor, Pa.

The Rev. R. C. Eroh, pastor of the First Reformed Church, of Manor, read the marriage service. Only members of the immediate families were present.

The bride, unattended, wore a gown of poudre blue crepe with dark blue accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of roses.

Dr. Kooser and his bride left later by motor for Hyden, Ky., where they will make their home. Dr. Kooser is medical director of the Frontier Nursing Service in Hyden.

Mrs. Kooser was a former teacher in the Norwin High School. She is a graduate of Goucher College, Baltimore, Md. Mr. Kooser is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, and the University of Cincinnati Medical School.

Helen Arnot Wilson To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Arnot Wilson, of Fox Chapel road, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Arnot Wilson, to James Moore Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Houston, of Murrayhill avenue.

Marion R. Way, R. C. Scheib Married

Miss Marion R. Way, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Way, of Marie avenue, and Robert C. Scheib, of Hemlock street, were married at the home of the bride's parents Thursday.

Miss Doris Custer, of Wilkinsburg, and Roy Gibson, Jr., of New Castle, were the attendants. The Rev. O. H. Milligan of the United Presbyterian Church, officiated.

The bride is a graduate of Westminster College and the bridegroom of Carnegie Tech.

Following a reception for the immediate families they left for a short auto trip and will be at home after June 15 in Josephine street, Avalon.

MARCELLA ELM HONORED

Miss Marcella E. Elm, of Lowrie street, entertained recently in her home for Miss Eleanor B. Ziegler, of Troy Hill, who will marry Joseph A. Hart, of Penn avenue, Wednesday, June 20, at 9 o'clock in the morning in Most Holy Name Church, Troy Hill.

Miss Teresa Ziegler, sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Pauline Schmidt will be bridesmaids, and Miss Marcella Elm, maid of honor.

Regis Hart, brother of the bridegroom-elect; Tom Rife, E. Ziegler, brother of the bride-elect, and E. Matthews will be the men of the bridal party.

Peppy Girls' Club Dinner Tonight

The Peppy Girls' Club of the East End will open its summer social season with a dinner in the Roosevelt Hotel tonight. Miss Ida Schaltenbrand will be chairman.

Margaret Hykes Engaged to Wed

At an informal party in their home last night, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hykes, of Sixth street, Oakmont, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Hykes, to Joseph Harvey Tomlinson, also of Oakmont. They are planning a September wedding.

Mrs. Brinker Entertains

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Brinker, Savannah avenue, Wilkinsburg, entertained a group of women from the Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Brushton, and the Second St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Pittsburgh, at a bridge and 500 party Wednesday afternoon in her home.

Hilda Mae Dugan Will Marry on June 27

Miss Hilda Mae Dugan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Dugan, has chosen June 27 as the date for her marriage to Stanley J. Lidzus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lidzus.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father at the ceremon which will take place in St. Kieran's Roman Catholic Church at 9 o'clock.

Miss Rita McCambridge will be the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Marie Nowrocki and Miss Gertrude Leadergerber.

Bernard W. Dugan, Jr., brother of the bride-elect, is to be the best man, and Michael Lidzus, brother of the bridegroom-elect, will be usher.

Carolina Hughes, to be flower girl, and Charles Dugan, ring-bearer, are both cousins of the bride-elect.

The wedding music and mass will be played by Miss Margaret Kernan. After the wedding reception, the bride and bridegroom will leave for an eastern honeymoon.

Norcross Club Luncheon Planned

The Norcross Club's summer luncheon meeting will be an event of Monday in the Highland Country Club. Mrs. Charles W. McCrea, of Aspinwall, is taking reservations for the luncheon.

Lacovin Club Will Hold Dance

The Lacovin Club will hold a dance at the Willows, Oakmont, Wednesday evening, with Miss Kathryn Rosen, Morningside avenue, as chairman.

Dorothy Sautter A Bride Since Wednesday

At a pretty home wedding, Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Sautter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sautter, of Valencia, Pa., and William Graham Mehaffey were married Wednesday evening by the Rev. Clarence T. Miller before an embankment of ferns and flowers forming an arch. Candleabra were placed on either side.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white organza and carried bride's roses. Miss Olga Nixon as the bride's only attendant, appeared in peach point d'esprit, and carried garden flowers.

Dr. James Boggs Mehaffey was his brother's best man. Mrs. Lee W. Hoovler, sister of the bridegroom, furnished the wedding music. A wedding supper followed with covers laid for 10 at the bridal table. The remaining guests were served on the spacious lawns of the Sautter home.

The bride is a graduate of Indiana State Teachers' College, and the bridegroom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mehaffey, of Valencia, is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, School of Business Administration.

After a northern trip, Mr. Mehaffey and his bride will be home July 1 in Mars, Pa.

'GIRL IN THE FAMILY' :-: Torn Between Loyalty and Love, Which Does Susan Choose? :-: By Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER VI

Susan wondered what John would say when he found out that they were actually going to take one of the people of the district into the house. By no stretch of her imagination could she picture a roomer living with them, leaving his umbrella in the tall Satsuma vase that had been used as an umbrella stand ever since Grandfather Broderick sent it home from the Orient 30 years before, or sitting on the stone porch on hot nights next summer. That is, if he stayed until next summer.

The house simply was not the kind of house that took in roomers, she went on thinking, her gray eyes, clear as gray crystals, going around the room. It was old and ugly, true enough, but there was solid richness in the cut-glass chandeliers, the garnet-colored damask curtains at the tall windows, the oil paintings that hung on the walls in heavy gold leaf frames.

"Why do we have to rent this room upstairs? Have we become so horribly poor all at once?" she asked suddenly, "And if we have—"

"You know just how desperate things are with us, Susan!" Lutie broke in sharply. "You know what happened to you and me in Hart's store today. We simply don't have any ready money at all these days."

"We haven't had any to speak of for years," Aunt Edna's voice chimed in. "But the thing that made your uncle decide to rent part of the house was a letter that he got from Mapes this morning. One of the tenants is going to move on the first, and the others want their rent cut . . . Worthy says he'll have to cut it."

Paying Guest

Mapes was the janitor of The Broderick Arms. He came to Center street once a month to help Anna wash windows and woodwork, and every Saturday afternoon he went downtown to clean the law office of Susan's father, Morris Broderick.

"Too bad we can't rent the roomer a suite in The Arms," Aunt Edna added. "He'd find more of his own kind of people down there, I imagine. Worthy says that everybody in the place works in the steel mills or the stockyards near there."

Outside the hall Susan could hear her uncle bidding the stranger goodby in his loud voice. Then there came the sound of the front door closing, and a minute afterward he came pounding into the parlor.

"Well, girls, the dire deed is didden, and our paying guest moves in tomorrow!" He was rubbing his hands together, more full of Big Business than usual, Susan thought with an inward giggle. "Said the room was just what he wanted, and paid me the first week's money for it! He's going to bring some of his things over tonight."

"I should think he would say that the room was just what he wanted!" Aunt Edna burst forth. "A great big room like that and a bathroom all to himself for six paltry dollars a week!" She shook her head angrily as if it made her furious to think of anyone getting such a bargain.

"What is he? A common workman, Worthy?"

Uncle Worthy put his head to one side and made a clicking noise with his tongue. "Well, I think not, Edna. He had on a white collar and he spoke like a man of some education. Young fellow. Name's Sholes."

Told About Door

"I hope you spoke to him about using the side door."

"Well, I threw out a broad hint or two." Uncle Worthy teetered back and forth on his heels, his back to the fireplace. "I told him that we bolted the front door every night when we went to bed, and that we went to bed early. I said he'd have to come in at the side door if it was late, and I gave him the key to it as well as the front door key. I think we won't have much trouble about that."

Susan got up from her chair and faced them all. "Why do we go through all this agony for six dollars a week when we don't have to?" she asked. "We pay Anna eight, don't we? And we have to feed her, too. If we let her go and did the housework ourselves we'd be saving more than six a week. And you know this roomer business will never work out. We'll all hate it—"

"Well, we're not going to let Anna go," Aunt Edna answered so firmly and promptly that Susan suspected she had been thinking of discharging her herself. "We've come down far enough in the world already without doing that. Besides, Susan, things are bound to pick up presently, and we'll have some money again. Rents always go up in the spring. And when they do we many be able to let this man go."

"You may depend upon it that there's always a maid to answer the doorbell in other houses where Wallace Steffen goes to call," said Lutie, arching one eyebrow at Susan. "Besides we never could do the housework without Anna. We're busy from morning to night, as it is."

Tasks Divided

That was hardly the case, however. Between them Susan and Anna did practically all of the housework.

"The most embarrassing part of having a guest in the house is explaining him to people," Lutie mused after a minute or two of silence. "I suppose Wallace will wonder who on earth the strange man is, dashing in and out of the place, as if it belonged to him. What are you going to tell him, Susan?"

"The truth," Susan said simply. "It's silly to try to hide things like that from people. They always find them out, anyway."

"If the man uses the side door Wallace will never have to see him," Aunt Edna pointed out. "Don't say anything, Susan, unless you have to."

From the back of the house a gong sounded and she got to her feet with amazing swiftness for so heavy a woman. She was always in a hurry to get to her meals and she swept out of the room and down the hall, her taffeta skirts rustling around her.

Susan's father and John were standing at the door of the dining room. They had just come in from outdoors together, and Morris Broderick's dark face was full of color, whipped there by the wind. Presently it would fade, leaving him sallow like Lutie and Uncle Worthy. He was like them, and yet he was not like them. He had their heavy body, but there was nothing heavy and settled in the expression of his face. There was a twinkle in his eye, and a certain larky air about him.

Visits Widow

One or two nights a week he stayed out for dinner, and the family knew that he spent those evenings with a widow who was one of his clients—a Mrs. Ada Hopper. His office was far downtown near the High Level Bridge, and he left the house at half past nine sharp every morning like a man with a large and important business to look after.

He could never be reached at his office after 1 o'clock and he made no secret of the fact that he usually lunched at his club, the Hermit Club, and spent the rest of the afternoon each day playing bridge there with his cronies. "Contact with people—that's the thing that counts in the business and professional world," he often said to John. "Friendship with people. That's what brings in the business." He had practically no business at all. Not even enough to pay a stenographer's wages in his little cubbyhole of an office.

John was nothing like him. He and Susan both looked like their dead mother, whose name had been Susan Cullen before her marriage to their father. She had died when they were children, and it had been their lot to grow up in a household of middle-aged people who knew very little about children.

They had been reared on "Dont's" mainly.

"Don't raise your butter knife more than a half inch from the plate when you're using it, Susan—"

New Roomer

"Who was the man that Dad and I met just outside the house a minute ago?" John asked as they all sat down at the large round table in the middle of the dining room.

"That must have been our new roomer," Susan shook out the folds of her napkin as she spoke. Aunt Edna still insisted that they all have clean napkins at every meal just as they had had them in the palmy days when there had been a resident laundress in the house, and Susan often spent an entire morning standing at the board in the basement, ironing piece after piece of worn damask linen.

"We've just rented Grandfather Broderick's room to a man," she added.

"To a paying guest—a man who won't be a bit of trouble, I'm sure," said Lutie, smiling across the table with her air of determined cheerfulness. "Let's not say 'roomer,' Susan. It sounds like Pigtail Alley." She stopped abruptly as Anna came in for the empty soup plates. The family never discussed their private affairs before Anna, but she managed to know everything that was going on in the house nevertheless.

She had come to work for the Brodericks 11 years before, a girl of 19, just arrived from her native Sweden, pink cheeked, fresh, blue-eyed and yellow hair. She was stouter now, and the years she had spent fetching and carrying and cooking for the family had hardened the color in her cheeks and robbed her of a great deal of her freshness. But she was still handsome in a large blond deep-bosomed way, and Herbst, the milkman, had been in love with her for a long time.

"Well, this roomer business settles one thing for me," John said slowly and deliberately as soon as she had carried the dinner plates around the table and left the room. "I'm not going back to school after Christmas. I'm through with it, for good. When we reach the point where we have to take roomers, it's time I got a steady job and earned some money. Enough to pay my own board here, at least —Good gosh! A roomer!"

He had had a part-time position on The Express, the city's one evening newspaper, for three years, writing college news and sports. With his earnings he had paid his way at college and bought his own clothes. His father and his uncle had wanted him to study for the law, but for months he had been threatened to leave school and get a full-time job on the sporting page of The Express, explaining simply that the practice of law was his idea of zero in careers.

Synopsis

Susan Broderick and her aunt, Lutie, who had seen more prosperous times, order a pillow at Hart's department store where the family had a charge account for years. They are summoned to the office of the manager, Mr. Dillon, who informs them the account has been discontinued as it had not been paid for five months. Susie and Lutie leave in embarrassment. Lutie goes home by trolley but Susan prefers to walk. En route the latter meets her fiance, Wallace Sieffen, rising young banker. Susan and Wallace are distinctively different types; he is the sheltered, meticulous type while she is the kind who loves to walk in the rain and go without gloves in the winter. Susan realizes that, while her future life with Wallace will not be thrilling, it will be comfortable. Tender-hearted Susan shows little enthusiasm when Wallace plans to inspect a house which the present owners are forced to sell because of financial reverses. In her room, Susan reflects on her feelings toward Wallace. She is not certain she loves him. However, she feels she is engaged and everything is settled; besides, it would be a relief to get away from the drab, old house she shared with her father, Morris Broderick; Brother John, Uncle Worthy, his wife Edna, and Aunt Lutie. Years ago, their home had been the show place of the city.
place of the city. Once proud family forced to take in paying guest.

Now Go On

CATCHING STYLES FROM HOT COUNTRIES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE SUNNY side is up in styles for this summer. We have snitched designs from every country that is famous for sizzling days and jasmine nights, jumbled them up cheerfully to suit ourselves, and got some very swell results.

Hawaii has given up her lei, the Philippines' big puffed sleeves are with us, the Cuban guajiro has lost his shirt to us and lent us his belle's ruffled rhumba skirt, there are little bits of Spain in daytime and evening models. Mexican hats and colors are rife. Guatemalan prints are no novelty, models in organza copied after the gowns of our own Dixie belles are very popular, we all wear espadrillas with our sand suits, and the shorts and shirts of the British male in the tropics is a favorite female sports costume of the moment.

* * *

IT LOOKS very much as if the perennial burning question ("shall we burn to a tan, or keep lily fair in the shade?") is answered 100 per cent in the affirmative.

It is a fact that these dresses are most effective when worn over a nicely browned skin. White, especially, is set off by a tan, and a riotous frock like the one sketched center above would be a total eclipse on a pink and white Dresden doll.

* * *

IT IS A simple thing to acquire an even mahogany in this day and age without going through a painful parboiling performance first. There are oils and lotions which prepare all but the most sensitive skins for the sun, and there is a long list of powders, rouges, lipsticks and what have you in the cosmetics line to enhance the exact shade of skin that you achieve as a sun-worshiper.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

The high colors of Mexico are used to paint the organza used for the dance frock at center, its blouse like the Cuban guajira shirt; the skirt ruffles are a rhumba touch.

There is more than a dash of the Old South in the white organza model sketched immediately left. The puffed sleeves and the pointed bodice are quite ante-bellum and so is the ruffled skirt hem. But the molded line above the hem is 1934 and so is the touch of electric blue that edges the flutings. The matching wrist muff bears a big, white lotus flower.

JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

Now for some more suggestions, fellows.

Yesterday we published a letter from the Butler patrol secretary telling us that we hadn't made enough suggestions for Junior Patrol activity.

And we answered that we could make many more suggestions than we do if more Junior Patrol secretaries and captains would write and tell us about their patrols—what they are doing, what plans they have, what parties they have, how they help others, and everything.

Best of all, we like to hear about a Junior Patrol club doing something good. We know a bunch of fellows who built their own tennis court—leveled the ground, put up the net posts and built backstops too. But that is a big thing to do.

For smaller patrols we suggest that you plan a picnic. Maybe you could get all the children in your neighborhood to picnic with you, too, and could have a "tournament."

A tournament today ought to be running races, or seeing how many peas you can carry on a knife, and how often you can throw a ball into a basket out of 10 tries, and other similar games and contests. The prize could be a chocolate bar or an ice cream cone.

We know some girls who have what they call geography parties too. When they meet at each other's houses, they pick out the country they are going to "visit" beforehand. Each member wears a costume like the people from that country.

For instance, they all wear French costumes, or English dresses. Then they have a program all about the country they are "visiting." Each member must read about it beforehand so that she can describe the buildings and another the geography and another what the country produces and so on. The refreshments are the kinds of foods the people in that country eat. You can easily get books telling all about most any country.

We will make some more suggestions tomorrow.

President to Turn Congressmen Into Landscape Artists

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Trouble with citizens these days is that they refuse to watch or listen to the men who are trying to help them.

The NRA was more or less a sporting proposition. It was an appeal to fair play. The surest way to have put it over would have been to put baseball uniforms on Congress and a jockey cap on Gen. Johnson.

By the way, President Roosevelt says he has only two more messages for Congress. They are about waterfalls and trees. That will turn the Senators into landscape gardeners.

Increase in Arrests Laid to Heat Wave

TOPEKA, Kan., June 9.—(AP.)—Abnormal June heat was blamed today by Police Judge William Steinrauf for the large amount of business brought before his court in the last few days.

Noting an increase in cases he classified as neighborhood quarrels, the judge gave all of this type a blanket continuance in the hopes the weather would moderate. In the event the heat continues and the defendants fail to overcome the climatic handicap, the judge promised jail sentences for all.

Girl Finished With Men After Lovers' Spat

"SWEET SIXTEEN," just a pretty, sentimental age when love should be budding, and when romance and glamor should be all about us, as the stars shine over us at night, and the roses cluster along the fence during the daytime.

And yet one Speak Up, Sister, says she is all fed up on the men. She has loved deeply, and quarreled, and life is in the YELLOW LEAF.

Dear Miss Brunot:

Although I am only 16, I have always had my eyesight, and have come right up against a serious problem. I have always been older than my years, because of the influence of older sisters. When I was 15, I met a young man five years older than I, and he gave me one grand rush. I never had gone steadily with a boy, and when he came along he certainly took up all of my evenings. I like him well enough, but he insisted upon keeping steady company.

Miss Brunot

'THROUGH' FOR GOOD

I did not believe in this on account of my age, and so I went with other boys. But did not enjoy myself. Because I kept thinking of him. And one day he saw me with another boy, and quarreled. And I told him never to come back.

After two weeks he appeared again, and then we renewed our quarrel. Now we're through for good. And yet I just can't forget him.

I am growing morbid. I live in a small town and am not interested in anybody else. I have had a few dates since, but they have not been satisfactory. Instead of my life being filled with pleasure, I have a disgusted viewpoint of the opposite sex. I still haven't found anyone to take this fellow's place. He is now going steadily with another girl and treating her in the same princely manner he treated me.

Maybe you'll tell me to take up sports, as you did someone else. But I am a good swimmer and diver, and love all outdoor exercise. My question is, will I ever meet another boy to fill this old friend's place?

MAUREEN.

Of course you will meet another boy to take this old flame's place . . . There are many fine boys, and I imagine some of them can be found in your own home town, no matter how small it is. It does seem this young man filled the desire in him for another girl very rapidly. And again, he may be trying to SHOW you that he can . . .

MAY BE GIRL'S FAULT

Perhaps, you and he will make up your spat . . . Such things do happen. You see, the quarrel may have been your fault as much as his . . . and he may feel he cannot make advances first . . . For then you will think everything is on your side, and you will take advantage of him.

It always seems too bad to separate, when each of the young people are really interested. Of course you are very young, and all this love you imagine you feel, may be based upon fancy . . . such things happen in life when one is your age, sister.

Here is another 16-year-old girl . . . She signs herself LONESOME SALLY . . . It does seem that upon such lovely early summer days as these which we are having, that such youthful sisters shouldn't have isolated hearts.

The very air throbs with the spring element of a good time . . . So much pleasure is waking up about us. Parks are opening . . . The long roads lead out for the motorist. Front porches are all decked up in awnings and swings and new floor mats . . . and all these spell a good time.

FIND ANOTHER FELLOW

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 16, and still going to school. I am in love with a fellow. I see him a lot, but do not go with him. He knows that I like him, but does not say anything to me about it. I have been living near him for a year. He has no steady girl friend. He is 22 years af age.

His sister is on my side, and says she will arrange things. He has gone away for awhile, now. I wrote him a letter. But he never answered it. I get lonesome, sitting at home Sundays.

I will be looking for my letter.

LONESOME SALLY.

Try and find some other fellow nearer your own age. Lonesome Sally. A young man of 22 may have other interests, for he may like older girls. Do not write to him again, until he answers your letter. Go out with other girl friends, and do not sit and mope in the house . . . there are many things to do, if you but look about for them.

GIVE HIM UP

Dear Miss Brunot:

A year ago I met a boy named Bob, and fell in love with him. He lived close to me, and came up steady for almost a year. Then he would find someone else he liked, and after a time, came back to me again. Of course, I always took him back. And toward the end, he was true. So again we went steady for a while. He recently moved, and promised never to forget me, now he makes dates, and breaks them. Then he comes back, as always. What shall I do? M. R. B.

I am sorry, but I must tell you to give up this boy. He is too unsettled in his mind. Such shilly-shallying as he does should be tolerated by no level-headed girl. There are other young men who will like you, and be more logical in their courtship.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

MISS AMERICA SEES WASHINGTON, D. C.---NO. 8 -o- -o- By NELL BRINKLEY

THE FIRST LADY'S FAMOUS MONDAY MORNING PRESS CONFERENCE

To their book of "Thrills and Memories" Sally and Sue and Sylvia red-headed, blondie and dark-black—have added a new picture. It is called "Close-up of Mrs. Roosevelt's Famous Monday Conference with the Women of the Press."

Now neither Sue, Sylvia nor Sally can draw a picture any more than they can walk a tight-rope, so they got me to make the picture. But they went as newspaper women, so the story is theirs. Marie Gasch loaned them copy-paper; Corinne Frazer fished some extra pencils from her brown bag and gave them a wink of her bright brown eye. Emily Blair contributed an eraser (a real Lady of the Press doesn't use one!), and Margaret Keating and Genevie Herrick whispered timely advice.

* * *

Mrs. Roosevelt receives the newspaper women at the door of her sitting-room, beside a huge, gold-colored screen banked with palms. She shakes each one by the hand. Some she greets by their first names. "How do you do, Martha!" "Well, Ruth!" They chatter like birds hunting a perch. There are a huge flock of them. They fill the room. Every chair and stool and couch is taken—except one couch where Mrs. Roosevelt seats herself. The chair-arms are all occupied.

Until at last—YES, it is true! They DO sit on the floor, in a semi-circle before Mrs. Roosevelt's couch, like children playing a game. And the game is to be sure to quote the First Lady rightly. For she very carefully chooses her words.

Where else COULD they sit but on the floor, when there are a score left standing? Bright faces; pads on knees; long silk-clad legs folded tailor fashion!

The First Lady wears a soft, French blue slip-over blouse over a skirt of rough wool of the same color. Her shoes are black, low-heeled. She peers into the leaves of a black-bound loose-leaf notebook with a broad elastic band around it, and from that she tells the Maries and the Corinnes and the Marthas of the press the news on her doings—just past, and in the near future.

They pipe up with questions. They would like to quote her farther than she has already said, perhaps. Everything is serious in its place; but there is a good deal of laughter. Her friends of the press seem to amuse the First Lady when they try, and her sense of humor creates a cheerful atmosphere.

She tells some family episodes and personal views that it's a pity to leave unrecorded. But she holds up her hand, and her voice rises, and she says, "Off the record!"

So the Monday Morning Press Conference regretfully buries some delightful stories that must go unwritten.

Questions and answers fly—and so does the time. Everyone says goodby to Mrs. Roosevelt. She is gracious, separately, to each one.

And down the stairs they go, and out in the sun, with lots of material and a growing like for the First Lady who goes out of her way to be helpful and pleasant to them.

"Isn't she lovely? We told you so!" they chorus to Sylvia, Sue and Sally—By the three Misses America.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis' 'Burglar' Description Poor

"Moccasins or slippers." Lillian repeated the words slowly, after Avis Arlen had uttered them in describing the appearance of the man she said she had seen clambering to the nursery balcony from a ladder, and then listening at the French windows.

Knowing Lillian as I do, I was sure that she was tritely echoing the words in order to gain time for a critical mental survey of the fantastic tale Avis was telling us. That she was going over what I had told her of Sam Brixton's bizarre footwear, and comparing that with the description given by Avis, I was also certain, but I spoke no word of comment; simply waited silently though tensely for he next words.

When they came, however, they bore no reference to footgear. She put a swift, incisive question to the girl.

"Did you recognize this man?"

I wondered if I only fancied that Avis betrayed more hesitation in her answer than would be naturally evinced by anyone answering a query so direct and startling. But when her answer finally came it was explosive.

DIDN'T KNOW MAN

"Why should you think I would recognize a burglar?" she demanded, with a ludicrous air of hauteur.

But Lillian was unperturbed.

"Then you're sure you never saw him before?" she persisted.

Avis lifted her head and stared, with an insolent air that made me long to slap her.

"I am very sure," she said.

"Then that's that," Lillian commented, albeit with a subtle air of disbelief. "Now, let's get on with the story. What did this man do besides try to hear what we were saying?"

"Where did he go, finally? He was not on the balcony when you tapped on the windows."

"No! Oh, no!" The girl's voice was tremulous with real or simulated terror; I could not, for the life of me, tell which. "I didn't dare move, especially not to lift my head, until after he had gone away. Down on the floor, with my face and hands covered, I looked like part of the shadows, but I didn't know what he might do if he caught sight of my white face and realized that someone had seen what he was doing, so I stayed perfectly quiet until after he had gone away."

"How long was that?" Lillian asked quickly.

"I haven't any idea," Avis answered. "It seemed a year, but I suppose it really wasn't more than four or five minutes that he stood trying to hear, before he gave it up as hopeless."

She paused again, and I reflected that the trite simile "like pulling teeth," was peculiarly applicable to the process of extracting information from Avis about that nocturnal marauder whom she said she had seen.

"Well!" Lillian exclaimed impatiently, when Avis showed no sign of going on with her story. "Where did he go when he made up his mind he couldn't hear anything?"

AVIS GRILLED

I wondered if I imagined that Avis' eyes were suddenly clouded and evasive.

"Where would he go?" she countered, "except back the way he came, down the ladder."

"Did you see him go down the ladder?" Lillian queried.

"No, I didn't see him do anything," Avis answered, and there was a distinct acidity in her voice. "I told you I didn't dare raise my head as long as I knew that he was on the balcony."

"Then how do you know he went down the ladder?"

"Because I heard him coming across the balcony," Avis said, and shivered. "He passed so close to me that I could have reached out my hand and touched him—almost. I don't suppose I really could have. Then I heard him climbing over on the ladder and going down it."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Announcing the Birth

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine is expecting a baby in about a week. She intends to send out the announcements which you have so often approved . . . that is, the large card bearing the engraved names of the parents, with the small card attached giving the name and date of the new arrival. Her problem is that several of the people to whom she wishes to send announcements do not know her married name . . . being old friends who live in another city. Should she write her maiden name on the card, or should she enclose a note?

This question is very important to her, and she will be happy to be guided by your suggestion. D.

I like to have a formal item of this kind kept formal . . . and writing on it makes it informal. So I suggest that your friend enclose a little note to those friends who do not know her married name.

Signatures

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—How should a married woman sign her name in business? For instance, when writing to a doctor, should it be signed "Mrs. G. F. Smith" (husband's initials) or is it proper to sign it with your own name?

2—I recently received a wire from my husband from out of town. He addressed me as "Mrs. (my first name) Smith" (our last name). Was that correct? C.

1—This is the signature of a married woman, for a business letter, a professional letter (such as a letter to her doctor), and a letter to anyone who does not know her formal married name (such as a letter written by you to me):

Very truly yours,
Frederica Lane Conover.
(Mrs. George Conover)

The direct signature may omit the surname of the maiden name (Frederica Conover), or the initial L. may be used, although it is always better form to avoid using initials whenever possible. Initials give a "hurried" look to a signature.

2—No, this is not correct. Your husband should address a telegram to you by your formal name, just as he would address the envelope to a letter to you by your formal name:

MRS. GEORGE CONOVER.

How to Keep Well «»

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Typhus Still a Common Disease

A few days ago I discussed the dangers of typhoid fever. Today I want to tell you about typhus fever, an ailment often confused with typhoid. But, unlike typhoid fever, typhus, in one form or another, is still a common disease and especially prevalent in our southern border states.

Dr. Copeland

These diseases resemble each other in that they are both associated with filth and unhygienic conditions. In a community where sanitary measures are lacking, food improperly cared for and drinking water contaminated, typhoid or typhus fever may break out among the inhabitants.

The diseases are quite different in other respects. Typhoid is caused by a germ called the "bacillus typhosus." This germ is found in contaminated water or food, and is spread by individuals harboring the germ.

Typhus is caused by a germ found in rats. It is carried from one rat to another by rat lice and fleas. It is carried to humans by fleas and spread from one person to another by lice. You will see how readily this disease may be spread by unhygienic conditions.

The victim of typhus has a high fever, complaining of severe headache, sudden chills and prostration. There is a peculiar skin rash, which usually appears by the third or fifth day of the attack. At first it is red in color, but gradually becomes purplish. It soon spreads over the entire body except the face.

Fortunately, the form of typhus fever encountered in this country is not serious, being mild in its nature. Yet it requires careful nursing and attention, because, if neglected, it may be complicated by serious broncho-pneumonia. Food should be simple and easy to digest. Encourage the drinking of water.

Personal cleanliness hastens cure and is a measure of protection for others. The patient should be bathed daily and given fresh bed clothing and bed linen. Above all, careless handling of soiled linens must be avoided.

Within recent years a vaccine has been perfected by the United States public health service. This protects against a certain form of typhus fever. But let us not forget that bodily cleanliness and enforcement of sanitation and hygienic measures are the best protection against this disease. To get rid of the rats is important.

Answers to Health Queries

I. G. K. Q.—Please tell me what I can do for blackheads.

A.—When eruptions appear on the skin, it is usually an indication that the general health is run down. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Daisy Q.—My father has high blood pressure. What precautions should be taken and what foods should he avoid under the circumstances?

A.—Nervous tension and fatigue should be avoided. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Worried, Q.—I have been subject to migrain headaches for over 15 years without much relief. What treatment do you suggest in such cases?

A.—Try to locate the underlying source of the trouble by having a complete physical examination and urinalysis, as the first step. In the meantime be careful of your diet and elimination. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The girl with thin legs should get her walking papers; a three-mile walk every day will develop muscles, create a pleasing contour of lower limbs.

What more heart-rending among beauty ills than a chronically red nose? The afflicted one decides that life is bitter, drenched with tears.

A famous dermatologist has offered the opinion that one reason for the ruddy nose is the use of irritating bleaches. So watch out when starting a 100-year war against freckles. A good local application is ointment of zinc oxide. If the condition is caused by digestive disturbances, cut down on condiments, pastries, rich sauces. Drink fruit juices, eat lettuce, lap up milk.

Rushing into a shop, buying hats and frocks in a hurry, is a habit that leads to waste and disappointment.

When selecting a hat regard chin, nose, forehead, hair arrangement. Take a squint all the way round. The wrong hat knocks over the prettiest girl's applecart.

White-haired ladies with blue eyes and fair skins are entitled to apply the new mauve-pinkish eye shadows that have become popular. Just a light film, deeper at the line of the eye fringes than in the vicinity of the eyebrows. Enchanting!

Cream shadows are more easily managed than compacts. Even the compact kind should be applied atop an oily foundation cream or eyelid oil.

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When Notrump Is Safest

It is the general experience of Bridge players that Slams, particularly Grand Slams are safer when played in suit, except when the bidding has indicated that if there is a suit declaration the Opening lead may be ruffed by an opponent and the contract thus defeated. As in all matters of experience, however, there are exceptions to this rule, and these can be readily recognized when the bidding develops that the partnership hands in any one suit of seven cards, whether divided 4-3 or 5-2. In these cases, if the top-card strength is sufficent, then a notrump is safer, but the final notrump contract should not be reached until all the possibilities of playing the hand at a suit declaration have been explored and weighed.

An interesting example of this type of hand occurred in a recent Duplicate game in New York City. North and South were blessed by the gods of distribution with all the Aces, all the Kings and three of the four Queens, as well as two of the Jacks. In other words, the only cards higher than the Ten-spot not held by the partnership were two Jacks and one Queen. Neither player, however, held a long suit, and while each had adequate support for one suit by the partner, the length was such as to suggest the strong possibility, bordering on probability, that one opponent or the other might have as many as five cards in the suit. Only two of the nine players holding the hand reached the correct final contract. Others stopped at six notrump, which, of course, was made with an overtrick, and two attempted a Grand Slam in spades, which was wrecked by unfavorable distribution.

The hand was:

North, Dealer.

North: ♠ A J 10 5 ♡ 6 ◇ K 8 6 5 4 ♣ A J 8

West: ♠ 7 6 4 3 2 ♡ J 10 8 5 2 ◇ 10 7 ♣ 9

East: ♠ 8 ♡ 7 4 3 ◇ Q J 3 2 ♣ 10 7 6 3 2

South: ♠ K 9 ♡ A K Q 9 ◇ A 9 ♣ K Q 5 4

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇ (1)	Pass	2 ♡ (2)	Pass
2 ♠ (3)	Pass	3 ♣ (4)	Pass
4 ♣ (5)	Pass	4 N T (6)	Pass
5 N T (7)	Pass	7 N T (8)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North might more properly have bid one spade inasmuch as the hand is fairly weak, retaining the option of bidding two diamonds if South responded with one notrump. If South had a weak hand, the bid of two spades might be dangerous.

2—With five honor-tricks it is obvious to South that there is a Slam of some sort in the hands for the North and South partnership. The only problem is to discover the best spot at which to play it.

5—Showing adequate support for the clubs.

6—At this point South, of course, cannot afford to show spade support as there would be a possibility that the hand might be played at only four spades.

7—Showing the remaining Aces. North does not yet know that there is a Grand Slam in the hand.

8—South knows that he holds only four clubs and that North's support of the club bid is based amoung other things on the Ace of clubs, as shown by the notrump bid. He feels certain, as indeed is the case, that North does not hold more than four spades. Hence five spades in one hand might wreck the spade Grand Slam or five clubs might equally wreck the club Grand Slam. It appears evident to South that the notrump Grand Slam is safest. Even though North does not hold the Jack of clubs and spades, there is still a chance to make 13 tricks in notrump if North's diamond suit is strong or if either spades or clubs break favorably.

Of course, there was nothing whatever to the play as South had four clubs, two diamonds, three hearts and four spade tricks available.

Baked Ham Suggestion

Grapejuice, left-over spiced pickle juice or sweet pickle relish give an excellent flavor to baked ham. Use about a cupful and pour over it while baking.

A Heart-Breakingly Pretty Morning Frock

1748 Anne Adams

Here is a morning frock that women just love on sight—and before which impressionable males go down like ninepins. Maybe it is that feminine little frill at the edge of the yoke that does the trick, and maybe it's the comehither of those little puffed sleeves — and again maybe it is just the whole pretty business. As to the cause we are a bit hazy, but there is no doubt about the effect. If you are the kind of woman who just must improve upon a thing, however good—or if you need two new morning frocks —try making one of plain material with a contrasting yoke and belt trim.

Pattern 1748 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3⅜ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

If I Were the Mussolini of Manhattan

I'd remove those iron arm rests on the park benches everywhere in the land. That automatically would make me the sweetheart of all the sweethearts.

Kids would never have to pay for ice cream cones. (Their portions would be double hunks of chawklitt with a cherry on top, too!)

One performance of the best plays and movies weekly would be free to the aged, infirm, and orphanages, etc. (Not once a year when the circus comes to town.)

Ambulances would function the same as police radio cars and get there in fifty. (A minute is such a long time—when you're hurt.)

I'd have Marconi invent a machine that automatically punched certain people on the nose. And I'd try it on sons who forgot to send home a five spot now and then—and on daughters who let their mommas run the errands.

I'd arrange things so that cop killers would be caught. Instead of introducing them to lawyers—they'd be introduced to a firing squad.

I'd make imitators of anything and anybody pay 10 per cent of their salary to the originator. (This means you!)

I'd fix it so that chorus girls could have temperamental stars fired.

Clothespins would be put on the noses of playgoers who talk while the show is on—and clunks who light matches to read their programs would never be allowed the pleasure of novacaine or gas when they had a tooth jerked which would be daily.

In the summer the cops, in New York at any rate, would be coatless—not only to be cooler, but so their gats in their holsters would be grim reminders.

Those alleged musicians, who play in the back yard, would be barred between eight in the morning—and eight the following morning!

Those concerts in the park would have one night set aside every week for community canarying—with a leader like Hughie Clark. So that the audience (a la Casino de Paree) could sing "Sweet Adeline," "Shine On Harvest Moon," etc. (Did you ever hear a thousand people sing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart?" What a thrill!)

My right hand men would include such guys as George M. Cohan, Damon Runyon, Mark Hellinger, Congressman Nesbit of Illinois, Joseph Connolly (head man of International News), Irving Berlin (and Ellin) and Percy Hammond—who would do exactly as you and I would do—if we had Aladdins Lamp.

With rusty tweezers I'd pluck the eyebrows out of every landlord who turns off the heat in the winter time after 12 midnight.

Judges at prize fights would be signing their own exile warrants—when they turned in decisions such as they did at the Ross-McLarnin affair. Only a blind man couldn't see how decisively Ross Won. (And I bet on McLarnin, too!)

And fighters like McLarnin who permitted themselves to gather ring rust—would be forced to go without garters, or mustard on their delicatessen.

Little boys would be given the same privilege as newspaper reporters and cameramen—so they could watch the fires from up close.

Law-makers, who think up rules—making it against the law for tots to play on the grass—would drop dead from the very thoughtt.

There'd be a living wage for firemen. Instead of orchids there'd be orkicks for officials who keep stalling.

On Bernie's birthday everybody from border to border and coast to coast—would have to send him "loathings of love."

I'd exact double taxes from sons, who send flowers only on Mother's Day—from daughters, who "know more" than their folks—and from neglectful husbands who forget that their wives—were once their sweethearts.

Quintuplets On Screen

First pictures attending the birth of five babies at one time to Mrs. Oliva Dionne, young wife of a Canadian farmer, come from Corbeil, Ont., and are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The latest views of the mother, the quintuplets and the incubator are reproduced and there are scenes of the humble home where the mother lies and of the doctor, and then the nurses are shown preparing an eye dropper with milk, syrup and water to feed the tiny mites.

Norman H. Davis is seen and heard delivering a speech on disarmament at the Geneva conference. Speaking for the President, he tells the delegates that the United States is eager to enter a plan to control the manufacture and sale of "engines of destruction." The speaker is enthusiastically applauded.

Thirty thousand girl gymnasts perform for Mussolini in the great marble forum built in Rome in honor of the Premier. The exercises are reviewed by Il Duce.

NOTE—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules it is possible some subjects in above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Last Day of Circus At Kennywood

Today is the last day of Castello's Circus at Kennywood Park. The riders, ponies, dogs, monkeys and clown give free shows at 4:30 and at 9:30 o'clock. Jess Hawkins and his Virginians play again this afternoon and tonight in the dance pavilion. There will be a school picnic every day next week. The Eugene Troupe will be a new bill next week.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This is the age of "New Deals" and miracles, at that. Secretary of the Treasury informed all the treasury department people to keep out of politics. There wouldn't be any such luck as to have that spread to all departments.

Will Rogers

Few good health notes in today's press, the five girl babies are gaining weight, and Max Baer was reported out of danger.

If that Wheeler-Howard Indian bill don't pass there is no justice. I think we got a real Indian agent in this man Collier. The Indian has just lost 100 years in his civilization, and Collier is trying to get him back.

However, I still think the old rich Indian's wife deserved her share. But I don't think that was Collier's department.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Katharine Cornell has announced that she will appear in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit in "Romeo and Juliet" next season, prior to opening in the same play in New York Thursday, December 20. She will produce three other plays on Broadway, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Candida" and Ibsen's "Rosmersholm," her first appearance in anything by this playwright. Basil Rathbone will be her leading man in all productions.

* * *

Oliver Morosco, stage producer who once operated in both Los Angeles and New York, with many successes to his credit, is about to begin production of his first talkie, with three little known players in the leading roles. However, many prominent artists were little known, too, when they first worked for Morosco, sometimes called "maker of stars." They include Edmund Lowe, Warner Baxter, Colleen Moore and Bebe Daniels.

Phil Spitalny and his Musical Sweethearts are to appear in a Vitaphone short . . . Mary Brian, who is to appear in a Lew Brown musical play, opened a five weeks' vaudeville tour in Buffalo yesterday . . . Eugenie Besserer, who died in Los Angeles last week, had been in films since 1910 . . . Eugene O'Neill has stated that he will write no new production for next season, possibly thinking he did pretty well in turning out two plays for the 1933-34 season . . . Cast changes in "Mary of Scotland" include Margalo Gillmore for Helen Hayes, Stanley Ridges for Philip Merivale, Lowell Gilmore for Anthony Kemble-Cooper and Charles Francis for Mr. Ridges.

* * *

Kathleen Howard, former fashion editor of Harper's Bazaar, who deserted the magazine offices to take up cinema acting, is clicking off rather nicely. Four productions in as many months, "Death Takes a Holiday," "You're Telling Me," "Once to Every Bachelor" and "One More River."

Music, Film Good Bill In Penn

By KARL KRUG

With lady musicians to the right of him, lady musicians to the left of him and lady musicians behind him, Prof. Phillip Harold Spitalny yesterday, in the Penn, brought the finest movie house stage show I have ever seen to Pittsburgh!

Smart, tuneful and alluring, here is the answer to a showman's prayer and the brand of presentation even the most blase of us dream about. Sophisticated without being filthy and carrying more talent than one could hit with a shotgun in a flock of ordinary cinema house stage bookings, Spitalny and his "32 Musical Ladies" give a show as is a show, or I don't know an Al Woods bedroom farce from "The Merchant of Venice."

The Professor has gathered, from the far corners of the land, such an aggregation of feminine musical players as the "smartest" of showmen told him was impossible. That he was right and they were wrong you can see with your own eyes and hear with your own ears on the stage of the Penn. There is no hemming nor hawing in the Spitalny act. From the minute the rotund Bob Murphy opens the proceedings until the last note has been sung, the last number played and the top knocked off the last of a half-hundred swell gags, there is classy entertainment going on in front of you.

Leading up to the main event are the songs, dances and funny sayings of Lewis and Moore, very sprightly, and then old Bob Murphy, quietly droll and softly sophisticated, does as fine a turn with his son and daughter, Dick and Dorothy, as you will encounter in a lifetime of looking at the unit offerings playing up and down the countryside.

In an all-white setting, that takes lighting effects such as Ole Massa Belasco, himself, might have envied, the Spitalny orchestra does its playing. A medley of Victor Herbert melodies, soft and enchanting, to be followed by Miss Ethel Pastor singing "My Hero" as I don't think you ever heard it sung before, gives some idea of the splendid things to follow. To my untrained musical ear, Miss Maxine Marlowe went through "Let's Fall in Love" with spellbinding effect, and there is a battery of violinists to sweep you out of yourself, and make you wonder why someone never before went to the trouble of putting such a crew of girl musicians together as Spitalny has found.

And then, there is little Miss Mickey Bratz, the prettiest kid in the outfit, who, so far as I am concerned, could still be dancing in that perfect rhythm she displays, and who comes up breathless to greet that barrage of applause she so richly deserves. There are knockout imitations of Rudy Vallee, Cab Calloway and Ted Lewis by the Misses Pastor, Pat Harrington and Gypsy Cooper, respectively, and there are ensemble vocal numbers of haunting beauty.

With apologies to Mr. Winchell, here is a swelelegant entertainment, which I sincerely advise you not to miss even if you have to pile the dishes in the sink and farm the baby out to the neighbors.

Believe it or not, the good things also continue on the screen with "Thirty Day Princess," a neat little fairy tale starring Sylvia Sidney, on display. Laid briefly in one of those mythical kingdoms we hear so much about, and then switching to New York for its principal action, "Thirty Day Princess" is a variation of the old theme of royalty falling in love with a commoner, and surprisingly well handled.

Miss Sidney plays a dual role with neatness and precision, the parts being that of a Princess of Taronia and a New York show girl out of work. The Princess is brought to America to help Taronia float a loan, and is taken down with the mumps on the day of her arrival. The plot moves through a romance between Cary Grant, as a newspaper publisher, and Miss Sidney, impersonating the Princess, and is handled with admirable restraint and a keen sense of the comedy values in the story.

Edward Arnold, Henry Stephenson and Vince Barnett contribute excellent supplementary characterizations to those of Miss Sidney and Mr. Grant.

State Liquor Store Sales Slump Again

HARRISBURG, June 9.—(INS.) Continuing their downward trend, sales in state liquor stores slumped approximately $27,000 to $663,262 during the week ending June 2, according to the Luquor Board.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Mr. Smith Goes Back in Business.

HARRY SMITH, who retired from the newspaper business with a comfortable fortune at the age of 53, returned to the fold last week with the purchase of a magazine. He is now 55. May I present you with a few reactions? . . .

* * *

MRS. SMITH: I'm worried about Harry. I really am. He was tremendously happy in his retirement and did all the things he had always wanted to do. I was with him all the time. And with me by his side from morning until night, how could he help but be happy?

And now what happens? All of a sudden, without a word of warning, he goes back into business! He buys some sort of trashy magazine and acts as though he were 21 again. He races from the house at 8 in the morning and doesn't get home until 7 at night. And, what's worse, he smiles all the time as though he were actually happy.

I'm going to have the doctor look him over. Secretly, of course, because I don't want Harry to know I'm worried. But I do think the man is going out of his mind.

* * *

A DOCTOR: Any calls, Miss Buckley? What? Mrs. Smith called again about her husband? Humph! It's the usual thing, Miss Buckley. Case No. 793, formula No. 708. Husband going nuts at home in retirement and returns to business. Wife grows frightened and consults doctor because husband is enjoying himself for first time in years.

Send her the customary letter, Miss Buckley, and toss in three or four lengthy medical terms. And also double the usual bill for this type of case. If the bill is small, she'll think the big words aren't important enough.

* * *

SMITH'S SON: I'm glad Dad returned to the publishing business. Doggone glad. Of course, I'd rather have had him return to the newspaper field—but I guess this magazine thing will pan out just as well.

It will give him a chance to lubricate his mind. Naturally, he's planning a new policy for this magazine of his and he will undoubtedly go into more serious things. He'll probably discuss the administration, and spend a great deal in purchasing articles on the various countries.

But he's smart enough to know that the public wants balance today. A little spice would be a great help. I know a swell kid in the Follies and I'm going to speak to Dad tonight about putting her on the cover.

* * *

A PRODUCER: So Harry Smith's back in business, is he? Well, well, well! I feel a little sorry about it because the man was always a terrible sucker for bad propositions. He should have stayed retired and lived on his income. This way there isn't a doubt that some phoney will slip him for a large slice of his bankroll.

I think I'll phone Harry and wish him luck. And say, you never know. He might want to back my next production. . .

* * *

AN EX-SECRETARY: So he's gone back into business, has he? The old fool; You'd think that, after the years I was with him he'd call me immediately to see if I wanted my old job back. But did he? Not a word!

I think I'll drop in to see him tomorrow and extend my congratulations. And then if he doesn't give me my old job back I'll tell him what I really think of him . . .

* * *

SMITH'S DAUGHTER: Isn't it all just too delicious? I'm the happiest college girl in America. I mean I really and truly am. It's simply ducky that dear Daddy has gone back into such a pinky-winky business. Just think; it's a magazine with so many pictures that you won't really have to read anything if you don't want to.

It's solved my future for me, too. I mean it really and truly has. I didn't know whether I would marry a President's son, or study art in Paris, or be a movie star in Hollywood. I mean it was really and truly a serious problem.

But that's all settled now. As long as Daddy is putting out such ducky magazines, I'll be his really and truly star writer.

* * *

MR. SMITH: Good morning, Miss R. Lovely day, isn't it? Get the restaurant on the phone and order me some eggs and coffee. Didn't have time for breakfast at home this morning. Besides, the wife was going to have it with me.

Phone Winchell and see if he can turn out an article for us on "Petting—and the Einstein Theory." Get John Farrar and ask if he'd like to lunch with me at Leon and Eddie's. Wire Hollywood and get an article from Garbo on "My Greatest Feat as a Movie Star." Phone Barbara Hutton in London and tell her we'll give her $10,000 to pose in a series of exclusive photographs with the Prince—and $100,000 without him.

During the afternoon reserve a table for me for dinner at the Stork Club, get me two seats in the front row for the Follies, and then phone Zelli for a front row table after the theater. At 5 o'clock, phone my wife and tell her I won't be home for dinner. At 7 o'clock, phone her and say I went to a Turkish bath for the night.

Retirement? Phooey! . . .

* * *

THE MAN WHO SOLD THE MAGAZNE: What a sucker that man Smith is. He gave me a million dollars for a piece of property that isn't worth half the money.

Oh, well. That's his look-out, and not mine. As for me, I'm tiring. I'll settle down with my wife—and really start to enjoy life . . .

Comedy-Drama In Regent

Off with the old and on with the new, as regards sweethearts, husband and wife, is the theme of a rather complicated plot in "Uncertain Lady," comedy drama that is part of the double feature bill in the Regent. Edward Everett Horton, Genevieve Tobin, Renee Gadd and Paul Cavanaugh are romantically involved in the mix-ups.

Miss Tobin is a business woman whose husband, Mr. Horton, interests Miss Gadd. The latter two are called to the office of the first and told everything will be okay providing they find her another husband. Their efforts to do so, followed by a change of mind on the part of the would-be husband-stealer, who decides she wants some other man, lead up to a much-tangled situation and a comedy finale.

The second feature of the program is "The Sin of Nora Moran," in which the leads are played by Zita Johann and Alan Dinehart, prominent artists of the stage.

Bar Jumper Talks Self Into Role

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—Hello! Months ago Frank Melton, the big boy from Pineapple, Ala., scaled the walls of the Fox studio and landed the hole of Janet Gaynor's bupkin suitor in "State Fair"—many lean weeks followed, and he got a job filling gasoline tanks at a service station.

Talking his way into Fox once more, he managed to land a role with Will Rogers in Mr. Skitch," and that got him contract. Sitting on top of the cinematic world, so to speak, Frank proceeded to promote himself a real part. He heard that Victor Jory, due to conflicting film schedules, would not be able to play the villainous village barber in "Judge Priest," the new Will Rogers ditty.

Frank started a barrage of personal visits, telegrams, telephone calls, letters and "thought waves" to Producer Sol Wurtzel, who finally gave in.

* * *

Bela ("Dracula") Lugosi has been signed to a term contract by Universal . . . Just to keep in histrionic practice, Director James Whale acted one scene in "One More River" for Universal . . . Charley Grayson has sailed away for the Orient.

George Hale, dance director, grabbed a choo-choo for New York and is headed for Monte Carlo, where he'll stage a big-time revue for Felix Ferry, European impresario. Deals are in the frying pan for either June Knight or Dorothy Lee to lead the show . . . Johnny Downs, one of the original members of "Our Gang" kid comedies, who (naturally) has grown up and was last seen here with Olsen and Johnson in "Take A Chance," is heading back to Broadway for another whirl at the footlights.

* * *

Little David Jack Holt got the kid's part with Lee Tracy in "52 Weeks for Florette" . . . Gloria Stuart is set as Eddie Lowe's lead in "The Gift of Gab" at Universal . . . Spanky MacFarland, the Hal Roach brat star, will steal scenes from Wheeler and Woolsey in "Kentucky Colonels," the feud film . . . Lionel Atwill has been signed for a role with Irene Dunne in "The Age of Innocence" at RKO.

* * *

Collecting knick-knacks—Walter Wanger, who is stepping out for himself, is after Miriam Hopkins as one of the stars on his "raiding list" 'tis said . . . Richard Rodgers and Larry Hart have put their heads and pencils together to dish up the tunes for "Louisiana," to star Lanny Ross for Paramount . . . Warner Oland, the screen's best oriental villain, is building a permanent home on Palmito de La Virgen, an island off the west coast of Mexico.

* * *

Snoopings—Josef von Sternberg has gone into a huddle with himself—to think up a new story for Marlene Dietrich . . . Eleanor Phelps, the Baltimore society belle, a movie extra in "Cleopatra," has got another cinematic job—a minor role in "The Count of Monte Cristo." She's the daughter of the Belgian Consul at Baltimore . . . Francis X. Bushman Jr., has gone back to his old screen name of Ralph, and has landed a term ticket with M-G-M.

Murder to Music in Stanley

By MICHAEL SHAW

If you're an Alexander Woollcott addict, you mustn't miss the Stanley show this week, for Mr. Woollcott is starring in quite the most amusing short we remember, "Mr. W.'s Little Game" it is called, and you will find Mrs. Parker's friend at his fattest, his laziest, his untidiest, and almost at his wittiest.

With Mr. W. reinforced by an uproarious "Popeye the Sailor" cartoon, an interesting reel of miscellany and some excellent news shots, the Stanley's array of shorts is so uncommonly pleasant that it deserves special mention. And now to get down to business.

The feature is Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities," an extravagant and at times beautiful production. Frankly, Mr. Carroll's effort to combine a mystery drama and a musical revue seems to this reviewer not much more successful on the screen than it was on the stage. Yesterday's audiences, however, were obviously delighted and thrilled, and the general verdict seemed to be that the show had everything.

The plot, provided by Rufus King, well-known writer of thrillers, concerns itself, as the title indicates, with tragedy behind the scenes at a Carroll opening. Between musical numbers there are various ominous happenings, culminating in two murders, one in full view of the audience. The star of the piece, played by Carl Brisson, the new European singing actor, faces arrest for a time, and in the end Victor McLaglen, a comic detective, solves the case, almost against his will.

Mr. Brisson proves to have a nice voice and an attractive personality and should be much in demand in Hollywood for romantic parts. Mr. McLaglen divides the laughs with Jack Oakie, who, as Mr. Carroll's assistant in charge of the show, is effectively droll. The minor parts are all well done, the beauteous Miss Toby Wing, as an unusually dumb chorus girl, being especially enjoyable.

There are lots of other lovely ladies, well up to Carroll standards, in the ensemble. As for the spectacles themselves, they are hardly distinguishable from those created by Busby Berkeley in the past. Mr. Carroll went West with a lot of ideas about how a chorus should be handled in the movies, but they must have been lost somewhere in California.

The picture undeniably has its moments. There is an effective sequence involving Duke Ellington and his band. The discovery of the first murdered girl is done in very shivery style by Director Mitchell Leisen. And Mr. Oakie, notably in his scenes with Miss Wing, will make anybody laugh.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Castoffs Aiding Browns. Ross and Predecessors. Another Sloane Test.

Strangely enough, the Pirate pitcher of whom most was expected this season is having the greatest trouble finding a consistent winning stride. Every time you figure Larry French to have attained top form at last, something goes wrong with his effectiveness or his support and he leaves the rails again. The southpaw's failure in St. Louis yesterday, which broke the Picaroon string of five straight victories, showed the continued activity of a jinx that has prevented him from winning two games in succession at any time this year.

Larry French

The Bucs have done mightly well to keep within two games of first place when their original main hope in the box has turned in only three wins, and has finished only three games in 10 starts, with the race almost two months old. At the same stage of last season French had won seven decisions. The showing of the club under the circumstances to date holds out much promise for its chances when Larry finally goes on the winning road to stay.

At that, it's no easy matter for a left-hander to beat those Cardinals, whose switch hitters give them an array of nine right-hand batters. Oddly, two of French's three victories were scored at their expense, but through the season the Redbirds have been poison to southpaws. Aside from a decision won by Al Smith in a two-inning relief role, only two starting left-handers have beaten the Cards this season, and Pittsburgh has both of them—French and Ralph Birkofer. The Missourians have trimmed Carl Hubbell twice, and Ed Brandt, Tony Freitas, Al Smith, French and Birkofer once each.

PEPPER PLAYS BIG PART IN BROWNS' RISE

National League cast-offs have had much to do with the surprising showing of the Browns in the American League race. In addition to Manager Hornsby himself, there are Catcher Rolly Hemsley, formerly of the Pirates, Cubs and Reds; Outfielder Ray Pepper, dropped by the Cardinals, and Pitcher Buck Newsom, discarded by the Bruins. Pepper in particular has performed in a way to indicate that St. Louis National League minds made a huge mistake in firing him.

That outfielder was up several times with the Cards, only to be shipped back to the Rochester farm. The Redbird bosses finally quit on him completely and permitted the Browns to buy him from Rochester. Under Hornsby's handling, Pepper has developed into one of the season's sensations in the American League, ranking steadily among the leading hitters with an average around .360. Rolly Hemsley has come in for a greater amount of publicity because of his rise to the batting leadership with a .400 average, but Pepper has been far more valuable at knocking in runs.

RATES GIANTS STRONGER THAN IN 1933

Guy Bush is not to be counted among those who consider the Giants less formidable than in 1933. The Cub pitcher, on the contrary, insists that Bill Terry has even a better club than the one that captured the pennant and the world championship last year. This in spite of the loss of Bud Parmelee and the decrease in the effectiveness of the pitching staff in general. Bush admits that the New Yorkers are not as good as they were in the box, but contends that the loss there has been partly offset by the return of Travis Jackson to his old form.

Guy Bush

Jackson's value to a club cannot be estimated too highly, Bush says, arguing that the shortstop gives the Giants that extra power which they did not have last year, something to offset at least part of the lost pitching. The Pirates will concur in the opinion of Jackson as an individual force. They lost three games out of six to the Giants so far this year, and Jackson's bat caused every one of the defeats. Of the nine runs scored by the Giants to win those three games, Stony was responsible for six with three home runs and a triple.

COMPARING ROSS WITH GREATS OF CLASS

Since Barney Ross topped his lightweight feats by defeating Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight title, enthusiastic followers of the Chicago battler are more insistent than ever that Ross deserves to be ranked with Benny Leonard. Inevitably this will lead to speculation as to how Barney compares with Joe Gans in the latter's prime, though as a matter of fact both Gans and Leonard far surpassed McLarnin's conqueror in punching power, if nothing else.

It's strange that they always stop at Gans and Leonard in talking about tops in the lightweight class. There was a pretty fair earlier champion named Kid Lavigne in that division who might be worthy of at least passing mention. However, Ross should worry about comparisons, as he won't be called on to meet anybody measuring up to those old standards. If they start wondering whether he could beat Gans, Barney will be in a good spot to repeat what Leonard once said when there was a similar discussion about Benny. "I don't know whether I'm as good as Gans was," Leonard told an interviewer. "Neither do you—and neither does anybody else, for that's one of those things which nobody can prove. But if they have to go back as far as Gans to find somebody to beat me, it's all right with me."

HARDEST TEST OF HIGH QUEST IN BELMONT

Speculation on the outcome of the $60,000 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park in New York today centers mainly around the question as to whether the racing luck of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane is going to continue through another of the big annual turf fixtures. Some of the racing dopesters this year are allowing the hunch of Brookmeade stable luck to play a part in their calculations. The victories of Mrs. Sloane's horses in the Florida Derby, the Wood Memorial, the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the American Derby on five different tracks have made many turf followers feel that it's to be a Brookmeade season throughout. They're 'figuring that hunch as strongly as the previous performances of the competing horses.

Mrs. Dodge Sloane

The great Cavalcade will not run in the Belmont today because he is not eligible, not having been purchased by Mrs. Sloane until after the closing of the entry list, so that the hopes of the sensational stable will be pinned on High Quest, winner of the Wood Memorial and the Preakness. Not disputing that High Quest is a great horse, but to continue the success of the stable he will have to accomplish the biggest and hardest job yet faced. For the Belmont is the toughest test of all, a gruelling route of a mile and a half, which calls for a great deal more than High Quest had to show in winning the Wood Memorial at a mile and 70 yards or the P[illegible] at a mile and three-sixteenths.

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—It was not exactly a case of going from the ridiculous to the sublime when the Pirates parted company with the Reds to spend a visit with the Cardinals, but the proverbial contrast is not much wider than the gap that separates the Reds from the Redbirds, if you'll take the word of any of the Buccaneers today.

In Cincy, the Pirates were given the keys to the city and when they left, the Reds didn't have much left other than their ball park. Arriving here, the Pittsburghers found no such hospitality. The Cards, still aching from the treatment they received at Forbes Field recently, awaited the Rovers with thumbs down. As a result the Bucs were smeared with defeat in the first clash of a three-game series. The score was 6 to 2.

BUCS GET BREAK

Fortunately for all concerned the Giants were knocked off by the lowly Phils, so that the National League race is just as much scrambled as it was before the Gibsons landed here.

Heinie Meine, who wound the Cards' clock at Forbes Field last Sunday, will essay to avenge yesterday's Pirate setback when the two clubs cross bats today. St. Louis Heinie will have to perform this feat in the face of such stalwart opposition as that which Jerome (Dizzy) Dean can furnish.

Tex Carleton triumphed over the Pirates and Larry French in the initial encounter. Tex limited the Buccos to six hits, one of which was a homer by Arky Vaughan. Jim Collins smacked out a four-sacker for the Redbirds.

French was away to a poor start and was among the missing

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: OUT OF THE DISTANT PAST—Aunt Amy Brock celebrated her one hundred and second birthday anniversary on March 14, 1934. The sturdy old matriarch was married and a mother of seven children at the outbreak of the Civil War, 73 years ago. In the history of the United States she is a living link of a distant era with the present time. She is in full possession of her faculties and has the wishes of this department for continued good health and a long life. U. S. PERFORATIONS—The tiny perforation on the edge of a postage stamp means that a little round piece of paper about the size of a pinhead has been punched from the edge. These little perforations are not thrown away. They accumulate at the rate of more than six tons a month and are used again in paper manufacture.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—(AP.)—The golfing park started the big pursuit race this morning, led by Gene Sarazen, in an attempt to overhaul the "flying Scot," Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va. Cruickshank held a three-shot lead with 36 holes to go today in the United States Open golf championship.

The weather was cool and the skies slightly overcast as 63 survivors, minus Craig Wood, the disqualified New Jersey pro, began the all-day battle.

The championship contenders were well whittled down. Cruickshank's 142 and Sarazen's 145 made these two the marked men, but there were a dozen "money" places to be filled at the end of the day, in addition to the incentive to finish inside the first 30 and thereby qualify automatically for the 1935 tournament, which incidentally is slated to go West.

GOODMAN FORGOTTEN

Among the quickly forgotten headliners was Johnny Goodman, still the open champion, but now out of the running with 152, 11 strokes back, and playing his third round with only a handful of spectators giving him casual attention. Goodman reached the turn in 42.

Goodman's fellow townsman and amateur rival, Rodney Bliss, Jr., whose 147 was much the best performance among the 10 remaining simon-pures, began to feel the pressure when he hooked his tee shot on the first hole into the rough, played into a trap from

PARKS, LUTHER LOCAL HOPES

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—Sam Parks, Jr., young pro at the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, and Ted Luther, of the Valley Heights Club, were the only ones of the Pittsburgh district's contingent of seven to remain in the running for the national open championship after the completion of the second day of play.

Parks, who shot a 76 Thursday, came back with another yesterday to turn in a score of 152. Luther, who took a 78 Thursday, shot a fine 71 yesterday to finish with 149.

Rader Jewett, of Wheeling, W. Va., a member of the Pittsburgh district squad, was eliminated when he took a 156, as did Vincent Eldred. Charley Manning finished with 163 and after taking a 43 on the first nine yesterday, Emil Loeffler, veteran Oakmont pro, withdrew.

MERRY WIDOW GAME

McKees Rocks business men are to don feminine raiment and masquerade as girls to oppose the O. K. Girls in their annual merry widow baseball game at the Abe Mann field at 6:30 this evening. The annual fray has grown in popularity from year to year, and several thousand fans are expected to attend.

OSTERMUELLER PROVES VALUABLE AID TO BOSTON RED SOX

YOUNG HURLER OF MORE HELP THAN GROVE

Associated Press.

In a season all cluttered up with rookie pitchers, special mention seems to belong to Fritz Ostermueller, the Boston Red Sox southpaw from Rochester.

Ostermueller, who cost $25,000, has taken the place reserved for $100,000 Bob Grove and while he has absorbed his share of beatings his record has been good. Fritz was promoted to a starter's job just in time to drop an 11-inning 6-5 decision to Cleveland, May 11. Then he lost four more games without being hit hard, but came back to take two games from Washington's Senators with good performances.

WINS OVER SENATORS

Following up last Sunday's 7-2 triumph, Ostermueller limited the Senators to eight hits in a 12-inning battle yesterday and finally won out, 3 to 2, by scoring the winning run himself.

Meanwhile Rogers Hornsby's St. Louis Browns' slugged their way into third place by beating Cleveland, 8 to 6.

Detroit's league-leading Tigers held their place by slamming out 18 hits for a 13-to-5 victory over the White Sox and the Yankees batted out an 11-to-4 decision over the Athletics to remain only a game behind. Babe Ruth was struck on the wrist by the first pitch from Mort Flohr, the A's rookie southpaw from Duke University, and suffered a painful bruise.

After a day in fourth place, the Cardinals returned to second in the National League standing by batting their former nemesis, Larry French, about in the early innings and defeating Pittsburgh, 6 to 2, behind Tex Carleton's six-hit flinging.

REDS TOP CUBS

Cincinnati's lowly Reds shoved the Cubs down behind St. Louis by takng a 4-to-3 decision when they landed on Bill Lee for three hits and as many runs in the sixth. With Curt Davis hurling six-hit ball for his second victory over the world champions within a week, the Phillies helped keep the race close by turning back the first-place Giants, 3 to 2.

Van Mungo, of Brooklyn, registered the best of the National League pitching performances when he limited the Braves to four puny hits to give the Dodgers a 10-to-1 triumph.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

You can just inscribe in your diary that the destiny of the Davis Keg, symbol of supremacy in Division I of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League, boasts a high grade chance of being settled as far as 1934 is concerned, right this afternoon. At 2 p. m., on the P. A. A. courts, Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and his champion P. A. A. crew, will make a desperate stand against the pace-setting Belmont Racquet Club and unless University Club edges in and spills the applecart, the winner of this tussle should go on to the title.

Meanwhile, University Club, in invading Rockwood, is confronted by a much stiffer task than is generally imagined. The University squadron should cop, but it can afford to take little for granted, especially where Bob Grier, Tommy Thompson, and Bill McCabe form the opposition. Stanton Heights No. 1 should dust off Stanton Heights No. 2.

In Division II, the Westinghouse visit to Belmont Tennis Club is pretty nearly a parallel case to that of P. A. A. and Belmont in the uppermost flight. College Avenue has a tough assignment at Washington Heights and Edgewood ought to have most of the fun in entertaining Rockwood Reserves.

The Electrics can and very likely will solidify their hold on the lead in Division III in their at home session with Consolidated Canoe Clubs, though Howard Moore's College Avenue Seconds have their sights elevated plenty in playing host to Emsworth. To round out the bill, it's anybody's verdict as Westmoreland Club treks to Minnetonka.

SOFTBALL LIST COMPILED

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Softball Tournament Secretary

A complete list of the teams entered in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament will be published in tomorrow's issue.

Speed Anderson

Bracket lists will appear as soon as all of the team registration cards are received. These should be in the hands of the writer by midnight tonight to permit of proper listing of the teams so play may get under way next week. The teams drawn for the first games in each bracket must complete their contests some time within the week.

You can't afford to delay. When the committee sits down to make the brackets of eight teams each, any teams whose registration cards are not on hand will be omitted.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

Albert (Speed) Anderson, who is 6 feet 1 inch tall, is the ace hurler of the Hunzeker Radiator (midget) team, one of the entrants in the Sun-Telegraph's softball tournament. The lanky flinger has scored 16 victories this season and has set to defeat 16 opponents. He is a product of Braddock. He has hurled two no-hit, no-run games.

The Hunzeker team has won 33 games and lost only three. The Broderick Dutchmen, Wagles and St. Stevens teams were the only ones to defeat the powerful outfit, and in return matches, the Wageles and the Saints were conquered.

Kenneth Cassidy, the other star pitcher on the Hunzeker team, is an inch taller than Anderson. He, too, is a very good performer.

Shotgun George Hummert is the team's leading batter. Vincent Fogel and Frank Bender are the hardest hitters on the club. Armand Schulo has been doing a fine job catching Anderson and Cassidy. Harry Staubach manages the team.

THREE SCHOOL TITLES SET

The scholastic athletes put in one of the busiest days of the entire spring campaign yesterday, and all but wound up their activities for 1934.

Baseball, tennis, golf and track were on the program, with three titles being decided. Oliver High School's crack baseball team, winners of the City League Section II title, captured the city championship by defeating Westinghouse, king of Section I, 5 to 2, in the second and deciding game of the annual best-out-of-three series for the crown. The game was played on the Oliver field. Oliver won the first game at Westinghouse on Tuesday.

Yesterday, Gush limited Westinghouse to seven scattered hits, while Oliver bunched as many to win, scoring four runs in the second inning. Schirm, Westinghouse shortstop, hit a home run in the first inning. The score:

LANGLEY VICTOR

In the Pitt Stadium, Langley High annexed the senior track and field title, piling up 51½ points. Westinghouse was second with 38; South Hills took third with 28; Somers and Connelley scored 10; Carrick and Perry grabbed off 7, and Taylor Allderdice tallied 4½.

In the Junior division, Somers won with 22; Herron Hill scored 13; Knoxville, Peabody and Oliver tied for third with 10; Fifth Avenue and Baxter took down 7 each; Westinghouse garnered 6; Langley had 3, and Allderdice, Arsenal, Liberty and Schenley wound up with two points each.

Three records were established. Thomas, of Oliver, turning in a 49 second 440; Clifford, of Westinghouse doing a 10.1 century, and Schenley's 880-yard relay team was clocked in 1:37.5.

RACK IN LEAD

Ed Rack, of McKeesport, led the field at the end of the first 18 holes of play in the Interscholastic Golf Conference individual championship event with a card of 37-39—76, and goes into the second and final day of play over the Shady Side Academy course today with a lead of one stroke over Wayne, of Greensburg. after the second round. The Flock nicked the southpaw for four hits and these coupled with a Vaughan misplay piled up three big markers for the home team.

Leon Chagnon was on the slab in the third when Rip Collins connected for a homer over the right field stands. Vaughan hit over the right stands in the seventh.

GENE IN GOOD SPOT--JONES

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Ever to Win Both the British and American Open and Amateur Tournaments the Same Year

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—Bobby Cruikshank made good use of the opportunity given him by his own fine first round and the irregular scoring of the rest of the field on the opening day. When the little Scot, Wiffy Cox, and Charley Lacey began with 71's, while the others, with the exception of Sarazen, were taking 74's and upwards, the door was open for a brilliant burst by anyone of the three which would leave the field floundering in the ruck.

Cox and Lacey let their chances slip, but Bobby came through with another fine 71 yesterday and so finds himself out in front at the half-way post in the national open battle.

There were only two factors which prevented Cruikshank taking a really commanding position. One of these was his own eleventh hole and the other was Gene Sarazen's determined and effective effort. Cruikshank had gone out in a par 36 and had started back with a four. On the dangerous eleventh he attempted a risky recovery after a pushed tee shot, his second finished under a bush, and in the end he was really not unlucky to get a six. That kept his 71 from being a 69, which would have put even Sarazen's total of 145 close to the pale.

A lead of three clear strokes over his nearest pursuer and of five strokes over the rest of the field certainly is an important advantage, especially when an old and capable campaigner like the little Scotchman holds the reins. But somehow I like Sarazen's situation very much. He has had one round which might have been called bad, yet he escaped from it with a reasonably creditable score. He now has not the responsibility of leading the field and yet there is only one man in his front. And excepting Cruikshank, he is playing the most reliable golf on the entire field. Granting that wee Bobby is a tough man to spot three strokes in two rounds, still, being three strokes down to one man is not like being three strokes behind half a dozen.

Runyan, who must have been the pre-tournament favorite on the strength of his winter play and his recent winning of the Metropolitan, has not yet been able to produce his real game here at Merion.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

A professor is interviewed about who he thinks living today will still be famous 50 years from now. He does not name any baseball players, but I'll bet he is wrong. He says history will remember people because they did great things, but history is not always so smart. I think the names history remembers are those that appealed to strong popular fancy and whose deeds are talked about from father to son, so to speak. I'll bet Babe Ruth is remembered as long as anybody alive today. Just you wait a hundred years and see.

there and wound up with a 5. He was one under par for the next five holes, however.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES GAINS

NEW YORK, June 9.—Resuming yesterday's brisk upturn, numerous stocks advanced fractions to around a point in the early trading today. Dealings were moderately active. Metal shares lagged.

United States Steel preferred got up 2 points, while Union Pacific, Case and Continental Can gained around a point each. Standard Oil of California, United States Steel common, American Telephone, New York Central, General Motors, Schenley Distillers, Montgomery Ward and Chrysler were slightly higher.

Overnight consideration of the President's message to Congress found the financial district inclined to approve the greater part of it. The Executive's disclaimer of any intention to oppose "the incentive of reasonable and legitimate private profit" was viewed as especially encouraging to industry generally.

Word from Washington that congressional leaders had reached a tentative agreement which will enable them to bring about an adjournment by the end of next week was cheering to most traders. The present plan, it was understood here, was for the passage of the housing bill in a slightly modified form, and the substitution for the Wagner labor bill of a brief measure creating industrial relations boards in the various industries.

This week's automobile production was said to have increased substantially as manufacturers returned to full-time schedules. Cram's reports estimated output for the week at 69,107 units compared with 54,185 in the preceding period. The trend, it was said, remained well ahead of the corresponding week last year when production totaled 54,197 units.

Leading foreign exchanges were narrow at the opening of trading. Sterling eased ¼ of a cent to $5.06¼ and the French franc was unchanged at 6.61½ cents.

WHEAT JUMPS FOUR CENTS

CHICAGO, June 9.—Wheat prices soared early to the allowable limit today the moment trading commenced. December wheat showed an instantaneous rise of 4¾ cents.

Opening 17⅞-4¾ cents higher, July 99¾-1.01, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ⅞ cents up and subsequently rose all around.

Quick reactions from initial top prices for wheat tumbled December back 2½ cents, and the market as a whole steadied itself for the time being at overnight average gains of about 2¼ cents.

A general rush to buy on a market almost bare of offerings characterized the wheat trade until tempting big profits led to free selling and caused quotations to sag. In later dealings trade continued on a large scale. It was pointed out that not only the United States government crop report but also the Canadian official report provided substantial basis for higher prices.

DROUGHT CUTS STATE CROPS

HARRISBURG, June 9.—(AP.)—Drought and frost, born at opposite ends of the weather kingdom, are conspiring to cut Pennsylvania crop production below last year's level.

Spring planting was delayed by dry weather, and May frosts nipped the fruit trees, with this result, the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, says:

Winter wheat crop predictions fell to 14,654,000 bushels, compared to 15,678,000 in 1933; rye sank from 1,606,000 in 1933 to an anticipated 1,500,000; peaches, 1,440,000 to 468,000; pears, 366,000 to 292,000.

Corn was hit by both drought and frost. Winter wheat stands are thin and spotty. Oats seedings are late and need rain. Barley was frozen out during the winter. Hay is short and turning brown.

Mesta Gets Order From Youngstown

The Mesta Machine Co. has been awarded a contract by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. to construct a wide strip mill at the Campbell plant costing approximately $6,000,000.00. Work will begin at once.

Capacity will be 40,000 to 60,000 tons a month.

SEUBERT RAPS TAX BURDEN ON OIL

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 9.—To an increasing extent, the oil companies have become mere tax collectors for the government.

Mr. Rukeyser

Edward C. Seubert, president, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, in discussing this situation with me, said:

"The tax burden is, of course, a tremendous load upon the oil industry. Our company alone paid 23 per cent of its gross income to government units in 1933 in meeting various taxes. No other essential commodities have ever had to bear so heavy a load of taxation. Now that a large part of the funds produced by such taxation is being diverted to purposes other than the original purpose of building and maintaining roads, the taxing of petroleum products has become in many respects a rank injustice to both purchasers of the products and to the industry which serves them. It would be a much simpler matter for the oil industry to reach a satisfactory profit status if its products did not have to carry so large a tax load."

'HOT OIL' PROBLEM

Under the existing setup, the oil industry functions primarily for the benefit of tax eaters—rather than in the interest of its true owners.

Of course, there are other factors involved in the unsatisfactory status of the industry.

"I think we can say that the trouble in the oil industry is that the plans for bringing about stabilization are for the most part still in the planning stage."

Thus far prevention of "hot oil" production has been unsuccessful in East Texas and to some extent in Oklahoma. This "hot oil" and its products moving to market at reduced prices tended to keep the quotations of finished products below normal at thousands of points. Low prices have been especially onerous in view of the higher costs of the industry as a result of the code rules.

HOPE HELD

A capable insider in the industry, in gauging the trend, said:

"I am hopeful that the numerous measures which have been instituted toward correcting this situation will presently be successful. Among these are the bill now before Congress for control of production and the various plans for stabilization of marketing conditions and removal from the market of troublesome distress gasoline.

"The trend in regard to consumption of gasoline is encouraging. Bureau of Mines statistics for the first quarter of the year show an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding period of 1933 in the consumption of motor fuel, and we have no reason to doubt that the increase has continued during April and May."

DETERDING'S STAND

In giving his interpretation of the reasons for the failure of the co-operation program to yield satisfactory results in terms of profits, Sir Henri Deterding said:

"The many serious efforts that were made toward co-operation last year failed for three principal reasons. In the first place it was difficult to secure interstate co-operation in production questions for lack of the necessary machinery, the authority of the state proration laws, where such existed, naturally reaching only the borders of each state. In the second place, the uncertainty surrounding the scope of the anti-trust laws was an insuperable obstacle to bringing order into the marketing situation. The third great difficulty was the selfish action of those who sought only their own temporary benefit at the expense of the industry as a whole without regard for the future.

"This position has now changed. The code of fair competition for the petroleum industry under the national industrial recovery act has as its object the removal of these difficulties and if only the provisions are strictly enforced there is no reason why order should not be promptly restored, especially as consumption is increasing with the improvement in general economic conditions."

Weekly Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP.)—Bank clearings again are below those of a year ago, owing mainly to the loss at New York City. The total this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $5,037,349,000, a reduction of 1.8 per cent from the amount reported for the corresponding week of 1933. At New York City, clearings were $3,396,377,000, a loss of 9.5 per cent, while the total of $1,640,972,000 for all outside centers was higher by 19.3 per cent than of a year ago.

The activity in the speculative markets last year raised bank clearings at New York City at that time—hence the loss this week. Boston clearings this year also were below those of a year ago. Substantial gains, however, appear at many other centers and at a number of these, particularly in the west, clearings are very high. The total for cities outside of New York is well up with the high weekly amount previously reported this year. These cities include, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Kansas City.

Total clearings for all cities this week were in excess of the figure for the short week preceding by $1,550,506,000 for the same two weeks last year, the gain was $1,583,699,000. The increase outside of New York accounts, in large part for the better showing this week. Figures for leading cities, showing increases and decreases compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also, daily bank clearings for the year to date.

LANDLORD NAILS HOME SHUT

South Side police were summoned to the home of Peter Hurey, at 58 Gregory street, after the landlord had boarded up the front window shutters and the front porch last night, police reported.

Hurey, father of six, who occupies three rooms on the first floor, told Acting Lieutenant Richard Challis that the owner, John Dziekonski, who lives on the second floor, had threatened him and boarded up the front entrance and windows because he was six months in arrears with his rent, Challis said. Challis ordered the landlord to turn on the water on the first floor which he was alleged to have turned off a week ago. Dziekonski said Hurey had paid no rent for 16 months, according to police.

Hurey, unemployed more than three years, said he had found another house which will be ready for occupancy June 15. Challis said he would inform the Humane Society of the incident. Meanwhile, the Hurey family was using the kitchen door.

LOW GOWNS IRK KING, QUEEN

LONDON, June 9.—(AP.)—Low backs, high fronts and other modernistic touches of gowns worn at last month's royal courts are reported to have displeased King George and Queen Mary.

As a result a warning has been issued to American and other chaperones who will present debutantes at the next court. They were told not to deviate from certain strict regulations, unvaried for many years, which govern court attire. Introduction of even a suggestion of contemporary modes is to risk royal displeasure. The warning said:

WALKER'S WIFE IN MOVIE ROLE

LONDON, June 9.—(AP.)—Betty Compton, actress wife of Jimmy Walker, will start work Monday in Warner Brothers' studio at Teddington as leading lady in a picture, "The Richest Girl in the World," she revealed today.

The wife of New York's former Mayor, who has been living quietly with him in suburban Dorking, appeared vastly pleased at the prospect. She said:

"I must be on the set made up and ready to start at 9 a. m."

Mrs. Walker said the terms of her contract were very satisfactory.

It will be the first full length film Miss Compton, for years on the American stage, has appeared in.

Eberhard, Pittsburgh Coal Company; James Moren, retired, master and pilot; A. S. Osbourne, Union Barge Line; H. Clay Rodgers, McCrady-Rodgers Company; Thomas Cavanaugh, Wheeling Steel Corporation; J. L. Taylor, American Bridge Company; John L. Howder, Hillman Transportation Company; Howard Morris, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Louisville Packet Company; Phil Kussart, Monongahela and Ohio Dredging Company; Phil C. Elsey, master and pilot; R. C. McCullough, area chief, Ohio River, and R. O. P. Silverman, attorney in admiralty.

INJURED HOUSE MEMBER DIES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Funeral arrangements were to be made today for Representative Thomas C. Coffin (Dem.), of Idaho, who died at Providence Hospital here late yesterday from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile in front of the Capitol several days ago.

An emergency brain operation failed to save Representative Coffin's life. His wife, Mrs. Aileen Franklin Coffin, was at his bedside. He also leaves a young daughter, Jeanne, 16, who has been attending school in Washington during the last year.

The Idaho representative, serving his first term in Congress, was struck by the automobile Tuesday. He was standing in front of the Capitol talking to friends. Engrossed in the conversation, he stepped from the curb into the path of the automobile.

Six Reported Killed In Mexican Air Crash

MEXICO, D. F., June 9.—(AP.)—Six persons were reported killed yesterday in an airplane crash between Tuxtla Gutierrez, capital of Chiapas, and Arriaga, in the same state.

Private messages received here said the airplane may have been caught by heavy winds on the edge of the hurricane which struck San Salvador.

Churchill Defeated, May Lose Party Title

LONDON, June 9.—(AP.)—Winston Churchill, long a "lone wolf" among the tories, suffered a major defeat yesterday in the House of Commons which a reliable political source said may result in his being read out of the Conservative party. The defeat was on the question of the conduct of Indian affairs under Sir William Hoare, secretary for India.

Male Voices Win Harvard Profs' Radio Poll

Eighty listeners, equally divided according to sex and representing a wide cross section of age, education and occupation, were asked by two Harvard professors to rate 10 voices coming over the radio.

The voices were those of five men and five women, each a highly trained student of public speaking.

DORMONT TAX CUT ASKED

Pleading for tax relief, a delegation of Dormont citizens last night asked Council to cut the tax rate to 8 mills. Two months ago the borough tax millage was increased from 9 to 10 mills. Council will meet with the Finance Committee Monday to consider the plea.

The delegation was headed by Attorney Harry Shapiro, who pointed out that Council could cut the millage to 8 mills and still have a surplus of $9,000. He closed his argument with a veiled threat that unless Council heeded the demand they would "go into court and force the issue."

Prior to hearing the plea for tax relief, Council passed its budget at $175,566.72. Last year the budget was $167,000.

Council President Earl Llewelyn presided.

LACK OF FUNDS KEEP 1,900 IDLE

Inability of the Allegheny County office of the Relief Works Division to obtain an appropriation of $472,581.30 to complete work on 90 miles of city street projects may prevent the return to work of 1,900 RWD workers, it was indicated today. The men have been unemployed since last month.

Thus far no action on the appropriation have been taken by officials in Harrisburg, it was said.

'Missa Eucharistica' In Epiphany Church

The combined senior and junior choirs will sing at the solemn high mass in Epiphany Church tomorrow. The "Missa Eucharistica," for four mixed voices, the wonderful composition of L. Perosi, the great music master, will be sung, in the loft, under the direction of Prof. John Sedlacek. The surpliced boy choir in the sanctuary will sing special hymns. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell.

Farewell Services For Dr. Snodgrass

Christian churches of the district will join in with the First Christian Church, Arch street, at 8 p. m. tomorrow in a farewell service to Dr. R. E. Snodgrass, retiring pastor of the First Church. Dr. Snodgrass will leave Pittsburgh in a few days for Wichita, Kan., where he will assume his new pastorate on June 17.

4 Million Families On Relief, SenateTold

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(AP.)—The statement that Harry L. Hopkins, emergency relief administrator, had estimated relief needs at $110,000,000 monthly for the next fiscal year and had said that 4,000,000 families were still on relief rolls was made in the Senate yesterday by Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa.

N. Y.-Rome Plane Takes Air in Test

LONDON, June 9.—(AP.)—The Leonardo da Vinci, trans-Atlantic plane of Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli, took to the air yesterday for the first time since its hop-skip flight from Ireland. If tests in the next 24 hours are satisfactory the New York to Rome flight, interrupted by a forced landing at Moy, Ireland, May 15, may be resumed Sunday, Pond said.

Night Watchman For Police Station

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 9.—(AP.)—A night watchman has been hired to guard offices in the Central Police Station here.

Said Joe Duches, the watchman, as he paced the corridors of the station:

"Yes, it seems peculiar, but there are some valuables in the offices that have to be watched."

Pastor to Deliver Sermon From Life

"I Have Overcome the World" will be Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney's sermon topic at the communion service of the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth street, at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow. For his 8 p. m. service he will give a sermon from life, "The One You Tempted."

Avalon Swimming Pool Opened Today

The new municipal pool in Avalon was opened to residents today, with Burgess Grant Ritchie and Paul C. Cost, chairman of the Porks and Playground Committee, making brief addresses. In addition to the pool, which has a capacity of 500 persons, there is a wading pool for 50 small children.

LOANS FOR BANK PAYOFFS ASKED

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Liberality by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in loans on assets of closed banks for the purpose of paying depositors has been demanded by Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Senate and House conferees on the federal deposit insurance bill have reached a complete agreement.

A major provision authorizes the RFC to buy assets of closed banks or to advance loans on them. The RFC is authorized to make loans on "reasonable security," based upon a long-term settlement. Fletcher said:

"I hope the RFC will be liberal and give genuine relief to the thousands of persons whose deposits are frozen in closed banks."

The conferees agreed on a provision to increase the guaranty of individual deposits in banks from $2,500 to $5,000. Under existing law, deposits up to $2,500 are guaranteed until July 1, 1934, when a "permanent plan" guaranteeing larger deposits was to go into effect. The conferees agreed to lift the guarantee to $5,000 until July 1, 1935, when the permanent plan would become effective.

DRIVER ROBBED OF PAY

Shortly after he had been paid early today, John Fox, 32, transfer company driver, of 1506 Carson street, was counting his money as he was walking in Colwell street, near Stevenson street, A man stopped him and said:

Fox agreed it was after the man grabbed $28 from his hand and fled with a companion in an auto.

NO. 151.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing the removal and replacement of a siding owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, located on Preble avenue between Franklin street and Liverpool street, Twenty-first Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is hereby authorized to remove and replace a siding as shown on a revised plan marked "Exhibit A" Pennsylvania Railroad Company Plan, showing the removal and replacement of a siding on Preble avenue between Franklin street and Liverpool street, dated May 2, 1934, and on file in the office of the Division of Public Utilities, in Folder B 415, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh.

That portion of the siding to be removed shall begin at a point distant 118.00 feet northwesterly from the northerly line of Liverpool street and at a perpendicular distance of 7.00 feet eastwardly from the westerly line of Preble avenue, thence deflecting in a northeasterly direction by the arc of a circle with a radius of 400.00 feet and a central angle of 11 degrees 25 minutes for a distance of 80.00 feet to a point of reverse curve, thence deflecting in a northwesterly direction by the arc of a circle with a radius of 225.00 feet and a central angle of 11 degrees 25 minutes for a distance of 45.00 feet.

That portion of the siding to be replaced shall begin at a point distant 41.50 feet northwestwardly from northerly line of Franklin street and at a perpendicular distance of 25.00 feet westwardly from the easterly line of Preble avenue, thence deflecting in a southwesterly direction by the arc of a circle with a radius of 198.00 feet, and a central angle of 11 degrees 25 minutes for a distance of 39.00 feet to a point of tangent, thence by the tangent of said curve for a distance of 11.00 feet to a point, said point connecting with the proposed siding to be installed by the Fort Pitt Bedding Company.

SECTION 2. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company prior to the removal and placing of said sidings shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh a complete set of plans showing location of all surface and subsurface structures in detail for the removal and placing of said siding, and the plans and construction of siding shall be subject to the approval and supervision of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over city streets, and to the ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of a siding on city streets and compensation for same. The City of Pittsburgh reserves the right to grant permission and issue permits to a registered plumber, contractor, or City Water Department to make connections to water mains or sewers under railroad sidings.

SECTION 4. The said grantee shall bear the full cost and expense of the repaving and repair of the street pavement damaged, or special re-enforcement of paving, repair of sewers, water lines, and other surface and subsurface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of said siding. All of the said work including the repaving of the street damaged, shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

SECTION 5. The rights and privileges granted by this ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh, without liability, reserves the right to cause the removal of the said siding upon giving six (6) months' written notice through the proper officers pursuant to resolution or ordinance of Council to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, their successors and assigns, to that effect and that the said grantee shall, when so notified, at the expiration of the said six months, forthwith remove the said siding and replace the street to its original condition at its own cost and expense.

SECTION 6. The said grantee shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons or property, including the streets and subsurface structures therein, by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said siding and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of this grant.

SECTION 7. The foregoing rights and privileges are granted subject to the following conditions, to-wit: This ordinance shall become null and void unless within sixty (60) days after its passage and approval the Pennsylvania Railroad Company shall file with the City Controller its certificate of acceptance of the provisions thereof, said certificate to be executed by the President and Secretary of the Company, with its corporate seal attached.

SECTION 8. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council May 28, 1934.
Approved June 5, 1934.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

Nora, looking a little sleepy, was entertaining Guild and Andy in the livingroom. The Wyant offspring were not in sight.

"Go ahead," I told Guild. "First door to the left. I think she's readied up for you."

I nodded.

"What'd you get?"

"See what you get and we'll put them together and see how they add up," I suggested.

"O. K. Come on, Andy." They went out.

"Where's Dorothy?" I asked.

Nora yawned. "I thought she was with you and her mother. Gilbert's around somewhere. He was here till a few minutes ago. Do we have to hang around long?"

"Not long." I went back down the passageway past Mimi's door to another bedroom door, which was open, and looked in. Nobody was there. A door facing it was shut. I knocked on it.

Dorothy's voice: "What is it?"

"Nick," I said and went in.

She was lying on her side on a bed, dressed except for her slippers. Gilbert was sitting on the bed beside her. Her mouth seemed a little puffy, but it may have been from crying: her eyes were red. She raised her head to stare sullenly at me.

"Still want to talk to me?" I asked.

Dorothy shuddered. "He gives me the creeps," she said, and then remembered to stare sullenly at me again.

"Still want to talk to me?"

"What made you turn against me like that?"

Doesn't Know of Chain

"You're being silly." I sat down where Gilbert had been sitting. "Do you know anything about this knife and chain your mother's supposed to have found?"

"No. Where?"

"What'd you want to tell me?"

"Nothing—now," she said disagreeably, "except you might at least wipe her lipstick off your mouth."

I wiped it off. She snatched the handkerchief from my hand and rolled over to pick up a package of matches from the table on that side of the bed. She struck a match.

"Don't do that," I said.

I took the handkerchief, went to a window, opened it, dropped the handkerchief out, shut the window, and went back to my seat on the bed. "If that makes you feel any better."

"What did Mamma say—about me?"

"She said you're in love with me."

She sat up abruptly. "What did you say?"

"I said you just liked me when you were a kid."

Her lower lip twitched. "Do—do you think that's what it is?"

"What else could it be?"

"I don't know." She began to cry. "Everybody's made so much fun of me about it—Mamma and Gilbert and Harrison—I—"

After a while she asked: "Is Mamma in love with you?"

"Good God, no! She hates men."

Mimi Being Stupid

She had stopped crying. She wrinkled her forehead and said: "I don't understand. Do you hate her?"

"Not as a rule."

"Now?"

"I don't think so. She's being stupid and she's sure she's being very clever, and that's a nuisance, but I don't think I hate her."

"I do," Dorothy said.

"So you told me last week. Something I meant to ask you: did you know or did you ever see the Arthur Nunheim we were talking about in the speakeasy tonight?"

"I want to know. Did you?"

"No."

"He was mentioned in the newspapers," I reminded her. "He was the one who told the police about Morelli knowing Julia Wolf."

"I didn't remember his name," she said. "I don't remember ever having heard it until tonight.

I described him. "Ever see him?"

"No."

"He may have been known as Albert Norman sometimes. Does that sound familiar?"

"No."

"Know any of the people we saw at Studsy's tonight? Or anything about them?"

"No. Honestly, Nick, I'd tell you if I knew anything at all that might help you."

"No matter who it hurt?"

Interview Interrupted

"Yes," she said immediately, then, "What do you mean?"

"You know damned well what I mean."

She put her hands over her face, and her words were barely audible: "I'm afraid, Nick. I—" She jerked her hands down as someone knocked on the door.

"All right," I called.

Andy opened the door far enough to stick his head in. He tried to keep curiosity from showing in his face while saying: "The Lieutenant wants to see you."

"Be right out," I promised.

He opened the door wider. "He's waiting." He gave me what was probably meant to be a significant wink, but a corner of his mouth moved more than his eye did and the result was a fairly startling face.

"I'll be back," I told Dorothy, and followed him out.

He shut the door behind me and put his mouth close to my ear. "The kid was at the keyhole," he muttered.

"Gilbert?"

"Yep. He had time to get away from it when he heard me coming, but he was there, right enough."

"That's mild for him," I said.

"How'd you all make out with Mrs. J.?"

He puckered his thick lips up in an O and blew breath out noisily. "What a dame!"

Guild Puzzled

We went into Mimi's bedroom. She was sitting in a deep chair by a window looking very pleased with herself. She smiled gayly at me and said: "My soul is spotless now. I've confessed everything."

Guild stood by a table wiping his face with a handkerchief. There were still some drops of sweat on his temples, and his face seemed old and tired. The knife and chain, and the handkerchief they had been wrapped in, were on the table.

"Finished?" I asked.

"I don't know, and that's a fact," he said. He turned his head to address Mimi: "Would you say we were finished?"

"Well," Guild said slowly, somewhat reluctantly, "in that case I guess I'd like to talk to Mr. Charles, if you'll excuse us for a couple of minutes." He folded his handkerchief carefully and put it in his pocket.

"You can talk here." She got up from the chair. "I'll go out and talk to Mrs. Charles till you're through." She tapped my cheek playfully with the tip of a forefinger as she passed me. "Don't let them say too horrid things about me, Nick."

Andy opened the door for her, shut it behind her, and made the O and the blowing noise again.

I lay down on the bed. "Well," I asked, "what's what?"

Guild cleared his throat. "She told us about finding this here chain and knife on the floor where the Wolf dame had most likely broke it off fighting with Wynant, and she told us the reasons why she'd hid it till now. Between me and you, that don't make any too much sense, looking at it reasonably, but maybe that ain't the way to look at it in this case. To tell you the plain truth, I don't know what to make of her in a lot of ways, I don't for a fact."

Mimi's System

"The chief thing," I advised them, "is not to let her tire you out. When you catch her in a lie, she admits it and gives you another lie to take its place and, when you catch her in that one, admits it and gives you still another, and so on. Most people—even women—get discouraged after you've caught them in the third or fourth straight lie and fall back on either the truth or silence, but not Mimi. She keeps trying and you've got to be careful or you'll find yourself believing her, not because she seems to be telling the truth, but simply because you're tired of disbelieving her."

Guild said: "Hm-m-m. Maybe." He put a finger inside his collar. He seemed very uncomfortable. "Look here, do you think she killed that dame?"

I discovered that Andy was staring at me so intently that his eyes bulged. I sat up and put my feet on the floor. "I wish I knew. That chain business looks like a plant, all right, but . . . We can find out whether he had a chain like that, maybe whether he still has it. If she remembered the chain as well as she said she did, there's no reason why she shouldn't have told a jeweler how to make one, and anybody can buy a knife and have any initials they want engraved on it. There's plenty to be said against the probability of her having gone that far. If she did plant it, it's more likely she had the original chain—maybe she's had it for years—but all that's something for you folks to check up."

"e're doing the best we can," Guild said patiently. "So you do think she did it?"

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Herbert Macauley, Wynant's attorney, tells Nick; Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting Wynant.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Julia served time for working badger game. Guild tells Nick. Wynant's letter urges Nick hunt slayer. Nick convinced that Mimi is hiding evidence. Morelli tells Nick life story of Julia. Nick arrives as police are quizzing Mimi.

WORLD WAR AND AMERICAN SHIPPING—LUSITANIA DISASTER

United States shipping was greatly hampered in the World War. English seized mail and cargo from American vessels dispatched to neutrals suspecting Germany as their true destination. Germany in turn declared all waters around the coasts of the Allies a war zone, threatening ships there with destruction by submarines.

An outstanding disaster with the loss of 1,153 lives (including 114 Americans) was the sinking of the British ship Lusitania (sailing from New York May 1, 1915) off the coast of Ireland. Germany regretted, but declined responsibility on the ground that Americans had been warned individually and through the press by the German Embassy in Washington before sailing. Besides, Germany claimed, the Lusitania was listed as a reserve ship of the British navy and had carried ammunition.

The indignation aroused in U. S. over the loss of American lives, the increasing of sabotage, attributed to German and Austrian agents turned the sentiment against the Central Powers leading to break of diplomatic relations and war. (U. S. History)

INSANITY—IMPAIRED MENTAL PROCESSES

Disease of the cerebral cortex, the seat of higher mental activities, causes suspension or degeneration of some of its functions involving intellect, emotion and will, known as insanity (psychosis). Its main forms are: Paranoia (delusions of persecution, conspiracy, extreme jealousy); mania (state of great excitement, exaggerated ideas); melancholia (depression, delusion of poverty, sinfulness, suicidal thoughts); circular insanity (alternating exaltation-depression); paresis (progressive paralysis, softening of brain, delusions of grandeur, strength, wealth, defective speech, memory, convulsions, lack of reflexes); dementia praecox (in adolescence, delusions, incoherence, negativism, repetition); senile psychosis (depression, gloom, lack of judgment, memory, violence); toxic psychosis (from poisons retained or formed in diabetes, disease of kidneys, thyroid, from alcohol, drugs, lead, etc.); border cases with obsessions, impulses like kleptomania (pilfering), pyromania (incendiary), cranks and perverts. Chief causes of insanity, other than hereditary:

CAUSES OF INSANITY IN MALES AND FEMALES	CASES IN NEW YORK STATE, 1912-13	PER CENT Males	PER CENT Females
STATISTICS BY DR. POLLOCK OF THE HOSPITAL COMMISSION OF NEW YORK STATE. COURTESY OF DODD, MEAD & CO. INTERNATIONAL ENCYCLOPAEDIA	Alcohol	22.6	7.6

THE WORLD WAR IN THE COLONIES—ON THE SEA—IN THE AIR—GERMANY LOSES ALL COLONIES

The World War was fought not only on European soil. The supremacy of the Allies on the sea resulted in the loss of Germany's colonial possessions. Those in Africa were seized by the British and French with the aid of Belgians and Boers. Australia and Japan conquered German possessions in the Pacific. Japan also Kiauchau, the German naval base in the Far East. Great Britain sliced portions off Turkey by liberating Arabia, Egypt, Mesopotamia, Palestine.

For the first time warfare was experienced in the air with airplanes, Zeppelins developing horrible possibilities of wiping out whole communities by dropping bombs with explosives and poisonous gas, pointing to importance of preparedness in air defense.

ALCOHOLS AND ACIDS FORM ESTERS—NITROGLYCERIN

Alcohols react with organic and inorganic acids forming esters and water. Most fruit flavors and odors are due to esters.

Glycerin [glycerole, $C_3H_5(OH)_3$], colorless syrupy, sweetish, is trihydric alcohol (3 H of hydrocarbon propane, C_3H_8, are replaced by 3OH). Nitroglycerin, the powerful explosive [$C_3H_5(NO_3)_3$] is an ester of glycerin and nitric acid. It is made (above) by mixing 1 part of glycerin, 3 parts of nitric acid and 4.8 parts of sulphuric acid (this takes up water formed by reaction), stirred constantly in cooled vessel A. Drawn into tank B, nitro-glycerin separates from acid and then is tapped into container C and washed from acid. Tank D is filled with water for emergency dumping of contents of A and B, if dense red fumes indicate danger of violent decomposition (explosion).

Nitroglycerin, an oily liquor absorbed by porous matter (kieselguhr, wood pulp), is dynamite, much safer in handling. (Chemistry)

COLONEL NEWCOME

"The Newcomes," by W. M. Thackeray, is a novel describing brilliantly English society life.

Col. Newcome, a true gentleman, returning from India, sacrifices everything to further his son, Clive's career, marred with failures. Clive loves Ethel, his rich cousin, walled from him by family ambitions.

An unfortunate marriage with Rosey leaves him a widower. He meets Ethel at the deathbed of the colonel in an almshouse, each free to begin life anew. Drawing by Fred Barnard.

ELECTRIC ARC LAMP

It consists of 2 carbons—between which a suitable gap is maintained—connected in series in an electric circuit. The resistance of the gap produces heat which vaporises the ends of carbons, forming an incandescent, conducting path for the current, the arc.

According to the mechanism maintaining the gap, there are: series, shunt and differential are lamps (above).

In freely circulating air the carbons are quickly consumed. To prevent this they are enclosed in an almost airtight glass globe admitting only enough air to burn carbon vapor to prevent its deposit. (Gen. Science)

How Many Tops Has a Box?

The trend in radio music is now for the artists, the operatic and the involved. With an added request for box tops.

That means a summer of banco sheeting, pot banging and horn grunting.

Amid the thunders of the kettles and the thumping on the hollow kegs we shall hear the faint tinkle of the triangle and the clear note of a pewter bell.

All we can say about opera is that they make a lot of noise for a little music. There is more bog than cranberries.

The Barber of Seville, with 12 chairs, plenty of pressure and no waiting. Released through the courtesy of the makers of Zipp Vanishing Cream. Indorsed by anybody who ever rubbed it on the bars of an Indiana jail.

Gorgo and Balloots. An old Peruvian opera in six acts and no intermission by the fully exhausted maestro, Tino Vino. The composer will lead two hundred bass fiddles in a delightful hour of hoarse rumbles. Stand by for the station house announcement.

Frenickalee versus Frenickaloo is another sturdy bit of the old-time composer's atrocities. After listening to this one we long for Tex Guinan's nights when banging on the table was the highest form of musical art. Send in a box top.

Bulgor Bosloffo, an early Russian dramatic bit will be presented over a national hookup as rewritten by its commercial sponsors and corrected by the advertising agency.

They're very noble hunks of music. But we would rather listen to Rudy Vallee or Bing Crosby crooning the Sobbing Purples than get a load of coloratura soprano buzzing the bee or a Scala baritone deciphering Babylonian tablets two groans below a frog pond.

If they are going to broadcast grand opera that means we will all have to stay home and build our own scenery. Opera is no good without it.

We are sending in our box tops and our home address. It is going to be tough when some sponsor asks for the bottom of a cane seat chair. We will send it in. But we will have to change our address.

McNair's Good Advice

The Mayor Says a Timely Word About the Strike Threat—Comment on Local News

Mayor William N. McNair has said a timely word in urging the steel workers in this community to stop and think before rushing into the proposed strike. We are well on the way towards recovery from the depression. Mr. McNair gave an impressive illustration: some of the mills at Monessen have now been running for nearly a year at 80 per cent. How foolish it would be to imperil the recovery by resort to a strike!

The accuracy of the Mayor's statement that the trouble is being fomented by selfish labor agitators is borne out by the answers to inquiries made at a number of steel mills around Pittsburgh. The majority of the workers are not at all enthusiastic over the possibility of a strike. It is not the rank and file, but radical leaders, who will be responsible if we have serious industrial strife.

There are other ways of settling industrial disputes besides striking. Arbitration is the sensible method. It was used effectively to avert the threatened walkout in the automobile industry, and should be used to adjust the grievances of the steel workers. Neither side in this controversy will, if sensible, defy public opinion by refusing to submit its case to a tribunal in which a neutral will hold the balance of power.

The economists are laying emphasis on the desir- ability of activity in the branches of business having to do with the production of heavy, durable goods. They regard it as important that durable goods producers, such as the steel mills, shall be busy, and say that there is less need for concern at this time over the situation of the producers of the so-called "consumers' goods"—that is, materials intended for more or less immediate consumption.

That is one reason why the public is very much in- terested in the prevention of a steel strike. Another reason is, of course, that such strikes have generally been attended with violence and disorder. Let the steel mills keep on running, and prosperity may not be very far away. As showing the trend, the Department of Labor and Industry at Harrisburg reports that building operations (another durable goods industry) in Pennsylvania showed in April a gain for the third consecutive month.

The inability of the jury to agree in the case in which Senator James J. Coyne and others were charged with election frauds furnishes ammunition to those who are urging a change in our system of jurisprudence to let the judge take the place of the jury, and render the verdict, under certain circumstances. The trial cost the taxpayers a lot of money, and presumably the defendants will be tried a second time, which means additional expense.

Important as it is that persons accused of cheating at the polls shall be made to answer, it is still more important that our elections, if possible, shall be made fraud-proof. We are impressed by the opportunities that Alonzo P. Ingram's vote-by-mail plan offers to prevent cheating. The plan is commendable, too, for its simplicity. It makes it easier to vote, and thus should lead many to perform this civic duty who neglect it rather than go to the polls.

The whole trend of the times is in the direction of making voting easier, so as to bring out the votes of the independent citizens and thus minimize the power of the controlled voters who cast their ballots servilely at the dictation of political bosses. The new system of permanent registration was one move in this direction, and the adoption of voting machines was another. The Ingram vote-by-mail plan is another move in the same direction, and would accomplish more than anything else that has yet been done.

Tomorrow is National Shut-In Sunshine Day, a day set aside by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association on which to remember the invalids of America. Sunshine Day was inaugurated last year, when more than 150,000 boquets were sent to brighten the sick rooms of invalids the nation over, in private homes as well as in hospitals.

This year the Florists' Association is out to exceed last year's record. Any friend or relative of a bed-ridden sufferer may request any member of the association to send a bouquet to the shut-in. The service is free. But do not ask for flowers for any but real invalids who are without friends or relatives to provide them with flowers; for the Pittsburgh florists say they are nearly swamped with requests, and their generosity should not be abused.

The people of Pittsburgh are given an opportunity to contribute to another praiseworthy cause, the campaign of the Salvation Army to raise $108,500 for the maintenance of 20 of its major activities in Allegheny County. Less than half the amount has been raised so far, but the campaign can be saved from failure if enough Pittsburghers and other residents of the county will buy the miniature red shields that the Salvation Army is selling on street corners today.

We cannot forbear to put in another plea also for the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, which is trying to raise $100,000 to assure the continuance of its admirable orchestra concerts. This is a cause which should be very dear to the hearts of all Pittsburghers who appreciate the city's music heritage and have proper regard for its reputation. Good music is a cultural necessity, and is to be found in its highest form in symphony orchestra performances.

A tiny dot of an island, Tristan da Cunha, in the Pacific Ocean between Africa and South America, probably is the loneliest place in the world where white men live with their families as permanent residents. Hardly more than one ship a year calls there on the average. Would you like to know something about the lives of people so situated? There is an interesting article about it in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Jungle Jim is shrewd and resourceful, and rarely makes mistakes. But he made one when he teased the black panther with intent to carry it out of the jungle. The story is pictured by Alex Raymond in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

CALIFORNIA DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, June 9. — In many ways downtown Los Angeles is as remote to the dwellers in Beverly Hills and Hollywood as Phoenix. They have not been to town for months. Big stores have their Beverly branches. And the smartest shops are often far out on Wilshire boulevard, the newer Fifth avenue and rue de la Paix.

Then there is Pasadena, which so seldom attains headlines. Yet is one of the wealthiest suburbs. Many famed capitalists from the East and Middle West have been hibernating here for 25 seasons. The spreading residential avenues are among the most beautiful in California.

Over-staying my time here, San Francisco, one of the chief objectives of this jaunt, was denied and and with regret. San Francisco and New Orleans are two of the most fascinating American cities for prowlers such as I. They should not be handled in quick gulps. But fondled, like meerschaums.

San Francisco, despite its ocean frontage, has insular pride, a pride that thrives on a rich heritage. Tom-toms never sound and civic fires are always banked. Serenely conscious of the sweeping grandeur of its proud hills as well as the majesty of its fogs, it invites no trade lasts.

Hollywood is vastly absorbed by the constant companionship of Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard. They dine frequently in public but seem totally oblivious to everybody save each other. They are always talking, not the worn table chat of steady diners out, but expressing the animation of minds that spark in communion. Sometimes they seem arguing brittlely and at sword points, and then in the ecstasy of soft confidence. It's quite a show.

The old time throaty Broadway actor of long ago is here. Every cafe has one strutting the table aisles at the busiest hour and often, like the fabled rooster, crowing a false dawn. New York and its dwindling Rialto is dead to him but out here his hope is in usual ascendancy. He is the type who never realizes he is in eclipse. For him there is always another chance. And out here it has been proved. Look at Joe Cawthorne who always has a good job. And Lewis Stone.

At Ed Nolan's last night our approach by motor was suddenly heralded by a flood of searchlights illuminating the house and lawn. A nice welcome, of course, for visitors, but a great protection at night where from a bedside push button they may be turned on at the slightest noise. An asset of many big estates.

Sunshine is tricky here. An overdose and one rhumbas smack into a congestive chill. I was talking to a beach-blistered exhibit in the Beverly-Wilshire lobby this evening and like that he went, hi-de-hi, into a fast gilda-gray. "I cank ca cank cank canka cank," he chattered helplessly as I piloted him in a sort of skittery hop-scotch to the elevator. And not until this morning at breakfast did I realize what he was trying to say was: "I can't take it!"

Ted Healy was fizzing his usual gassy sophistries as master of ceremonies at an impromptu affair and, looking at the list to be introduced, saw the name of a flaming-haired dance lady he used to know in the old days. So he stressed, as it were, her fiery tresses. She appeared a flaming blonde. "A new zinc roof on an old barn," he moaned in an aside.

This morning we breakfasted on a radiant portico with Doris Kenyon and the Will Hays—a bower edged with the glisten of dew-wet fragrant flowers. Gaudy birds of bright plumage—wheeled overhead. It's tough to pack the duffle-bag and leave all this for a sunless, noisy niche in Manhattan. I might say duty calls but step out in the hall a second. The truth is, O, well you know, any fellow out traveling this way is likely to get overdrawn and everything.

My last meal in Los Angeles was with Jay F. Price and the attractive Irma Fraser. He had found a place on Pico featuring hamburgers like those at Canon's short order house back yonder. Jay has despaired of weaning me from columning to lead a better and more useful life. So we chatted reminiscently of Chot Young, Jim Clay, Horace and Mary Riley, Banty Biggerstaff and others of days when our orbit was so gloriously Boyville. But the restaurant was a sentimental wrench. It had not acquired the distinct Canon touch. The catsup bottle was ungummy, the pink paper shoo-fly missing and no despondent cock roach, so far as I could notice, had ended all in the mustard.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

After Thirty—What?

After thirty—what's left for a happy, healthy American wife?

Silly question No. 8,936? Not at all. A tremendously important and absolutely inescapable question, which millions of our finest women are asking, and for which they rarely find a satisfactory answer. And the finer the woman, the more difficult the answer.

Here today, for example, is Mrs. Edward Jones. She lives—where? In every big city, every country town, every isolated camp or ranch in America. A plain, friendly little woman, in a plain, friendly little home.

Yet it was her faith and vision which first built America on a dangerous alien shore. It was her courage and insatiable desire to serve her family's need which sent the American spirit roaming, further and further west, seeking new homes in the face of incredible danger and hardships. And it has been her patience, initiative, tenderness, good nature and gallant pluck which has carried us through these last black years . . . which has saved America in every crisis.

Just an American wife, taking the tough breaks with her man, making a joyous adventure of the first battling years.

BUT WHAT IS THAT SAME AMERICAN WIFE TO DO WHEN THE TOUGH BREAKS ARE ENDED, WHEN THE BATTLE IS ALL WON?

Her man still goes on. For him the conflict and competition, the challenge and adventure, will never end. Life will hold its tang of wonder and mystery until the end. But for her—WHAT? Over 30. Still young. But what's ahead? Mrs. Edward Jones is asking.

"I guess," she says, "my life has been typical. In high school at 12, in the business world at 15—eight happy years with one concern, working up to an executive position, then leaving to marry. Then followed years of new tasks, two baby boys, much sickness and many disappointments — but a husband in a million, and great joy. That was my life. During all those years I was busy and eagerly learning new things and new sides of life.

"Now suddenly there's a lull! My boys off to school all day, my husband at work. I still have my housework and cooking. But they are not enough to occupy my mind.

"I'm 33 now, and until now each year has meant gaining new knowledge or skill. If I were a man I would be 'just getting my stride.' Instead, as a woman, I seem to have come to the end of a blind alley.

"Please understand, I'm not one of those restless females who long for a career. I'm in love with my husband, my home and family. I don't want anything that will take me from them. I only want a new program that will be as 'womanly' yet as inspiring and constructive as our first building years. BUT WHERE IN WOMAN-LIFE TODAY CAN I FIND IT?

"The usual silly afternoon rounds of bridge, petty gossip, window shopping, hotel lounging, beauty parlors? I couldn't stand it, even if I could afford it.

"Club life? Miss Robinson, you know as well as I that the average club-woman is a joke if she isn't a tragedy. Either she doesn't know what it's all about, or she's a shrill busy body sticking her nose into everyone's business, making a public nuisance of herself. But of course no one dares do anything to her BECAUSE SHE AND ALL HER LADY FRIENDS HAVE VOTES.

"I'd rather die right now than become a person like that. But I MUST do something, not only for my family's sake in the present, BUT FOR THOSE YEARS AHEAD WHEN MY CHILDREN WILL NO LONGER NEED ME.

"I certainly don't intend to be one of those women who hang onto their children and make everyone miserable by trying to share their children's activities, simply because they've never had gumption enough to find interests of their own.

"But what can I do? My mother and grandmother found plenty to do in their own homes. But homes were different then. They were real factories and community centers. Nowadays practically everything is made and done outside the home. So that leaves me—where? Just over 30. IS MY JOB REALLY DONE?"

Well—is it? What do YOU think? Suppose you face this problem as honestly, as bravely as Mrs. Jones is facing it? Cutting out all the pretty palaver about our Wonderful Modern American Life with its Unbounded Freedom and Unlimited Opportunities—

Human Side of the News

Stalin, Head of Soviet Russia, Is a Man of Mystery Whom Lenin Used, but Towards the End Distrusted

By Edwin C. Hill

THOUGHTFUL students of international affairs are more and more convinced that the next great war will be fought between Soviet Russia and Japan. That war will be fought for the mastery of Asia. China lies broken and dismembered. A rich prey. Japan, seizing Manchuria, throws up her first line of defense against the Russian hordes.

The Russian Bear stirs resentfully under the iron hand of that strange individual who holds more absolute power today than has been enjoyed by any human being since the mad monsters of Imperial Rome. Joseph Stalin, the Man of Steel. In the hollow of his hand, he holds the lives of two hundred million people. Thousands have died at the nod of his head, at the negligent gesture of his finger.

This man, who lives in the seclusion of a village, casts an ominous shadow across the face of the world. Born in misery and darkness, he lays a seven-thonged knout across the bowed back of a cowed people, driving them on, though the wheels creak and wrench, to what fate no man knows. Who is he, this cold Caesar of the twentieth century, whose mysterious ambitions may wreck half the world?

* * *

Money Has Little Attraction for Him

HE was first heard of when he was a frowning, glowering youth back in 1905. He took part in the unsuccessful revolution of that year. He pillaged, looted and threw bombs. Once, when bombs hurled Cossack guards into a struggling, bleeding mass, he snatched up 300,000 rubles consigned to a tiflis bank and got away. But he robbed not for himself but for the cause. Money seems to mean nothing to him, nor the ordinary comforts and luxuries of life. Neither then nor now. All those rubles went straight to his leader, Nicolai Lenin.

He was arrested six times by the dreaded Russian secret police. Five times he escaped and the sixth time he was liberated by the revolution of 1917. The police yearned to hang him. But he was too subtle. The only offenses they could pin on him were trivial. He concealed his darker deeds with a skill that the police could not penetrate.

Lenin began to make good use of him. But not even the astute Lenin perceived the craving for power gnawing in the heart of Stalin. He reached out quietly for the lines that controlled the Bolshevik machine. Swaggering Trotsky got the headlines, but it was Stalin, sitting like a spider in the center of his web, who slowly and surely accumulated power.

Predicted Stalin Would Wreck Party

WHEN Lenin lay dying, a flash of insight came to him, such as often visit souls that cling only by a thread to this world. He branded Stalin as a ruthless man who would eventually ruin the party. But it was too late even for the dying words of Lenin to halt this supreme tyrant. Trotsky, Kamanev and Zinoviev, plotted and schemed, with cunning eyes on each other. Stalin, sure of his grip, eliminated them one by one, until he bestrode helpless Russia like a colossus.

Suspicious, and resentful, the faintest opposition brings exile, prison or death. He lives in Gorky, a suburb of Moscow. The house is heavily guarded. When Stalin leaves for his office in the Kremlin, he travels in a closed sedan. Armed guards precede and follow the car. Undoubtedly, Joseph Stalin feels that he is the last of the Bolsheviki masters.

He's no loquacious orator. His speeches are rather dry and monotonous. He's no financial or economic genius. If he has any thoughts on literature or music or any of the other arts, he keeps them to himself. He lives in complete isolation with his 30-year-old wife—his second—and their three children.

He gives his confidence to no one, smokes, but doesn't drink or gamble, and is said to hold women in contempt as inferior animals. He is now 54, sturdy and of the peasant type. He goes about in boots and rough peasant garb. He makes a complete mystery of his life.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Wind

The wind is my friend;
It comes to me
Through the night from world's end
It hastes to me
From a strange, dim place,
It blows the breath
Of the sea on my face!

A hint of incense
Tell me, O wind,
What of the east?
A pink rose petal
Has brushed my mouth;
Tell me, O wind,
What of the south?

O, whisper wind,
Of north and west,
Of forest deps
And snow-crowned crest!
The wind is my love,
From strange seas out there
It blows the spray
And the mist through my hair!

ISN'T IT SO?

The longest distance between any two given points is that between the down payment and the one that makes you paid up.

Eve, Poor, Sad Unhappy Eve

If Only She Could Have Read Milton

That Saddest Hour When Eve Took the Apple

The story told in two of Gustave Dore's pictures illustrating "Paradise Lost" you know.

Adam and Eve were happy in the Garden, everything was so perfect and might have remained perfect forever, if Adam and Eve had obeyed the Lord's commands and kept away from the tree of life, and its fruit of knowledge.

Beautiful garden, lovely paradise; the lion and lamb, leopard, tiger, weanling kid, were safe with each other, no animal ever bit any other animal.

But alas, Eve did bite the apple, Adam was foolish enough to follow her example, because she coaxed him, at least that is what he said, when ordered to explain.

Everybody suffered. Adam and Eve were put out of the garden and had to go to work. The snake that had walked in some other fashion before, was told by the angry Creator, that from that day forth he must travel on his belly, with his head in the dust.

Powerful pictures by Gustave Dore, illustrating Milton's "Paradise Lost" tell the story of weak yielding, vain regret, and disobedience, that compelled our ancestors and all of us, ever since then, to wear clothing, and earn our living in the sweat of our brow.

Miserable Snake, Miserable Apple, What Sorrow You

If Eve could have read Milton's "Paradise Lost" all our human troubles might have been avoided. But unfortunately "Paradise Lost" was not written until thousands of years after Eve made the fatal mistake of listening to the serpent.

However, you can read Milton if you choose, and you should do so. Next to Shakespeare he is the greatest poet in the English language, and some good critics place him above Shakespeare in some of his shorter poems, for instance L'Allegro and "Lycidas."

In the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow you may, if you choose, read an article which tells something about Milton and quotes some of his finest lines.

Written by Arthur Brisbane, the article will be helpful if it causes even a few young people to take an interest in a great writer, of powerful imagination.
